

Seeking to Break Naval Oil Reserve Leases

Lack of legal authority to grant leases on naval oil reserves in California, as well as alleged fraud, are the grounds on which the government is seeking, in Los Angeles courts, before Judge Paul J. McCormick, to break the leases granted by ex-Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall to Edward L. Doheny, millionaire oil operator. The Doheny legal staff consists of Joe Cotter, Frederick Kellogg and Frank Hogan, while the government is represented by United States District Attorney Joseph Burke, ex-Senator Atlee Pomerene, of Ohio; Assistant District Attorney Camarilla and Owen J. Roberts.

Scientists Speed Up Work of Nature

SPEEDING UP NATURE

The new million dollar Bradley Beach (New Jersey) Golf club put their practice green into use two months after it was seeded by the help of artificial light. The most difficult golf grass to grow in this country was used, and twenty-four 1,000-watt lamps in reflectors were installed and burned five hours each night. It was found the club would save considerable money by speeding up nature, as the playing revenue for the six months saved far offset the cost of the lighting.

Four Brothers Marry Four Sisters of Same Name

FOUR STONESIFER COUPLES

Four unique families live in Hanover, Pa. Four Stonesifer brothers there married four Stonesifer sisters. Although the names are identical, the families are not related. William G. Stonesifer was married to Ida Marcella Stonesifer in 1915. In 1917 Harry Raymond Stonesifer was married to Gertrude Stonesifer, and in 1917 Lester Eugene Stonesifer won Joanna Stonesifer. The youngest of the Stonesifer sisters became Mrs. Otis P. Stonesifer in September of this year. There are two more Stonesifer brothers and two more sisters, and Rev. J. W. Reinecke, pastor of the Bachman's Valley Lutheran Church, who performed all the ceremonies, expects to perform two more ere long.

Hudson River's Largest Bridge Near Completion

BEAR MOUNTAIN BRIDGE

The Bear Mountain Bridge over the Hudson river, on the longest over that historic stream, erected by the state of New York so that the millions living on the east bank of the river can more readily reach the state's Bear Mountain public park and the other immense state parks on the west bank, has been officially linked up and inspected by the tunnel commission. Work of installing the roadbed and automobile road approaches is under way. The bridge will be opened to the public before next summer.

Back After Nine Days As Boy

JULIA HANNIGAN

"Gee, I wish I was a boy!" was the oft-repeated assertion of Julia Hannigan, beautiful fifteen-year-old Brooklyn, N. Y., schoolgirl. So she disappeared from her home, had her hair cut, donned boy's clothing, got a job as a caddy, put up at a stag hotel, completely fooled everyone for nine days, when police found her and returned her to her home. At the left she is shown in her boyish disguise and at the right as she appeared after putting back on her own attire.

5,000 YEARS FAIL TO CHANGE RULES

London — Married life in ancient Egypt 5,000 years ago must have been much the same as married life in London, today. The ancient writings are full of good advice on bickering, and husbands are warned not to look too intently on the "shining limbs of the dancing girls." Sir Ernest Wallis Budge, the famous Egyptologist, who retired recently from the control of the Egyptian and Assyrian department of the British Museum, has collected the writings of the ancient scribes—known as the Moral Papyri—which he is publishing under the title "The Teaching of Amen-em-Apt." The earliest known advice on marriage is that of a scribe named Ptah-hetep, who wrote about 4,000 years B. C.: "If thou wouldst be wise or prosperous, get married," says Ptah-hetep. "Love thou thy wife in the house, wholly and rightly. Fill her belly and clothe her back; oil for anointing is the medicine for her limbs. Make her heart to rejoice as long as thou livest." Another scribe, named Ani, had a few straight things to say to husbands: "Attempt not to direct a married woman in her house when thou knowest that she is a perfect housewife. Say not to her: 'where is that (I. e., such-and-such a thing)? Bring it to us!' when she has put the object in its proper place. "Make thine eye watch her and hold thy peace, and then thou wilt be able to appreciate her wise and good management. The interfering man only sets confusion in his house." Ani also warned men against widows and the "strange woman" in the town, and seems to have been the first prohibitionist: "Undertake nothing as the result of having drunk beer," he remarks. "For if thou dost, words which can have a second meaning may come forth from thy mouth without thy knowing it. When thou fallest down and breakest thybones, there will be no one there to put out his hand to help thee. "They boon companion will stand up and say: 'Away with this drunken beast!' When people come to have speech with thee, they will find thee lying prostrate on the ground, and thou wilt be as helpless as a little child."
