TODAY

BY ARTHUR BRIGBANE
Recent and unnecessarily alarming news from Italy has disturbed Italy's friends in this country, and what is more serious it had, for a while, a bad effect upon Italian exchange.

It is a pleasure to announce that Italian currency recovered notably yesterday, and it is a duty to warn any gambler inclined to sell Italian exchange short that he is certain to be badly pinched before he finishes with that experiment.

You must take with many grains of salt alarmist reports from Italy. Travelers may proceed to Italy as usual and find the usual warm Italian welcome, comfortable and delightful living at very reasonable prices, and as great safety for themselves and their families as an Italian family would find here in the United States.

The Senate, after floundering, passes the Underwood Muscle Shoals bill which would give gigantic public property to private corporations, to be exploited on the usual basis of taking the last dollar that the traffic will bear.

The situation can still be changed in the House.

It seems absolutely certain that the people are not to be allowed to operate their own power plant on which they have spent already $140,000,000 of public money.

That being the case, Henry Ford ought to come back to the fight. The House undoubtedly would vote to let him have Muscle Shoals. Ninety nine per cent. of the people would approve such a vote.

And Henry Ford would use the power of the plant to give cheap fertilizer to the farmers; he would sell power to those that wanted it at the lowest possible cost. There isn't any question about that, for that is what he has always done. That's his policy.

Ford withdrew, but he ought not to sit by and see a private corporation, with no public spirit, take from the people a property which in Ford's hands could be made useful to everybody.

Are the Japanese able? They are, indeed, and in every line of effort. Have they firm nerves, skill, concentration, capacity for sustained effort? Yes, they have.

In New York City, for the first time in history, two foreigners are playing for the championship at billiard line billiards. There never was such a competition before without at least one American in it. This time, the two competitors, both Japanese, are named Saganama and Suzuki.

If you know anything about balk line billiards you know it takes steady nerves, self control, good balance and a brain that can't easily be disturbed by surrounding conditions, to play that game well.

The Japanese can do anything requiring skill and nerve. The Japanese government will have plenty of men with courage and concentration to run those 500 airplanes that they are turning out every month.

died without a word.

Lack of imagination enables young men to die in that fashion. Lack of imagination also makes it possible for them to commit murder.

And lack of imagination enables the public to follow the murderer's example and put him to a violent death.

Our government says the financial arrangement in Paris, too deep for the average man, will give to the United States its fair share of the German money, and, at the same time, will not tie us up in any way or make us responsible for German payments or anything else.

That's good news, and let us hope there is no "if" in it. The Europeans are clever gentlemen and their intense satisfaction with the settlement might make suspicious minds uneasy.

Thirty five years ago Ogden Mills, very rich, built the Mills building in Wall Street, New York, 10 stories high. It was considered a marvelous structure. Now the Equitable Trust company will tear it down and build a 34 story building in its place, to cost $12,000,000.

There is nothing unusual about the 34 story building. The interesting thing is the Equitable lease on the new building, which runs well into the next century. Long before the lease ends the new building will be torn down.

By that time the flying machine will have replaced the suburban train, and all building will be done over to meet flying machine conditions.

And by that time our single tax man may have persuaded the world that the only trouble with our civilization is allowing individuals to own land.

Gossip About Books and Authors

Where is the present day writer with the eternal, bubbling zest and eminent quotability of our own Mark Twain? A new anecdote about him, clipped from the January International Review tickled our risibilities. "When Mark Twain was living in lower Fifth avenue and when his daughter Clara (now Mrs. Gabrilovitch) was keeping house for him, he invited half a dozen men to lunch.

"Of course Howells was one of them and of course the laughter was abundant and frequent. Once as it died down, Mark said, 'Clara is upstairs; she will hear that laughter, and she'll say, 'There's Mr. Howells telling father another one of his shady stories!'"

"At this outrageous assertion, Howells (who was one of the most clean-minded of men) almost blushed. He defended his good name by declaring that he had known only one shady story in all his life. "I know," said Mark, "and that's just it. Clara is getting tired of hearing that."

Rafael Sabatini has just been awarded the Adolph Zukor $10,000 prize given to the writer whose story made the best motion picture play during the year ending September 1, 1924. The picture which received the prize was SCARAMOUCHE. We didn't see that picture but we revelled in THE SEA HAWK—if Scaramouche was better than that, it's worth quite a journey to see. Houghton, Mifflin and Company is publishing on February 27 his latest novel with its setting in America, THE CAROLINIAN.

This story is now running serially in the Good Housekeeping magazine.

Poetry and religion! What two better mediums to go hand in hand to uplift the heart of mankind? In a recent service conducted in Christ church, Westminster, a famous actress read to a crowded congregation Walt Whitman's hymn to the American people, beginning "As a strong bird on pinions free," and followed by selections from Shelley and Tagore.

A small treatise on "How to Get Educated Though Poor," is contained in the early chapters of the biography of William Crawford Gorgas (Doubleday, Page and company).

Gorgas roomed with another southerner, who was just as poor as himself. The two young men divided the housework between themselves. Gorgas got up early every cold winter morning and made the fire, while Bowen did the family mending. One morning Gorgas gave this amateur seamstress his sadly worn trousers—they needed patching. The Kentuckian made a beautiful job of it but Gorgas' enthusiasm was somewhat dissipated when he discovered that Bowen had used his soft felt hat for material.

"Only one extravagance did these young men tolerate—Gorgas' enthusiasm for the theater. 'The Two Orphans' with Kate Claxton was now the rage of the town. The poignant scene when the little girls, one blind, were huddled under the gaslight, with the paper snow of the old Union Square falling upon their devoted heads, especially stirred the emotions of the young medics.

When the villain seized the blind girl, Bowen leaped to his feet, and yelled over the balcony, 'Take your hand off that girl, you scoundrel, or I'll blow a hole through you,' putting his hand to his hip pocket."

Thomas Boyd (see review above) does know whereof he writes in his book, Through the Wheat. He enlisted at 19, when the war broke out and fought through the Argonne, where he was badly gassed, and Belleau Wood. With his company of 250 men he marched through a field of wheat, which was open to the enemy's fire, and he was one of 23 survivors.

Reading for Kindergarteners
A friend of ours, who conducts a kindergarten, writes:

"I have a table in my kindergarten room that has books the children can use, not to read, but just to handle and enjoy, looking at pictures and telling one another the stories they represent. I think that is the way to have tiny children begin to love books. Of course I have told them the stories many times." (It is our experience that a child of two can be taught to respect and value books. We believe that it is a mistake to give them only cloth books till they reach years of discretion. Perhaps one book may be sacrificed in the lesson, but once learned, the whole home library is known as a treasure to be cherished. Our little girl of three has had for a long time, a corner in our book shelf and except for one tattered volume left out in the rain last summer, and one wickedly experimented on with the new box of crayons, her books are in perfect order. (Parental egotism, like murder, will out, you see.)

The Supreme Test.
From the Boston Transcript.
"Does your husband treat you unkindly?"
"Certainly not!" said the woman.
"Then why do you want a divorce?"
"I don't actually want a divorce. I merely want to apply for one. Then I can judge by the kind of a fuss my husband makes whether he really cares for me or not."

Within the radius of 40 miles of Taber, Alberta, it is estimated that 1,000 antelopes are now collected, and they are reported to be eating the farmers' green feed, reserved for their cattle. The antelopes were nearly extinct at one time, but under protective measures they are coming back.

Your doctor advises internal cleanliness

HE WILL tell you that the first results of constipation—headache, sleepless nights, biliousness, backache, etc.—warn that the body is flooded with intestinal poisons. In time these poisons may cause the breakdown of health and lead to serious disease.

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Why Physicians Favour Lubrication
Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. For sale by all druggists.
