Her Own Business

A woman, charged with assault upon a neighbor, pleaded not guilty. The prosecutor leaned forward, took his finger in her face and shouted: "If we prove you guilty, which we will do, will you tell us why you committed this offense?"

"I will not!" retorted the defendant, hotly. "I had my own reasons."

The oil in your motor must stand the intense heat of 350 degrees. It must stand dilution by gas and water. Bearings burn out, cylinders are scored unless the oil remains good under these tests. MonaMotor Oil stands every test and meets every need.

The question of lubrication is rightly settled when you decide to give your motor the oil it needs—MonaMotor Oil.

Don't trifle with smallpox. The trifling goes too far. Many will discover to their sorrow, that Jenner was a great benefactor of the human race, and was not a man "responsible for injecting poison into millions of his fellow men."

Nineteen smallpox deaths in Washington, D. C., since January 1, worry the public health service, and, with cause. If an epidemic starts and makes headway, which it will not do in the capital of the nation, 19 deaths may soon grow into thousands.

An unfortunate woman, Mrs. Margaret Sloan, probably demented, killed her 17-year-old son and her 17-year-old daughter while they slept. The boy, deaf and dumb, was of unsound mind. His life meant misery to him and others. His mother says she killed her normal daughter also because "I knew I would have to die and I did not want to leave her here."

The woman failed in her effort to kill herself with the ax that killed her children. Her explanation to the police was, "It is my God-given right to kill my deficient boy, because I know it is better for him."

You shudder at this tragedy, and remember that once the heads of great religions acted upon the belief that it was their God-given right to kill those that disagreed with them, on questions of theology. In this belief tens of thousands were tortured and burned alive. At least that "God-given right to kill" has been withdrawn from religious leaders, except among a few savage tribes.

In civilization it is confined to insane mothers. There is comfort in that.

On board in the American steamer Wytheville, bound from Africa to Norfolk, Va., a vigorous rhinoceros broke out of its coop on deck. The crew took to the rigging, the rhinoceros took command of the ship. The heavy-footed beast smashed a few hatch coverings, as it charged around, gliding out of its caged eyes. Then it was lassoed and that was over.

The short reign of the rhinoceros reminds you of some revolutions in history. The rhinoceros didn't know the difference between bow and stern, tiller and main sail, yet he knew as much seamanship as some individuals that think they should govern, know about government. Like the rhinoceros, those individuals feel that all would be well if they could only take charge.

The Fayetteville Observer, with an editor of active conscience, will be published for 15 days without criminal news. Then readers will be asked how they like it. A majority will answer in words of the great Bacon, "Nothing concerning human beings can be foreign to me."

Can you imagine any editor leaving out the death of Cleopatra after the snake bite? That was suicide, therefore crime. Read Shakespeare's report of it.

Who would omit the killing of his best friend by Alexander the Great at a drunken banquet or Ravalliac's attack on the French king, or Ravalliac's horribly cruel death, winding up with the cooking and eating of part of his body.

Who would leave out the assassination of Lincoln, Garfield or McKinley? All that was crime news.

Would you refuse to print the strange case of the Titchborne claimant, the beheading of Louis the Sixteenth, Marie Antoinette, Charles the First, poor Lady Jane Grey's fate in the tower, the guillotining of Danton and his enemy Robespierre.

A Fatal Omission

From the Argonaut.

A few minutes after the alarm was given in the fire at Hotel Del Monte last year one of the guests found a group of friends that were watching the spectacle and chaffed them on their apparent excitement.

"There was nothing to be excited about," he said. "When the alarm sounded I jumped out of bed, lighted a cigarette, brushed my hair and took my time about dressing. I didn't like the knot in my necktie, so I tied it over again—that's how cool I was."

"Fine," one of his friends remarked, "but why didn't you put on your trousers?"

the burning alive of Giordano Bruno, or John Huss, the execution of Moore because of his Catholic religion, the murder of Mary, Queen of Scots, by her cousin Elizabeth, the "Virgin Queen," on that virgin's treatment of various gentlemen after they had ceased to be attracted by her royal virginity, or had been faithless to it? Could you leave all that out? Certainly not, although it's all crime news.

Men want the news. They want to understand human beings, and, to understand them, you must know what they do.

Von Hindenburg, the kaiser's fine old soldier, will roar as gently as any dove, now that he finds himself transformed into a president of the German republic. He plans to be inaugurated without any uniform, dressed in civilian's clothes, nothing to indicate that he still remains, as he does, commander in chief of the German army.

When things start, they move rapidly. Some time before 1914, von Hindenburg, an old soldier, straight

A little while afterwards he found himself at the head of the German army in the greatest war the world had seen, and hero of Germany. Old Law.

From the Wilkes Barre Times-Leader.

There's an old English maxim, by the famous old English Judge Coke, that "every dog is entitled to one bite."

Modern application of that ruling is to be found in a recent court decision in Los Angeles.

A dog took a nip out of a baker boy's arm. Damage suit was brought. The defendant said it was the dog's first bite and no one denied it.

Said the judge: "How shall a dog who never has manifested any vice be supposed by its owner to be of vicious character? There obviously must be a first bite, and hard as it may be upon the unfortunate victim of this, so to speak, maiden bite, he apparently is left without recourse."

In which ruling a fine sentiment was combined with common sense.

No Test.

From the Chicago Daily News.

A gruff old practitioner of the type of the last generation, who is the official physician of the schools of a nearby town, was examining the pupils recently.

With watch in hand he gripped the slender wrist of a little girl under test. "Hear that?" he asked, holding the timepiece at arm's length.

"No, sir," came the timid reply.

"Hear that?" he repeated, bringing it slightly nearer.

This was too much for the frightened kiddie, and she didn't reply.

The doctor brought the watch nearer and nearer, with no better results, then finally he jammed it up against her ear.

"Now, don't you hear that?" he asked.

There was the same monosyllabic reply, and with an air of deep disgust the old man held the watch to his own ear, exclaiming:

"Gosh, the old thing ain't going!"

AFTER HER BABY CAME

Mrs. Hollister Unable To Do Work for Six Months

Testimony of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health

MRS. HENRY HOLLISTER
WYANDOTTE, MICHIGAN

Wyandotte, Michigan.—"After my baby was born I did not do my own work for six months and could hardly take care of my own baby. I always had a pain in my right side and it was so bad I was getting round shoulders. I would feel well one day and then feel so bad for three or four days that I would be in bed. One Sunday my mother came to see how I was, and she said a friend told her to tell me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So the next day I got a bottle and before it was half taken I got relief. After I was well again I went to the doctor, and he asked me how I was getting along. I told him I was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and he said it did hurt any one to take it. I always commended the Vegetable Compound to others and I always have a bottle of it on hand."—Mrs. HENRY HOLLISTER, R. F. D. No. 1, Box 7, Wyandotte, Michigan.

Another Woman's Case

St. Paul, Minnesota.—"I have a little girl three years old and ever since her birth I have suffered with my back as if it were breaking in two, and bearing-down pains all the time. I also had dizzy spells. I had read several letters of women in the newspapers, and the druggist recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to my husband for me. As a result of taking it my back has stopped aching and the awful bearing-down feeling is gone. I feel stronger and do all of my housework and tend to my little girl. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for constipation. I have recommended these medicines to some of my friends and you may use this letter as a testimonial if you wish. I will be pleased to answer letters of other women if I can help them by telling them what this medicine has done for me."—Mrs. PRICES, 147 West Summit Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota.

What Was He?

Mother was out, and Amelia was putting on her best blouse, so six-year-old Johnny had to entertain Amelia's young man. As is the way with his kind, he began to ply the unfortunate caller with questions.

"Mr. Jinks," he began, "what is a popinjay?"

"Why—a popinjay is a—er—vain bird."

"Are you a bird, Mr. Jinks?"

"No, of course not."

"Well, that's funny. Mother said you were a popinjay and father said 'there was no doubt about you being a jay, and Amelia said there didn't seem much chance of your poppin', and now you say you aren't a bird at all."

Skunk Frozen to Track

F. L. Rice, a member of the section crew at Woolwich, Maine, reported one day last winter that as the men started over the track in the morning they saw a skunk on the track ahead of them. Drawing near, they discovered that it had been caught there by its fur being frozen to the frosty rail. Rice killed the skunk, and then it was quite a pull to free its carcass from the rail.
