

NEARLY INSANE AT TIMES

Mrs. Saunders Tells how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieved Troubles of Change of Life

Knoxville, Tenn.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound while going through the Change of Life. I was very nervous, could not sleep and had a melancholy spell. In fact, I was nearly insane at times and my memory was almost a blank. I was so weak I could not do my housework half of the time and suffered dreadfully with my back. My doctor said I would have to worry it out and I went through this for three years before I began taking the Vegetable Compound which I saw advertised. I think it was eight bottles that I took. It has been two years since I took any and I haven't had a doctor since for that trouble. I do all my washing and ironing and I have gained from 116 to 138 pounds. I feel so well I think I do not need any medicine now, but I advise all women who suffer physically and mentally as I did to give the Vegetable Compound a fair trial. I hope it will do as much for them as it did for me."—Mrs. T. A. SAUNDERS, 711 E. Depot Street, Knoxville, Tenn.

Montreal's Amphitheater

The amphitheater now nearing completion in Montreal for hockey and other indoor winter sports is designed to be one of the largest and best-equipped buildings of its kind in the world. Ten miles of pipes are laid over the arena surface and after the first ice is supplied it will take only a matter of an hour or two to make a new surface, so that after each hockey game the ice may be hardened at will.

Alarmists Say Japanese Plan To Answer U. S. Maneuvers

Washington NEA Service, by Charles P. Stewart

Militarists, who abound here, are all excited over reports that Japan's reply to the United States' Hawaiian naval maneuvers is to be a set of maneuvers of her own, to show how easily she could beat such a fleet as this country's—of course in Far Eastern waters.

It isn't likely the Japanese think they could defeat America anywhere in the vicinity of the latter's home shores. Possibly they don't think they can defeat her at all. That idea may be merely a complex some people have got.

The expected Japanese maneuvers are said to be scheduled for May 27. This makes the Washington militarists' complex worse. May 27 is the anniversary of the Battle of Tsushima, in which Japan's fleet destroyed Russia's, just 20 years ago.

"An apt reminder," say the militarists, "of the great sea fighters the Japanese are and how necessary it is to be ready for them."

With all due respect for Japan's courage and not disputing she can lick any fleet in the state of disrepair Russia's was in, the truth is that the Japanese are known among seafaring men as poor shipbuilders, bad sailors and perfectly impossible hands in an engine room.

The classic example of Japan's shipbuilding is that one of her crack 16,000-ton passenger liners, well known on the Pacific and still in service—with the Lord only knows what weight of concrete and pig iron in her hold, to keep her keel underneath her.

This craft's sister ship, which preceded her, was built in England. Her Japanese owners tried her out satisfactorily. Then they told the English builders they wanted another boat but would like to examine the plans first, with a view to possible modifications.

The builders, suspecting the Japanese of intending to do their own building from the English plans, made certain subtle changes before handing them over.

Sure enough, the new vessel was a Japanese product. Launching day arrived. The ship slid down the ways, hit the water and instantly turned bottom side up.

Later she was induced to assume a more dignified attitude, but it

The Harvard Lampon.

An assistant postmaster general has decided to bar the current issue of the Lampon, humorous Harvard publication, from the mails because it published a picture of the Goddess of Liberty which was, according to the assistant postmaster general, not sufficiently draped.

The assistant postmaster general is right; while Truth is occasionally portrayed in this country as naked, Liberty is usually heavily veiled and obscured, and while a dear old girl for whom brave spirits die, she is often in her heavy underwear and gashes not worth the mortality that she cost.

be made, but practically without exception they lack the instinct of gentleness with machinery. "Cruelly" treated, it misbehaves.

Japan beat China in 1895. It looked wonderful but now we know there were few civilized countries—even little ones—that couldn't have done it. She beat Russia—on paper—but had to accept the best terms she could get, because in a few more months she herself would have been beaten.

She took Kiao Chau from the Germans but the latter were outnumbered 1000 to 1.

To hear the Washington militarists preaching "preparedness," you'd think they considered Japan well-nigh invincible.

But ask them, as experts, what showing they believe she'd make against a first-class fighting power, and their answer is that nobody knows—she might perform pretty creditably, or she might crumple at the first impact.

Married Teachers.

Ann Arbor Times News.

Married women wishing to be employed as teachers in the Bay City public schools, the board of education having rejected a resolution to hire only single ones.

The decision appeals to us as wise. Education is not a philanthropic institution, intended to provide young women with positions. It is too big, too important, too necessary, to be fettered with silly arbitrary rules. It is not a mechanical device, which can be set in operation by moving a lever. There must be system, but in the long run personality and personal ability are the important factors to be considered.

Teaching is a profession. It is likewise something of an art, and it most certainly can be considered a career. And in this day and age a woman is entitled to a career, even though she has yielded to the human impulse to take unto herself a husband. Capable teachers are needed, and if capable ones happen to be married, can that circumstance be considered a sound reason for rejecting their applications?

There is nothing disrespectful or dishonorable about spinsterhood, but if any profession is to place a premium on it, let something besides education lead the way.

Notes of a musical instrument that are believed to have floated in the air of Egypt 3,000 years ago, were reproduced at the University of Pennsylvania by Professor Jean B. Beck, who restored a small flute found in the tomb of a noble of the time of the pharaohs. The air enters through slits in the sides of the reeds instead of at the ends, as in modern instruments. Each note and its octave are sounded equally loud at the same time, quite unlike any present-day instrument.
