

What You Can Do with the John Deere ND

Save Money —cultivate two rows at a time. The ND takes the place of two single-row cultivators and saves the wages of one man. What would that saving during ten years mean to you?

Better Work —do uniform work over the entire field. The front shovels are in line with the axle—they follow the wheels down into depressions. The rig shift is parallel—shovels always face squarely to their work, cutting out full width—no slicing, gouging or trailing.

Easier Work —dodge easily and quickly on crooked rows—rigs and wheels are controlled by convenient foot levers. By means of a simple patented device you can set the ND for (1) pivotal wheels and shifting rigs; (2) pivotal wheels only; (3) rigid wheels and shifting rigs, or (4) rigid wheels and rigid rigs.

Come in and see this popular, long-lived cultivator.

Balloon Tires or Solid Tires

It's GASOLINE that makes them turn

BALLOON tires may give all that is claimed for them in passenger comfort. Solid tires may stand up better in heavy hauling. But it takes gasoline to make the wheels turn.

You want the kind of gasoline that will give you a quick-starting motor, full power and the greatest mileage per gallon. Red Crown—the balanced gasoline—has been built up to meet these specifications.

Its low boiling point fractions guarantee a quick-starting motor. Its heavier fractions, which burn a little more slowly, develop full power and pressure to the end of the stroke. It burns up so completely that the oil in your crankcase is not quickly diluted with unburned gasoline and little carbon accumulates. You can operate on a lean, economical mixture and get big mileage per gallon.

For many years Red Crown has been the standard fuel of motor-wise Nebraskans. They like its uniform good qualities. Their habit of stopping for gasoline where they see the Red Crown Sign is based on preference born of experience. They always get obliging service and full measure of Red Crown and of Polarine that gives motors protective lubrication. Get this good habit.
