They are carrying complete lines of the very latest hats and dresses, giving O'Neill one of the finest shops of its kind outside of Omaha and the larger cities. A beauty parlor is contemplated as an addition to the new shop.

The operators of Dreamland, a dance pavilion near Norfolk, have been enjoined on complaint of Norfolk citizens from holding Sunday dances at the place. An appeal to the supreme court may be taken by the operators, among whom in the record appears the name of F. J. Shmeler. The complainants made no objection to the dance except that Sunday dancing was a bad thing for the youth of Norfolk.

The Misses Rose Mary and Ruth Ann Biglin, accompanied by their aunts, the Misses Genevieve and Mary Biglin, went down to Jackson and Sioux City Saturday morning for a visit with relatives. Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Biglin, accompanied by little Bill, drove down to join them Saturday afternoon. Mr. Biglin returned home Wednesday and the Misses Genevieve and Mary Biglin will come Thursday night. Rose Mary, Ruth Ann, little Bill and Mrs. Biglin will remain for a fortnight's visit at Jackson.

A letter received from State Sheriff Condit in response to several protests from O'Neill over the appointment of Glen Anderson as a special state deputy sheriff that Mr. Anderson was not commissioned at the request of any Holt county citizens or of State Game Warden Jenkins of Neligh, but that Mr. Anderson came to him from Elmer Thomas, federal enforcement officer for the state. The letter also states that Mr. Anderson was merely employed as a "Stool Pigeon" to make purchases of liquor and was not authorized to make arrests or to act in any capacity except that specified. Sheriff Condit also stated that Mr. Anderson, one of two appointed from Holt county, had been supplied with a small amount of expense money and had made one "buy" since leaving Lincoln, since which time the state sheriff has not heard from him. The state sheriff also has requested the mayor of O'Neill to instruct the chief of police to take up Mr. Anderson's commission. Anderson is now residing three miles northwest of Butte in Boyd county.

Extension of the bus line service now operating between O'Neill and Lake Andes, and the institution of a special Pullman sleeper service to the east of O'Neill on the Northwestern are possibilities of the near future. E. J. Velder, manager of the bus line, is planning to extend the bus route with a daily round trip service between O'Neill and Winner, South Dakota, connecting with a feeder line to be operated from Bonesteel to Mitchell, South Dakota, by way of Lake Andes, until the new Missouri river bridge near Wheeler is opened for traffic, when the Mitchell bus will operate from Fairfax instead of Bonesteel. Negotiations also are being conducted with the Pullman company to set out a sleeper at O'Neill when the new bus line is inaugurated, so that eastbound passengers on the Northwestern from O'Neill may retire at 9 o'clock or 10 o'clock in the evening if they so desire. Bus connections also are to be arranged so that passengers from O'Neill may connect at Andes with the Platte-Yankton bus line, making it possible to reach Yankton, Sioux Falls or Sioux City by bus the same day.

FISH HOOKS AND IKE WALTON CHATTER

The local Ike Waltons held a meeting in the district court room at the court house Friday evening to listen to the report of the committee on constitution and by-laws and to earn from Major General James McPharlin of the east half of the county how the crow hunt which ends July 1, is progressing. General McPharlin reports that the hunt was progressing most favorably, but for fear that spies from the west half of the county might be present in disguise refrained from stating just how many crows had been massacred and how many crow eggs destroyed. The General however informed those present of his new cure for egg-sucking bird dogs. The remedy, which he tried out on one of his own dogs, consisted simply of feeding the dog about a case of crow eggs, since which time the dog howls and runs and hides everytime he sees an egg or hears a cackle or caw.

The mortality rate among the denizens of Lake Andes is expected to be unusually high the remainder of this week. Herb Hammond, Ira Moss, Mike McCarthy, Will Martin, Ed Allen and George McCarthy started for the lake Wednesday morning, undaunted by the reports of bridges and culverts washed out in Tuesday's storm in Boyd county and along the Missouri river. The gentlemen were equipped with an excellent assortment of frogs and artificial baits and Herb took his new reel along. Mr. Martin, who has made several trips to the lake in the last week, will guide the fishermen to the places in which the bass lurk.

The state at last has taken a step looking toward the preservation of fishing and hunting rights to the general public before all the available territory is taken over by the wealthy for exclusive private preserves. A mile of lake frontage has been purchased from private owners on Rat and Beaver lakes in Cherry county near Brownlee, for a public hunting and fishing ground. The purchase was made through the efforts of the Valentine chapter of the Ike Waltons. This policy should be continued and frontage secured on many of the lakes of Holt county before it is too late.

Bill Martin and Charley Wrede were over to Lake Andes Saturday and Sunday, just in time to get in on some excellent bass fishing as the fish were beginning to bite for the first time this year. They brought back some nice ones. Also a number of bluegills and crappies. This is Mr. Martin's second trip this spring to Andes.

The Izaak Walton League of Bloomfield has secured a lease on a tract of land near the place and is going ahead with plans for the creation of an artificial lake forty or fifty acres in extent and which will be fed from wells and from a hydraulic ram in Bazile creek.

"77" Wade has equipped himself with a complete new outfit of fishing tools, including an anti-backlash and level winding reel, a jointed casting rod and other juggers too numerous to mention. Bass, bullheads and croppies along the Elkhorn will please take notice.
