on his crest, no beauty in his caw. His flying tactics have no grace while flopping through the sky; it is a most outlandish pace—the crow is far from spry. But still his numbers, far from few, grow greater every year; each day a larger black-winged crew is raised to caw and jeer. We wonder why and this we found—it's mighty queer but true—he has a policy that's sound and always pulls him through. He is alert to every need confronting thieving crows; to every danger he gives heed—no hunter gets too close. If we would heed as does the crow the pitfalls in our way, we'd have a virtue few folks know to help us every day.

FRANCIS WELSH RECEIVES COMPENSATION INSURANCE

Docket 11, Number 370, O'Neill, Nebraska.
Francis Welsh, by Wm. Welsh, next friend vs. R. L. Arbuthnot. Insurance Carrier: General Cas. & Sur. Co.
On July 7, 1927, while in the employ of defendant as a laborer, plaintiff bumped his right knee on the cement floor of the garage while changing a wheel on a Chevrolet car. The next day he went to the doctor.

On July 16th the doctor sent him to the hospital at Norfolk for an operation on the knee. A petition was filed December 12, 1927, and a hearing was had in O'Neill February 7, 1928.
Compensation was allowed for temporary disability from and including July 15, 1927, to and including August 14, 1927, at $8.34 each week; together with the following medical, hospital and traveling expense and medicines: $4.45; Campbell Clinic, Norfolk $35.00; Lutheran Hospital, Norfolk, $37.25; Dr. J. P. Gilligan, O'Neill, $51.00; traveling expenses to Norfolk, $16.40.

PRACTICAL ACHIEVEMENT.

In placing before the people the reasons why the government should continue under the control of the Republican party, that party wishes to place its claim on the basis of practical achievement.
If a policy works and produces prosperity, the party believes it is a good one, even if theoretically arguments may seem against it. And if a system does not work, it needs modification.

The party points back to the history of the past fifty years, and asks the people to note that when business depressions have occurred, they have usually been under the administration of the Democratic party. They flirted with greenbackism, and they went in for free silver, and they tried out free trade. All these policies when put to the test or threatened, failed to show themselves adapted to practical life. The people turned back to the Republicans, as the party hat was bound to follow good business policies that would promote general welfare.

To-day it is hard to say what the Democratic party does stand for, except to oppose many of the things that the Republican party wants to do, and which according to the tests of practical judgment, would remove difficulties in the way of business and industry.

The Republican party stands for low taxes and government economy, for putting the government functions under good business management, for giving business freedom to expand so it can keep labor busy and pay good wages. It feels that the wheels of industry turn faster and more regularly when there is not too much political interference with them. It favors all possible help to agriculture. It levies a protective tariff so that the home industries will have the best chance to sell their product to the American people. Under those policies the country has prospered and it will continue to do so.
