RITCHIE WANTS YOUNG MEN TO RUN DEMO PARTY

Gordon, Neb., (UP)—William Ritchie, Jr., candidate for democratic national committee from Nebraska, in opposition to Arthur Mullen, incumbent, has issued a statement here answering criticisms of his attacks upon some past history of the party.

Ritchie had charged that the democratic party in the state has long been run by machines, and that the outside members had no choice in its affairs. He also said that the opposition between the "Bryan" and "Hitchcock" factions had been detrimental to party interests.

Ritchie has maintained that the party should be taken from the hands of the two old "warring" factions, and placed in the hands of the younger members of the party who would forget factional feuds.

SONS AVER THEIR FATHER IS INCOMPETENT

Hastings, Neb., (UP)—Franklin county district court sustained a plea of counsel for Walter Gray of Hastings that Franklin in county courts have no jurisdiction in a case because Gray is a resident of Adams county. The case is a suit in which Gray's sons seek to have their father judged incompetent and a guardian appointed.

In 1925, Gray divided his property and money which was said to be quite a large amount, among his five sons and a daughter and went to California. He retained $20,000 worth of personal property, according to his statement. After buying a home he found that living expenses were high and he became short of money. He returned to Nebraska and tried to persuade his sons to return some of the property. As a result, the five sons joined in a suit to have a guardian appointed to conserve the father's estate. Gray is 79 years old and is now living in Hastings with his second wife, whom he married in California.

The suit now becomes a contest to decide in which county the case will be tried. The sons gave notice of appeal.

SPECIALIZATION IS CAUSE OF MAMMOTH EXTINCTION, HE SAYS

Cleveland.—Involuntary race suicide caused the great hairy mammoths and rhinoceroses whose fleshy carcasses and bones are found well preserved in the great natural ice-box of north Siberia, to become extinct, Prof. I. T. Tolmachoff, of the Carnegie Museum, Pittsburg, told the Paleontological society.

Discovery of the frozen remains of the mammoth caused this Arctic animal to take a prominent position in Siberian folklore and Chinese legend at the time that European nature philosophers were at a loss to reconstruct the animals whose gigantic bones were discovered in various parts of Europe. In fact the ivory of their tusks entered commerce as early as the fourth century B. C., and even now half of the marketed ivory has its origin in the mammoth localities of northern Siberia.

Professor Tolmachoff's idea is that the great animals became over specialized and therefore died out.

"Examination of plants found in their stomachs," Professor Tolmachoff said, "shows that the flora of their pasturage was not essentially different from the present, and that the climate of the mammoth age was not much warmer. It could not have been much warmer or the preservation of carcasses would have been impossible. Adaptation to surroundings is shown by the wide distribution, the great number, and the splendid physical condition of the animals thus preserved. All were well fed, often overtired, having a thick layer of fat under their skin. Extinction by man can not be accepted. Extreme specialization affected the reproductive abilities of the race and brought about its gradual extinction, although at the same time individuals might be in splendid physical condition.

Law-Respecting Judge.

From the Milwaukee Journal. If a prize were given annually for the best contribution to jurisprudence, as prizes are given for the best in literature and in efforts for world peace, our vote would go to Judge J. W. Woodrough of the federal court at Omaha. For here is a judge who holds firmly to the time tried principle that trial by jury should be given to any man accused of crime. The case before him happened to be of that variety that has become so numerous—prohibition violation. There seemed every justification for his granting the plea before him. But this judge refused to use the injunction, even though the Voistead act provides for injunction and contempt proceedings. He said that these provisions call upon a judge to do what the constitution expressly forbids.

Auto "Hoard" Costly

From Liberty. The great difficulty in finding a place to keep an automobile 30 years ago may be imagined from the trials of a New York automobile owner of 1897 who could get no space in the boarding stables operating at that time because those in charge were afraid the new contraption would frighten the horses, as pointed out by Betty Shannon and Elsie Johns. "In despair," write the authors, "the automobile pioneer put an advertisement in the paper for a private stable. He had several answers to this, one from a head groom in the service of one of New York's

HAPPIER.

George Elliott. Every year strips us of at least one vain expectation, and teaches us to reckon some solid good in its stead. I never will believe that our youngest days are our happiest. What a miserable augury for the progress of the race and the destination of the individual, if the more matured and enlightened state is the less happy one!

All this to prove that we are happier than when we were 7 years old, and that we shall be happier when we are 40 than we are now, which I call a comfortable doctrine, and one worth trying to believe!

Proof Positive.

From Answers, London. When Wetherall was leaving his club one night he discovered that somebody had accidentally taken his new umbrella and left a comparative wreck in its place. On the following day he met a friend and was rather astonished to see that he had the new umbrella on his arm. "Look here," said Wetherall. "That's my umbrella you've got there." "It's not," declared his friend. "I bought it yesterday." "Praps I'm mistaken, then," remarked Wetherall. "But would you do me a slight favor, old chap?" "Only too pleased," cried the other. "Then give me that silver band off the handle of your umbrella," said Wetherall. "It's got my name."

Belief was expressed here that the corn was "cubbed" too early.

MORTGAGE SALE IS CONFIRMED

Case Appealed from Knox County—Foreclosure Law Was Attacked

Lincoln, Neb., (Special)—The supreme court has confirmed the sale under foreclosure of mortgage property of D. L. Anderson, in Knox county. The mortgage was held by the Conservative Savings and Loan association, of Omaha. It was resisted on the ground that no appraisal of the value of the property had been made before sale. This constituted an attack on the statute which repealed the old law requiring appraisals.

Anderson's lawyers contended that it was unconstitutional, because when it was in the form of a bill before the legislature it contained only the number of the sections that it was proposed to amend, whereas the constitution requires that the subject matter be clearly expressed in the title.

The court, however, held that the numbered sections contained sufficient notice as to the contents of the bill, especially as the first line of the bill contained a subtitle stating this specifically. The court holds, therefore, that an appraisal is not a prerequisite to a sale under mortgage foreclosure or under execution.

The appraisal feature was repealed because it chilled the loaning of money under foreclosure, the old law requiring that the property must bring at least two-thirds of the appraised value, and provided that this valuation should be made by freeholders of the county, meaning the land owners' neighbors.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

ASTOUNDING POWER FACT

All the crashes of lightning in the world produce, at any given time, power equal to less than one-twentieth of the light and power companies in the United States, according to computations based on estimates of F. W. Peck, Jr., consulting engineer for the General Electric company.

There is an average of 1,800 thunderstorms in progress in the world at any one instant, according to Mr. Peck. These give 300,000 flashes per hour, of 1,500,000 horsepower operating continuously.

This is compared with the 32,500,000 horsepower capacity of generating stations in the United States.
