The Richardson county officers returned to O'Neill Friday night, but explained, on encountering Dr. Lubker's attorney, that they were on their way west looking for cattle thieves. They then went on west to Atkinson to spend the night and returned Saturday morning to O'Neill. Driving up to the doctor's office the two men went in and grabbed the physician. The latter stage of the abduction, as Dr. Lubker was hustled into the car, was witnessed by County Treasurer William Conklin who at first the county's reign.
