

Goodness of Tea Imparts Health
And Vigor to Exploration Heroes

AGAINST THE ANTARCTIC BARRIER (INSET)—COM. RICHARD E. BYRD

NEW YORK—In the drama of polar exploration and adventure, tea has played an important part. Commander Richard E. Byrd, the first to pilot an airplane over the North pole, and the second to attain the top of the world, will rely largely on the refreshing qualities of tea to sustain him and the members of his crew on their perilous journey into the south polar regions. Recognition given not only by Byrd, but by Peary, Amundsen, and other explorers, to tea as a sustaining beverage, a bulletin from the Tea Association of America points out, only goes to justify its use by pioneers and trail-blazers the world over. "Tommy Atkins, the Canadian lumberjack, the Australian bushwhacker, all have been great tea drinkers," the bulletin declares. "Peary on his dash to the Pole over ice hummocks and in the teeth of blizzards, found in a cup of hot tea the 'punch' needed to forge another few miles onward. With the mercury registering 50 or 60 below zero, the heroic Amundsen relied on tea to carry him forward on his conquest of the South pole. "It is significant that these explorers have depended on tea, rather than rum, in the attainment of their objective, for if the last ounce of human energy and courage is ever required, it is on a dash over the polar ice wastes. "Similarly, the American business man and the American worker, when they find themselves losing heart and facing the zero hour, are coming to rely more and more on tea when the call comes to go over the top."

HOW THOSE GERMAN FRAULEINS KEEP YOUTHFUL FIGURES

Modern Germany tells its future mothers to get out of the kitchen into the sunshine. The fraulein of today is different from her sister of pre-war days. Today she holds her own in the field of sports and is, as a matter of fact patterning herself as closely as she can to the American girl shown in the movies. The German girl of today in dress, figure and deportment is an entirely new creature in an environment the like of which was unheard of a decade ago. The photo shows a group of school-girls going thru part of their regular physical training. (Herbert, N. Y.)

From Soup to Nuts with Cheese
Is Feature of Radio Series

MRS. GOUDISS BROADCASTS RECIPES FROM THE KITCHEN

The modern housewife plans her meals from soup to nuts, by radio. The general subject of foods, always of first interest to women, has become as highly specialized as the science of mathematics, and housewives are learning the importance and various uses of each of the food elements which go to make up the balanced meal for the family. Cheese is the latest food to go on the air! Now all the subjects relating to this important food element, once considered merely a condiment for the epicures, will be broadcast three days weekly over a vast national network of stations covering the nation. Cheese as a health-builder, as a unique American food, with all its hundreds of ramifications, will be discussed on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday mornings by Mrs. Alberta M. Goudiss, nationally known food expert. The national broadcasting of scientific and instructive information about food products is the latest service provided by modern manufacturers. Exact information about the value and uses of cheese is the product of extensive research laboratories and a corps of dieticians and food experts of the Kraft-Phenix laboratories. At 10 a. m., Central Standard time, three days weekly, housewives all over the United States will be tuning in to hear new recipes, cheese dishes, discoveries, and cheese additions to the old menus, for scientific information about the uses and value of cheese as a health-builder for the family. Mrs. Goudiss will present a seven months' series of talks on cheese, the most authentic and interesting information discovered and tested, or compiled in the several scientific experimental laboratories and the Home Economics kitchen of the Kraft-Phenix Company. The network over which the cheese talks will be heard each Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday includes the following stations: at 11 a. m., Eastern time: WJZ, New York; WJB, Detroit; WBZA, Boston; WLW, Cincinnati. At 10 a. m., Central time: KWK, St. Louis. At 11 a. m., Eastern time: WHAM, Rochester; WBZ, Springfield; KDEA, Pittsburgh. At 11:15 a. m., Central time: KYW, Chicago.
