CAMEL CIGARETTES

WHY CAMELS ARE THE BETTER CIGARETTE

- Camels are made of the choicest tobaccos grown.
- The Camel blend of Domestic and Turkish tobaccos has never been equaled.
- Camels are mild and mellow.
- They do not tire the taste.
- They leave no cigarette after-taste.
- Camels have a delightful fragrance that is pleasing to everyone.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Both the House and Senate have been working at full speed this week. The Senate still has under consideration the Farm Bill. During the week, they disposed, temporarily, of the chief bone of contention in the bill when they retained the Debuture Plan. President Hoover had opposed it and had sent a memorandum to the Senate against it. Thirteen western Republican senators combined with all but four of the Democratic senators prevented its elimination from the bill.

This vote has been hailed in the press as a defeat of the Administration in the Senate. Whether the defeat is temporary or permanent remains to be seen. The feeling here seems to be that public reaction will be favorable to the President. Many of the western farm leaders are in the city working against the Debuture and for the House bill. The latter places both responsibility and power in the hands of the President and that is where the farm leaders say they want it placed.

The bill will probably pass the Senate during the coming week. It will still have a rough way to travel before becoming law. First, the two Houses must meet in a conference through conferees and agree on an adjustment of their differences. That is not always easy as it involves not only a correction of many small matters but in many instances rewriting the provisions of the bill with the inevitable compromises. The House will probably refuse to accept the Debuture Plan. It was not discussed during the campaign; neither candidate held it to be the basis of farm relief and its injection into the bill may seriously jeopardize any farm legislation. It is probable, however, that a farm bill without the Debuture will be a law by June first.

Since Tuesday, the House has had the proposed readjustment of the tariff before it. About fifteen per cent, to twenty per cent. of the old rates are changed, mostly upward. It is not necessary for me to discuss the provisions of the bill. The public press has done that. When it was first made public, probably every member found rates in it that he thought objectionable. Serious study is now being given to the bill and most members are reserving judgment until a full study reveals its advantages and disadvantages. The Republicans met in conference on Friday. The question of procedure, amendments and changes were all discussed but no conclusion was reached. The House membership is generally divided into three groups. First, those who want to accept it as written by the Committee, without amendment. Second, a group generally favorable to it but feeling that it could be bettered by a change of some items. In this group are those who feel that certain of the farm schedules could be strengthened. Then, there are those who feel that any tariff bill is wrong and they will oppose this or any tariff bill to the end.

The bill, over four hundred pages, will be before the House for the next two weeks at least. Its ultimate passage appears certain.

Lips One Inch from Mouthpiece Enables Others to Hear You Best

Talking directly into the mouthpiece with your lips about one inch away enables the person at the other end of the line to hear your voice clearly.

Every additional inch the lips are away from the mouthpiece makes it increasingly difficult for the person with whom you are talking to hear you.

The value of telephone service depends to a considerable extent on how it is used.

PLAINVIEW MONUMENT WORKS HAS FINE STOCK

(Plainview News.)

The Plainview Monument Works, owned and conducted by R. J. Jewell & Sons, is a business institution which has grown of late years to a point where it now commands the attention of the entire public of northeast Nebraska. We had the pleasure of visiting this monument works on Monday afternoon and were more than surprised when shown the large stocks of granite and marble on hand. Several car loads have been received this spring, which runs their investment over the twenty thousand dollar mark, and places this enterprising company in position to compete with the work turned out in the large cities. James Ulrich, who learned his trade in Germany, is head stone cutter, and is surpassed by but few in that line in the entire state. He has been working here for the past six years and is a past master when it comes to carving out inscriptions and designs of every kind. Many orders are now ready to be set, and include orders from almost every town in this section of the state. Theisen Brothers of Osmond, have a fine job which is now ready for delivery. Wm. Rohlf of Bloomfield has a thousand dollar stone completed, while fine jobs are to be delivered shortly to the Florian Fuchs estate at Pierce and the Ketelsen family at Madison. The display yard contains stones of almost every description, including both foreign and domestic, among which are shown the new two-tone effects and designs cut with the sand process. The Plainview Monument Works are prepared to meet the requirements of anything wanted in their line, and through years of faithful service have earned a reputation which insures fair and square treatment at the hands of the buying public. With every job delivered goes their guarantee of workmanship and material, which should carry considerable weight with people when buying anything from a grave marker to a high priced monument. The News is pleased to see a business like this in Plainview, and does not hesitate to recommend the Jewell Monument Works to the people of northeast Nebraska. This company will treat you right and give you your money's worth with each and every order. Advertisement.

Wales Buys Champion Scotch Bull To Head Herd on Canadian Ranch

CALGARY, ALBERTA—The Prince of Wales has purchased Balaorn Rotax, champion two-year old Shorthorn bull of Scotland for $2,200. The animal will be added to the breeding herd on the prince's ranch at High River, Alta., according to Prof. W. L. Carlyle, superintendent of the farm who completed the deal.

The bull was bought in a sale of livestock in Calgary, attended by breeders from all parts of the United States and Canada. It is said to be one of the finest Shorthorns ever shipped to North America from the British Isles. It was raised on the famous breeding establishment of F. L. Wallace of Meldrum, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, and was in a shipment of seventeen Shorthorn bulls and fourteen cows sent to Western Canada recently.

Prince Edward's ranch comprises 4,000 acres in the foothills of the Rocky mountains and represents an investment of $250,000 in stock, buildings, and equipment. The prince maintains an up-to-date ranch house in which he lives on his visits to the farm.

The prince's ranch has become one of the foremost livestock breeding establishments in Western Canada in recent years. Some of the finest stock from the royal farms in England has been brought out to build up the herds. The prince specializes on Shorthorn cattle, Shropshire sheep, Dartmoor ponies, and race horses. Sales of surplus animals are held each year with the object of distributing blooded animals over Western Canada to improve the native strains.
