Bryce F. Betzer and C. C. Rich, both of Omaha, representing the Travelers Indemnity and the Travelers Fire insurance companies respectively, were in the city the past few days injecting some pep into insurance interests here.

Dennis Harrington, a former resident of this community, who with his wife and children have been visiting the past two weeks with relatives and renewing old acquaintances, expects to leave the last of the week for their home at Los Angeles.

Supervisor James returned to the ranch this evening to don his working attire and jump in tomorrow to the big job of branding. The boys look after the ordinary run of things on the ranch but when a real job needs attention, wait for dad to show up.

Pat Donohoe was over in the Phoenix neighborhood Thursday, which was not the best kind of a day to be anywhere on the road. Farmers in that neighborhood have put up fodder for winter feed, as is the case in most of the drouth affected area.

The stiff breeze Tuesday night, preceding a good rain, gave a touch of early day scenes when homestead shanties were tumbled over the prairie by high winds. A "house on wheels" at a road camp on highway 11 southwest of Amelia was seen upset by passers by next morning.

A benefit show at the Royal a few nights ago for the Father Flannigan home resulted in $30.30 to go to that institution, which is the total receipts. The home is located a few miles out of Omaha, non-denominational in character and is for orphan boys or those in need of home and training.

I. J. Dunn of Omaha, here looking after legal matters, recalls with some satisfaction and a bit of twinkle of the eye that after the lapse of thirty-five years when he nominated W. J. Bryan for president on the 16 to 1 platform, that old war cry is being raised abroad as a possible means of reviving industry.

George, the little two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Haddin Geary was taken to the hospital at Norfolk Sunday where he underwent an operation for appendicitis. It was found that his appendix had bursted before reaching the hospital. He was in very serious condition for a time but late reports are to the effect that he is getting along fine.

The official record of actions taken will appear in these columns at an early date.

Mike Englehaup was over from the southwest country yesterday. He tells us Charles Cavanaugh's house, 17 miles out from town, was destroyed by fire Saturday afternoon about 3 o'clock. The folks were away except the two daughters Helen and Gertrude. The fire caught from an oil stove. The house was a frame structure 20x24 one and a half story high.

Gotlieb Bauer of Deloit township and a brother-in-law of Martin Bazelman, has been in the city this past week. Mr. Bauer lives in the southeast corner of the county. He says that section felt the drouth the past season as did others and the usual fruitful yields of that part of Holt are lacking this season, although they are not as hard hit as some places.

Dick Hubert, living north of O'Neill on the Eagle, sustained the loss of his truck Tuesday night by fire. It was burned on the highway near the Midway store. Mrs. Hubert who was with her husband in the truck sustained some injury but what extent we have not learned. Information that comes to this office is that the truck rolled into the ditch by the side of the road and upset, catching fire. It was empty.

The sale of a wagon was once an every day affair with the dealers in O'Neill. Now it may be considered of sufficient importance to let the neighbors know about it, like the woman in the parable who called in the neighbors to rejoice at finding the lost coin. Frank Biglin furnished a customer a new wagon the past week, it being a "repeat order." The first order was fourteen years ago, but that is a small matter in the wagon trade. Wagons rarely get off the premises these days and with such usages last for years.

Mrs. Elmer Gibson was in from her home some twenty miles south on highway 13 Monday, making us a business call. Mrs. Gibson has a pleasant farm home in a fine country and is much pleased at the completion of the highway past her place. This highway gives the people of the rich Cache creek valley connection with the county seat by as fine a stretch of road as will be found in the state, and to those who knew the conditions of the roads in years past when at times—and most of the time—they were impassible, this highway will be of inestimable value.

Barnyard Fowl Supply Milady's Fine Plumes

Washington, Oct. 1.—If the many sportsman or nature lover does not think his wife looks her best in the latest fashionable flurry of feathers, he can not disapprove on legal grounds, warn officials of the American Game Association.

While some years ago nature prepared the beautiful plumes for milady's hats, credit the plumes in the present comeback of feathered style must go to human artistry—the unsuspecting cooperation of the barnyard fowl. Now that strict laws exist against killing wild birds for their plumage or using the feathers of most wild birds, it would be a plausible coincidence if the chicken which graced the family board today should furnish the charming, wild-looking ornament for that new hat in the family closet tomorrow.

Forest Fires Call for Latest Methods of War

The modern system of fighting a forest fire is based on the latest methods of war, says a bulletin of the American Game Association. Lookouts in towers many miles apart today can locate a fire on combat maps instantly and with absolute accuracy. This is done with the aid of instruments and a system of triangulation checked by telephone between two or more towers.

As the fall danger period approaches, state foresters and the federal forest service are prepared with increasingly efficient fire-fighting machinery and organizations to mobilize 1,000 men if necessary on short notice, speed them by motor to any part of the forest over a network of trails and surround a blaze before it is well under way. In isolated sections men and material may be landed from airplanes, and many organizations are prepared to scout large fires from the air and direct activities by radio.

As another fire-fighting measure forestry officials are reminding the people that such heavy expenditures are made necessary almost wholly by human carelessness.

TRICKS of MAGIC EXPLAINED by Will L. Lindhorst

TELLING THE TIME WITH A QUARTER, A STRING AND A GLASS

Tie a string around a quarter and hold the quarter suspended over and slightly inside a glass. Grasp the string between the index finger and the thumb, and place it directly over the pulse of the thumb. Hold your hand perfectly rigid, and the quarter will begin to swing to and fro like a pendulum. The arc made by the swinging quarter will slowly increase in width until the quarter strikes the side of the glass, and it will strike the number of times closest to the hour of the day. If the time should be twenty minutes past one, the quarter will strike the glass once, and should the time be quarter of two, the quarter will strike twice. It is necessary to hold the string over the pulse of the thumb, as this is the motivating force controlling the movements of the quarter.
