Supervisor Filings

The Second, Fourth and Sixth districts elect supervisors this year. There are five republican candidates who have filed with the County Clerk the past week, no democrats appearing as yet in these districts.

In the second district the present cordial and accomodating supervisor, L. C. McKim, is again a candidate. J. B. Long also files as a candidate in this district.

L. E. Skidmore, long and ably representing the Fourth district and familiar with every detail of county business, is again a candidate.

John Steinhauer, the reliable and genial supervisor from the Sixth district has filed for renomination and is opposed for a place on the ballot by Richard Moon.

Services At the Presbyterian Church

Sunday School 10:00. Morning Worship 11:00—"The Great Human Tragedy." Evening Service 7:30—The Young People will have a large part in this service.

These are the first services of the Lenten season. Our present problems and difficulties root back and become identified with the evil that crucified our Saviour. So our worship helps us to become one with him in Victory. We invite you.

H. D. Johnson, Pastor.

NOTICE TO DEPOSITORS

John and William Turner and Russell Hervey, all of Brewster in Blaine county, were assessed more than $700 in fines and damages in county court at Ainsworth for killing a deer. Each was fined $100 and costs and Hervey was charged with $300 damages payable to the state for actual destruction of the deer. The arrests followed investigation of a report of F. A. Baldwin of the state game commission that someone on the Calamus river in southern Brown county possessed a fresh set of five prong antlers. State Game Warden W. A. Monett looked into the matter and the arrests followed.

Banquet With a Colonial Setting

To the strains of a Colonial March, sixty juniors and seniors of St. Mary's dressed in charming colonial fashion, marched into the gymnasium, now transformed into a colonial mansion and garden. A typical Virginian dinner was served. The guests of honor were Rt. Rev. Consignor Cassidy, Father Leahy and Miss Cullen. The colonial dining room was decorated in the senior class colors, azure and sand. Huge chandeliers hung from the ceiling. The tables were decorated in the colors and with tiny flags. Quaint candelabra with colored tapers lighted the tables and the fireplace which was a replica of the one in Mt. Vernon. To the side of the fireplace was a spinning wheel.

After the dinner, toasts were responded to with Mary Jeanne Hammond as toast mistress. After the toasts the company retired to the garden. Here the juniors presented a one act play, "The Patriot Girl." A word must be said about the garden. Brightly colored hollyhocks clustered on a white picket fence, a green arch trellis was covered with roses and a blue and white sky completed the decorations. At the end of the play, four couples performed a minuet that would have warmed the heart of Washington had he been able to see it. This was followed by the Senior's minuet. Then girls in dainty dresses and boys in colonial attire tripped the light fantisite in the garden of Mt. Vernon. The evening passed all too quickly and soon it, like all preceding banquets at St. Mary's, was but a glorious memory.

When Profit-Making Profits

Saturday Evening Post: The American public is not bargain-mad. It is the most generous public in the world, as has been proved time and again when it has opened its purse strings to relieve suffering communities. It does not want bargains that are made possible by unfair pressure on other people.

During the past December I visited a city in New England and was piloted about the business district by the president of a local bank. Grouped around the principal public square were possibly fifty retail stores, and nearly all displayed the same frazzled announcements I had seen on Fifth Avenue the day before. Practically the only exception was an establishment at one corner of the square where a street leads off to the railway station. In each of this store's show windows was a small framed card that read: Let's be sensible about prices. No business can continue to exist without a profit. Nor can it continue to furnish the most desirable merchandise unless it allows its manufacturers to make a profit. Patrons will find our prices as low as elsewhere on quality merchandise.

The banker said, "It is the only establishment on the Square whose credit is so good that my bank has asked if it wouldn't like to borrow some money."

O'NEILL HIGH DEFEATS LYNCH

O'Neill won two games and lost one in its tussle with Lynch Tuesday evening. The high school first team won by a score of 18-15. It was their sixth victory of the season. Carson of Lynch was the high point man of the game with a total of 13 points. Meyers was high man for O'Neill with five field goals for a total of 10 points. Sanders of O'Neill made 3 field goals. The reserves lost to Lynch by 9-8 in an extra period game. The O'Neill grade team defeated the Lynch grade team 18-6.

Friday evening the 12th, Bassett invades the O'Neill fort to try to extract another victory. O'Neill high lost to Bassett, there, by a score of 12-6 but with Meyers in the O'Neill line-up, with an average of 10 points per game the story will be different. Atkinson comes here for a game next Tuesday, the 16th.

Relief supplies have been exhausted at this point of distribution. Red Cross agencies gave out three carloads of feed early in the week. Chairman John Sullivan of the county committee said yesterday he was expecting more in any day for the use of his committee but they had been without supplies for several days. The local committee supply applicants on Tuesday and Saturday but the Red Cross has not designated any day or days. It sometimes happens that people come in from far north on the Niobrara river and find by the time they arrive nothing is left. This is not the fault of the committee here but rather a lack of enough to go around.

Some Help Arrived

Page, Feb. 8.—Dear Mr. Editor: Since I wrote last week we at Page received a nice big car of feed which was thankfully received. And from information received it was divided fairly well. Everybody got some, but say when it comes to dividing up fairly there is not much per head. It takes lots. Several put their name and ad in the sacks. Hope everybody that did responded. It is nothing but right we should. There is something else on my mind since it is the usual thing to make donations why not Holt county come to the front and donate numbers for the cars. As the horses are so weak they can't get off the farm. Some who have small trucks and trailers help their neighbors and naturally when the people see a large load go, "Well he got plenty" but they don't take into consideration that was for three or four families. Then others who think the other fellow has lots tell it for sure. Better go look before you report same. Seeing is believing, and it will put the other fellow to lots of trouble. We are all in the same boat, why take revenge at such a time. Be kind to one another as the good book says. Mrs. Butinsky.

The Frontier learns that Capt. Francis Brennan is to become instructor in the military school at Washington. He is one of the youngest to attain such distinction. Francis was the third in succession of three O'Neill boys to enter the military service by securing the appointment to West Point. Charley Meals was the first, followed by Owen Meredith and he by Francis Brennan. The boys have made good. Charley is at San Francisco, Owen at Lexington and Francis at Washington. Folks here know them better by their boyhood names rather than colonels and lieutenant colonels and captains.

AS TO FOOD VALUES

By Miss Perry, School Nurse

Proper food is one of the most important contributors to good health. Good food habits should begin with the child, because they determine to a great extent the physical fitness of the adult. Habits started early are usually continued throughout life.

Food is needed by the body for four reasons:

1. To build new tissue and repair worn tissue.
2. To regulate body processes.
3. To promote growth and development.
4. To provide sufficient energy for the activities of the body.

Laboratory experiments in the feeding of animals show results of good and faulty diets. The animals most commonly used are guinea pigs and white rats, because their short life time makes it possible to study several generations over a shorter period of time. It has been possible to produce poor teeth after a few weeks diet lacking in vitamins, minerals and other materials that build teeth. This shows what will occur in the child's mouth over a longer period of time.

The foods that build and repair tissue are known as proteins. This group includes meats, eggs, fish, poultry, milk, cheese, dried peas and beans, gelatine, nuts and whole grain cereals. Some food from this group should be eaten every day.

Persons who do hard physical labor need more fuel foods than others. Children need them because they are so active. The need is supplied by the starches, (bread, cereal, rice, macaroni, tapioca, potatoes) the sugars, (sugar, molasses, honey, dried fruits), and the fats, (butter, cream, lard, olive oil, chocolates.)

Food that help to regulate body processes include those that are bulky and do not digest completely, such as whole wheat bread and whole grain cereals. Vegetables, fruits and water also help the elimination of body wastes.

Minerals and vitamins are essential for growth and development. Food containing these are leafy vegetables (greens, spinach, cabbage, lettuce) tomatoes, fruits, milk, eggs, butter, cream, cheese, cod liver oil, whole grain cereals, liver, carrots, turnips, sweet potatoes, onions, beets, rutabagas.

Foods from all these groups should be included in the diet every day to adequately supply body needs. There should be regularly appointed times for meals. Piecing between meals fills the child up so that he won't eat at the proper time. Children should drink at least six glasses of water a day. Thirst is often mistaken for hunger and may lead to picking. Water shouldn't be used to wash down food.

Parent should not discuss their food likes and dislikes before children as it may result in the child's refusing. Continued on page 8

MRS. HALLORAN, AN Early Settler PASSES AWAY AT INMAN

Mrs. Olive Ann Halloran died at her home at Inman yesterday, Feb. 10, at the age of 85 years. The funeral will be held at the Methodist church in Inman at 2 o'clock Friday and interment will be made in the Inman cemetery. She was the mother of one son and four daughters, three of which survive her. These are Mrs. Mary Coffin and Mrs. Della Downey, both of Burwell, Neb., and Mrs. Lucy Gates of Peetz, Colo. Some twenty years ago her husband John Halloran was laid to rest.

The death of Mrs. Halloran marks the passing of another pioneer. Much of her interesting life had been spent on the frontier. She was born in Indiana in 1847, the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Dwight Sheldon. At an early date the family migrated to south central Wisconsin. Chicago was then a struggling village and no railroad penetrated to the great wilderness north and west where as a girl she early became enured to the experiences of the pioneer. In 1865 she was married to John Halloran at Leed Center, Wis., Mr. Halloran just being home from contributing his share as a soldier to the preservation of the union. Soon after their marriage they started west in a covered wagon, crossed the Mississippi and on to central Iowa, then unsettled with no railroads. She and her husband were baptised in Sheel Rock river near Marble Rock, Iowa, and became members of the Christian church. Four children were born to them in their Iowa home.

In 1880 she with the family made the third and last move to still another frontier territory—Holt County—thus pioneering in three states. They were among the early Elkhorn valley settlers in the Inman neighborhood where after many hardships as well as many happy occasions they developed a splendid farm home a mile west of the town of Inman. Here her heart interests and sacred memories clung to the last!

Her husband had much to do with the early development of O'Neill, he being an expert painter and some of his work can still be seen here.

Mrs. Halloran had been a member of the Rebekah lodge for over fifty years.

Former O'Neill Couple Wed 50 Years

The Portland, Ore., News of Feb. 1 and Oregonian of Jan. 31 tell of the wedding anniversary of a former O'Neill couple, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Handlan. It is many years since Mr. and Mrs. Handlan left here but they have numerous friends here who will read with pleasure the following, taken from the Portland News:

"One of the interesting and delightful affairs of Sunday was the open house from 3 until 7 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Handlan 448 E. 14th St. N. The affair was held to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary and a large number of friends and relatives called during the day. Mr. and Mrs. Handlan, who were married at Plainview, Neb., in 1882, came to Portland in 1893. They are the parents of F. J. and Joseph Handlan, Mrs. Mary A. Plank and Mrs. R. H. Henderson. Also assisting at the reception Sunday were two grandchildren, Charlotte Plank and Robert H. Henderson, Jr."
