Teeth of Aluminum

A discarded aluminum teakettle has found its way into the mouth of Ogd Wood of Ewing, unemployed jeweler, auto mechanic, plainter and inventor, whose latest role is that of dentist, according to a story in an Omaha paper.

When Wood was compelled to have his teeth extracted, he eliminated the cost of further dental work by shaping a set of aluminum teeth which, he declares, fit comfortably. The teakettle and other discarded aluminum utensils were used to make the plate.

The process was not without its obstacles. During the making, Wood said, he poured the melted aluminum into a damp mold which caused an explosion, covering the walls floors and ceiling of the work shop with metal. A second attempt was successful.

In making the plates, Wood obtained some dental wax and took his own impression for both uppers and lowers before beginning the work of grinding and polishing.

A man giving his name as Tom Jensen, age about 30, was found by Stanley Lewis Monday evening beside the highway a quarter mile west of Danceland. He was unconscious. The sheriff's office sent out a deputy to bring the injured man to town. Meanwhile R. J. Marsh came along and stopped to examine him and was with him when the sheriff came. He was given medical attention after being brought into town. His story was he was hiking west for Hot Springs to obtain medical care at the soldiers' hospital. At the turn in the highway going out from O'Neill west, two men came along and offered him a ride. He got in the back seat and one of the two in front also got into the back seat. The next thing he was conscious of he was being cared for at a hotel. His money was gone. His condition indicated he had been lugged, then robbed. He was looked after by Sheriff Duffy and Dr. Brown and furnished transportation to Hot Springs.

The jury was to have reported duty Monday for the other Flannigan case but was notified not to come in until called by the court. Attorney Stahlmaster, assisting County Attorney Cronin, could not come at this time to proceed with the case.

Editor Coats of Stuart was in the city Monday. We missed a fraternal call by being out at the time. His printer is away on the laudable mission of taking a bride and Mr. Coats is having to do double duty in getting out his paper.

E. J. Mack and Fred Swingley, representing the two Atkinson banks, and Mr. Dailey of the Emmet bank, were in the city yesterday negotiating with the county board over county deposits. They are asking a service charge on the deposits that reduces the interest rate from two to one per cent on county funds, the same as paid by O'Neill banks. Members of the board say the deposits in the O'Neill banks are checking accounts and those in the other banks are in the nature of time deposits, hence there should be no service charge. The bank at Ewing and Stuart are paying two percent on county funds.

Fantastic ideas sometimes get into the minds of young people respecting the sacrament of matrimony. A couple secured a license at the county court last Saturday, cautioned the judge clerk to not let it be known; went to the home of a gospel minister and induced him to accompany them down to the crystal flowing Elkhorn and there upon a sandbar to the rippling of the waters and the romance of nature's own surroundings the nuptial rite was solemnized. Their names are on the public records at the court house and are—but they obligated the judge and the preacher to secrecy and why should a mere editor give it all away.

THRILLS APLENTY GETTING A

Bootlegger

A JOB FOR THE VENTURESOME

At one time officers got their thrill cornering cattle rustlers. Whether cattle rustling is unprofitable or gone out of fashion, the thrill comes now to the prohibition agents. A good story teller like Constable H. W. Tomlinson can relate the details of a raid until you just about envy his experience. One of the latest to be brought to boots for liquor violation is a woman at Atkinson, Mrs. Rose Barrett who was fined $100 and costs in justice court after seven gallons of moonshine whiskey and thirty-one bottles of beer were retrieved from the Barrett home. Protesting innocence and declaring there was "not a thing in the house," Mr. Tomlinson and his chief, George Bay, went ahead with their plans to investigate and found "the goods."

Locating the bottles of beer was a simple matter. The stronger fluid was not so easily found. A siphone hose in the basement smelling strongly of liquor was the first clue. A hole in the wall cleverly contrived and covered was found through which the potent liquid could be drawn by applying the siphone. The next step was to discover the "supply tank," which was got to from the outside by removing some floor boards from the porch.

Over on the river, that was the borderline in the long ago of horse thief and desperado, the scene of tragedy and mystry, and still a rendezvous in certain spots for those disposed to unlawful pursuits, they had another thrill. Under instructions from headquarters at Omaha, Mr. Bay went to a shack just across the river in western Boyd county. He took the Holt county constable with him. Two men were at the place and no demurrer was entered to the officers making a search. In the face of very convincing denial of any liquors or stills on the premises a tub of mash, a coil and a still were found by little effort in the one-room shack occupied by the men. The equipment with a sample of the mash was set outside and the rest of the mash dumped in a nearby spring. But they came very nearly losing their evidence. Mr. Bay went back across the bridge to bring their car over while Mr. Tomlinson stayed in the house. One of the men, a small man which officers understood did not make his home there, went out. When Mr. Bay got back still and coil and mash were gone and the little man was disappearing on a run up the river. They gave pursuit and retrieved the still and coil from the river where they had been thrown and then went back to the spring and got a sample of the mash.

In county court at Butte this offender faces the serious charge of being a manufacturer of moonshine whisky involving a $500 fine.

An eastern publication of reputable keen political discernment forecasts Mr. Hoover's re-election as an assured fact. We fear O'Neill democrats have been slighted in taking the poll.

Mrs. R. H. Mills arrived home Saturday from Omaha where she had undergone operations for a complication of disorders from which she had suffered for some time. She is now very much better.

Miss Frona Robinson of the Chapman Style Shoppe was at Parsons, Kan., last Saturday to attend the funeral of her grandfather, Joseph Naegele, age 86. Miss Robinson accompanied her mother, Mrs. M. C. Robinson, and brother Ora, of Page. The deceased was a Union soldier, having enlisted at the age of 14 as a drummer boy. He was accorded a military funeral with six Grand Army men, all past 86, as honorary pall bearers.

Orville A. Andrew and W. W. Hughes both of Lincoln, were in O'Neill Monday on their way home from a trip across the state south of the Platte and back home through the northern counties. Mr. Andrew is a candidate for the republican nomination for railway commissioner. We know him to be a gentleman of integrity and ability well worthy of the confidence of the voters. Mr. Hughes is seeking for the first time the republican nomination for secretary of state. He impresses one as being possessed of rare good sense, with a frankness of expression that commends itself.

OFFICERS ROUNDUP BUNCH OF

Thieves

ONE WOMAN, FIVE MEN TAKEN

Judge Dickson, Judge Malone, County Attorney Cronin, Sheriff Duffy and officials in Boyd county have made a cleaning of a bunch that have operated for a long time in the vicinity of Spencer and south from there across the river, the finger marks of one reaching into O'Neill stores.

One woman and four men have been caught in the toils of the law. Something of an organized band has been broken up.

Tina Calwell, living on the Holt county side of the Niobrara, entered a plea of guilty in county court last Friday to a petty larceny charge and was fined $100 and costs. She was charged with shoplifting at the J. C. Penney Co. and Golden Rule stores in O'Neill, the plunder consisting principally of stockings and wash clothes. Sheriff Duffy found the articles upon searching the Calwell place. Mrs. Calwell's husband, Orlow Calwell, is now serving a sentence in the penitentiary for receiving stolen harness.

One hundred gallons of paint and a quantity of linseed oil was stolen from Boyd Sims of Spencer. This was found buried at the Calwell place this side of the river. Two Spencer men, Ted Smaltz and Roy Carlson, were charged with stealing the paint. They admitted stealing twenty gallons of paint and trading it for two gallons of whisky at Calwell's. Smaltz entered a plea of guilty to a charge of burglary and Carlson to a charge of grand larceny. Judge Dickson sentenced them each to one year in the state reformatory.

A mower belonging to a farmer in Boyd county was also found at the Calwell place. The mower was stolen in 1930. For this job Charley McMillan was sentenced in district court in O'Neill last Friday to the penitentiary from two to seven years, and a second man, Adkins, is in jail in Boyd county for his part in the theft of the mower.

A truck belonging to Bob Carr of Atkinson was overturned at the Shaunnessy corner east of town Sunday night. Riding in the truck were Carr, Henry Winkler and another man. The truck overturned when the driver attempted to pass Floyd Pilger, both coming west, and ran into a car coming around the corner in which two boys, Rako and Wanser, were returning to Page. None of the occupants of either truck or car were hurt seriously. Ralph Mellor went out with the wrecker at midnight and brought the truck and car into town. Considerable damage was done both machines.

An upper corner broken off of a 78x86 inch plate glass at the Morrison store front involved the careful work yesterday of replacing the broken plate with a new one. Hugh Coyne furnished the glass and supervised the installing of the same yesterday.

THREE ROAD AND BRIDGE JOBS

AWARDED

NO FUNDS TO COMPLETE NO. 13

At the state house last Friday contracts were let for road and bridge work at a much lower figure than in the past, Chairman John Sullivan of the board of supervisors says. He and Mr. James and Mr. Steinhauser were present when the contracts were let.

There were three contracts let for work in Holt county. A strip of graveling of 5.5 miles this side of Orchard was let to S. N. Einung for $2,899.63. Part of this is in Antelope county. The same contractor was awarded the contract ofr 26.1 miles of graveling on the O'Neill Clearwater project at $13,745.05.

The call for bids included four bridges on what is known as the Devere-Atkinson project.

Mr. Sullivan says they were informed at the state house that the work of finishing the graveling on highway 13, including the five mile grade into Chambers, cannot be resumed before June from the present outlook. Funds have run low and gasoline tax receipts have greatly fallen off the past few months. The situation is about the same with respect to highway 11, though Mr. Sullivan says something will have to be done soon to save the grade in the hills near Swan lake as spring winds are raising havoc with the loose sand at that point. He says it is probable that the remainder of this highway will be finished with oil as no clay is available in the neighborhood. This will furnish a surface the same as on No. 13 north of the South Fork. No. 11 is graveled to a point twenty and one-quarter miles or a little over, south of Atkinson.
