Omaha Air Meet and National Balloon Race May 27, 28, 29 and 30

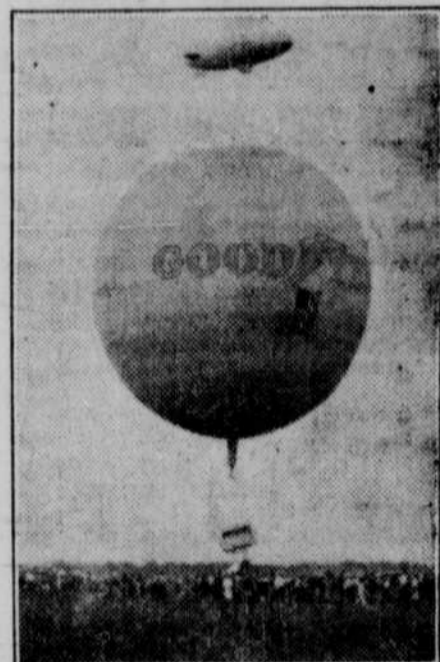

Navy "Hell Divers" and Army Attack Planes Booked for Daily Maneuvers and Exhibitions

With an entry list assuring one of the greatest aerial shows in the history of America, the city of Omaha is preparing to receive 50,000 visitors during the second annual Omaha Air Races and the National Balloon race here May 27, 28, 29 and 30.

The combination of airplane and balloon attractions is expected to draw the largest crowd to Omaha since the hey-day of Ak-Sar-Ben electrical parades. Six 35,000 cubic feet racing balloons and a giant Goodyear blimp will be the principal attractions in the lighter-than-air division, and the cream of America's race pilots will compete in the airplane speed dashes.

Both Army and Navy planes are booked for maneuvers and exhibitions. Most sensational in this class will be a team of three-Navy "hell-divers", attack planes designed for quick dives from lofty altitudes. They are of the type used in the successful Wallace Beery-Clark Gable motion picture "Hell Divers".

The fastest plane on the field will be the Laird biplane in which Major James H. Doolittle won the national air derby and broke the transcontinental record formerly held by Captain Frank Hawks last year. The Doolittle Laird is a sister ship of the ill-starred plane in which C. W. "Speed" Holman met his death last year, but it is geared up to a speed of 260 miles per hour. Doolittle will give daily speed exhibitions and acrobatics.

The first three racing entries are those of Johnny Livingston, Aurora, Ill., Art Davis, Lansing, Mich., and Dr. J. D. Brock, Kansas City, all headliners in last year's show. Livingston is the death-defying pilot whose sharp pylons turned supplied one of the chief thrills last year. He will fly the same Warner-powered Monocoupe, tuned up to a speed of thirty or forty additional miles per hour. He is a former winner of the National Air Tour and the Ford Reliability tour. Davis was Livingston's principal rival last year, and even took his measure in the final free-for-all for the Junior Chamber of Commerce trophy.

Dr. Brock is the Kansas City sportsman pilot who will on May 15 complete two and one-half years of consecutive daily flights, a world's record. He will compete here in the sportsman pilot events, a new feature of the 1932 program.

A late April development promising much for the Midwest future was the announcement from National Aeronautic Association headquarters in Washington that it contemplates the formation of a "grand circuit of air racing," with Omaha as one of six key cities. The other grand circuit cities, would be Cleveland, where the National Air Races are held annually, Miami, home of the All-American show, New Orleans, where an air race meet will be a chief feature of the Mardi Gras celebration next year under the management of Phil Henderson. Under the plan proposed, Omaha would become the midwestern center of aerial sport, test flying and exhibitions.

Construction work on a grandstand and bleachers seating 15,000 people will begin at the airport immediately. Parking space for 10,000 automobiles will also be cleared.

The National Balloon race at Omaha is an event of world-wide interest, as the United States team for the international race at Basle, Switzerland, will be selected in Omaha. A national radio broadcast of the event will be made.

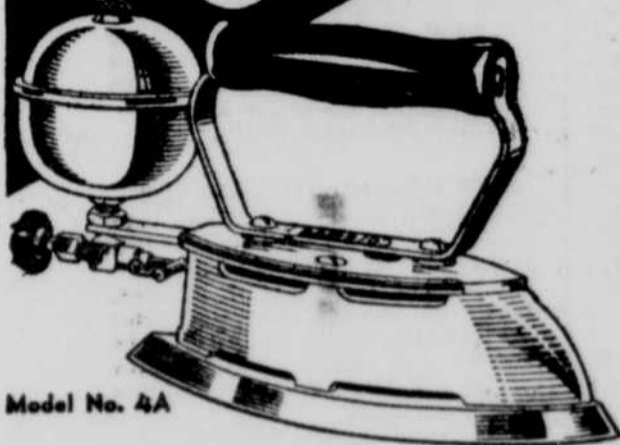

Phil Henderson, managing director of the show, holds out high hopes that the Los Angeles, mighty Navy Dirigible will be dispatched to Omaha for the big dual event.

In celebration of the occasion, Omaha will don holiday attire, decorate the streets, and hold a general civic jubilee, with special attractions in boxing, wrestling, baseball and theatricals, throughout the four days.

A special rate of one-way-fare-plus-twenty-five cents has been granted on all railroads, applying within a radius of approximately 300 miles. Special popular prices coach excursions will also be offered.

A statutory award is an award that is enacted, acquired or imposed by statute. The award is permanent in that no one can take it away, but it is not necessary continual. For instance if a statutory award of $25,000 is made, there is no further claim when the $25,000 is paid.
