INMAN NEWS

C. P. Hancock, republican county chairman, was in Inman Monday evening looking after political business.

The Juniors of the Inman high school gave a minstrel show at the school house Saturday evening after which they served lunch. Although weather conditions were unfavorable, they made a nice sum of money.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Aberhams, of Omaha, arrived here Friday to hunt during the pheasant season.

Rev. Mertie E. Clute, Miss Wilma Brown, Mrs. Geo. Killinger, Mrs. Roy Gannon and son, Arthur, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Moor, Mrs. Evadne Erskine, Mrs. I. L. Watson, Mrs. L. R. Tompkins and Ruth and Esther Fraka went to Page Monday to attend a group meeting at the M. E. church.

Mrs. Bertha Saulkender, of Norfolk, is here visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McGraw this week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Riley and daughter, Mildred, and Mrs. E. J. Enders, went to O'Neill Tuesday where they attended a Rally at the M. E. church. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Colman have gone to Lincoln for a visit with their daughter, Mrs. Jerry Hare and Mr. Hare.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Killinger and daughter, Lois, Ruth and Esther Fraka and Wilma Brown went to O'Neill Tuesday to attend a Rally of church workers at the M. E. church.

Mrs. Burger, of Ainsworth, has been here visiting her daughters, Mrs. Tom Hutton and Mrs. Gene Clark and families the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Howell, of West Point, Nebr., were here a couple of days last week visiting at the Wm. Stevens home. The couple, who were recently married, were just returning home from their honeymoon trip.

Miss Mary Ellen Pinkerman, of Lincoln, is here visiting her sister, Mrs. Robert Colman.

Senator Crist Anderson, of Bristow, was in Inman last week interviewing the voters. The senator is up for reelection.

Rev. Mertie E. Clute and Miss Gladys Hancock went to O'Neill Tuesday where they attended the rally of church workers at the M. E. church.

Whether it is a symbol that the depression is over or whether the cows are showing their gratitude for the abundance of feed here this fall is not known. However, they are doing their best to aid their owners in getting past the hard times. A pair of twin calves arrived on the G. E. Moor farm one day last week, and on Sunday a fine pair arrived at the Harry McGraw place in the south part of town. All of the calves are fine and husky. The McGraw twins have been named Pat and Pet. Most folks here say it is a sign of prosperity and a republican victory at the coming election.

PLEASANT DALE

Edmond Evans rented a half section three miles south of the Fred Beckwith farm and bought hay of Mr. Bewith and Pat Barrett on which to winter eighty head of cattle.

The crowd that charivariated Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wayman were given a treat of cake and ice cream Friday evening.

E. J. Mack, of Atkinson, visited Sunday with his sister, Mrs. Maggie Grey.

Miss Barbara Mitchell has planned a box social for Friday, October 28th, at her school near Joy. Miss Mitchell taught in the Emmet school two terms.

Lyle Vequest spent the week-end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Vequest.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick and family were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ernst Sunday.

The Pleasant Dale P. T. A. held their second meeting of this term Friday, October 21st. After the business meeting the teacher and pupils entertained the members with a short program. Eleven members were present. Miss Theresa Pongratz was a visitor.

The members of the P. T. A. have planned a "hard time" party for November 4th.

Darwin Seger drove to Norfolk Thursday evening and visited with Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Keeney and Harold Seger. He returned home Sunday evening.

William O'Connor visited relatives at Denver, Colo. the past week.

Miss Minnie Seger visited at the Ralph Beckwith home Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Joe Pongratz and son came home from a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hebe.

Mrs. Jake Ernst and daughter, Myrtle, and Mrs. Ralph Ernst called on Mrs. Ralph Beckwith Tuesday.

S. M. Ohmart's left hand is much better after two weeks of suffering. Mr. Ohmart got some type metal in his hand, which poisoned it and for a while it was feared he would lose his hand.

SWAN TOWNSHIP

Ezra Cook, republican candidate for representative, was in this end of the Chambers valley Friday in the interests of his candidacy.

Ned Saunders returned to work at Riley's Monday after a week helping dad build a cellar and other "odd jobs."

John Bower, who has not been well for some weeks, is able to look after his ranch affairs now and participated in the ceremony of butchering a 415 pound hog Thursday.

Supervisor John Steinhäuser was in this end of his district last week, looking into the needs of the community as related to his duties as supervisor and incidentally reminding the voters that he is a candidate for reelection.

The first two days of the opening of the pheasant season there was a lot of shooting and cracking in the neighborhood. Sunday was particularly propitious for the man with the shotgun. It is said Tom Baker is one of the crack marksman of this section, and is growing "fat and sassy" on a daily diet of wild fowl.

A recent school debate on the relative importance of coal and iron between Doris Carpenter and Romaine Saunders, Jr., resulted in the feminine side maintaining the established tradition of the race by Doris being awarded the decision as the best talker.

Our dry autumn weather was dampened by an all-day rain Saturday. This, combined with the natural raising of water from below at this season starts the lagging streams to flowing and makes for wet spots in the meadows.

Surely farmers in the drouth and grasshopper section of a year ago have reason to support President Hoover at the polls. Federal aid in one way and another came because it was felt at Washington that the farmers had a right to it as citizens. The large distribution of wheat and seed loans made it possible for many farmers to produce another crop, which they have in abundance this year. Turning against the hand now that brought the help is inconceivable.

Nebraska dries have every reason to vote for Hoover. He has carried the whole load of prohibition enforcement as state and county authorities are indifferent.

Surely the very numerous body of sovereign voters known as the middle classes through this extensive agricultural belt can not turn away from one who has risen from their midst through various stages of upward progress to become our chief executive and cast their votes for one who comes to us with "great swelling words" but who knows little and possibly cares less about our industrial affairs. What can a New York Tammany politician do to give the farmers bigger crops and better prices when our own inimitable Brother Charley has not done it?

EMMET ITEMS

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Strasheim and sons, Frank and Arthur, of Lincoln, John Abart and children, of Bassett, Mrs. Church and sons, of Schuyler, and Miss Mabel Crawford, of Wauneta, were all here last week to attend the funeral of Mrs. Crawford.

Misses Thelma Dallage, Lucille Lowery, Luree Abart and Dorothy Tenborg all spent the week-end at their homes at Emmet.

A shower was held Tuesday for Miss Ada Storts, who will be married soon. Miss Velma Krska spent the week-end with Miss Eugenia Luben.

Grandma Winkler was quite ill last Tuesday.

Miss Bonnie Welsh is quite ill. She returned to her home south of Emmet after helping with the housework at the W. P. Dailey home the past few months.

Frankie Sesler is quite ill this week. The Women's Foreign Missionary Society was unable to go to Spencer to spend the day with Miss Anna Nelson last Thursday. Miss Nelson preached the sermon for little Mercedes Tenborg, of Atkinson, on Wednesday, and the sermon for Mrs. Joe Crawford Saturday. The visit was put off for another date.

Teddy Moyer was absent from school Tuesday because of illness. James Shorthill left for Pittsburgh, Pa., to attend the funeral of his uncle.

A Business Man to A Friends

partisan appeal. I care not what your party or creed is. I make it to you, firstly as a friend, but secondly and most important, as a citizen of the greatest nation on earth—a nation whose destiny, despite calumny, dissensions and mediocrity and the wilfully destructive forces which drop to the surface now and again, is to lead to greater heights of spiritual well-being and material prosperity that we have yet experienced, and to continue to surpass all other nations as a place where we and our children and their children can live in safety, in the pursuit of happiness and in religious tolerance.

"Let us, then, think straight on our present duty in the light of current events. Are we to be for the constructive force to work to lead us on, up and out to the sun-lit plateaus above, or are we to go struggling along the winding and darkened labyrinth of local and partisan issues and so delay the ultimate goal? Shall we turn our backs on the general whose faith in the outcome of the measures he is pursuing in the fight against the depression has never lagged, or are we to put in a new and untried force and new and untried measures?"

"In any event you must realize that by now I want such good things to happen during the coming months that you and yours may have a real cause for thanksgiving in November, a truly merry Christmas in December, and a growing prosperity and happiness during every month of the coming year."

Cutting Expenses

One of the general promises which Governor Roosevelt has made during the campaign, and most of them have been general, is to the effect that he will bring down taxes. Now, everyone will admit that taxes ought to come down. Governor Roosevelt concedes that this is a matter for state and local authorities rather than the national governments, but declares that he will give encouragement to the smaller units of government and set the example. Just what this example will be, he does not state. Perhaps it will be in the matter of cutting off money allotted to the states for the building of roads.

But in this matter of cutting expenses we must judge the future by the past, must guess what Governor Roosevelt would do in the matter of federal expense by what he has done or failed to do as chief executive of the great Empire State.

Take the matter of the state budget for New York in the year 1932 as an example. It is to be remembered that Governor Roosevelt sought from the New York legislature of 1932 a budget of over $323,000,000. This is an increase of $90,000,000 over the amount required for running the state during the last year of the administration of Gov. Alfred E. Smith. During the time in which the population of the state has increased thirty per cent the budget has increased more than 400 per cent, most of it during Democratic administrations and as the figures show above, quite a little of it in the administration of Governor Roosevelt who is now preaching and promising economy.

Since the year 1915 the expenses of the state of New York have increased terrifically and the biggest factor in this increase has been the Roosevelt administration's budget.

Furthermore, when Governor Roosevelt submitted his budget of over $323,000,000 to the Republican legislature he challenged this body, controlled by his political enemies, to show ways and means for further reduction of the budget. The Republican legislature promptly answered this by an immediate reduction of over $21,000,000 to a new total of $301,775,337. And most of this reduction was made over the strenuous opposition of Governor Roosevelt and his friends in the legislature.

It is true that expenditures during the past decade or two have increased in all states, Republican and Democratic alike, but it will be found on analysis that in the states like Indiana, which has been under Republican control for the past sixteen years, the rate of increase has been much less than in the majority of the Democratic states. No where in the nation are state financial conditions worse than in many of the Southern states which have been under Democratic control for a half century. Florida and Mississippi come to mind immediately as fair examples.

There is little doubt that greater economy is needed in state and local units of government. But if we are to examine the record of the past
