Good Things

Falls City Journal: Taking it all in all, many good things still exist for those who appreciate them. Particularly, there is country sausage, rich and pungent with spice if one likes it highly seasoned. In fact one of the blessings of the depression is that it has left a greater supply of hogs for sausage-making and has forced the country sausage-maker back into the business.

Will it Please Them?

Wymorean: They have established a county labor bureau in Beatrice, where the road jobs and other public jobs will be doled out. The out of works who did all their trading in Beatrice when they had jobs here will probably be suited with that arrangement.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS.

By Frank P. Litschert

Already there are evidences that the political peace which descended upon the country after the election on November 8, is about to be dispelled. That it was anything more than an armed truce, was of course not to have been expected. Now that the echoes of the French debt disagreement have begun to die away, leaders in Congress are beginning to do a little arms brandishing on domestic issues with the evident purpose of reaping whatever political advantage there is to be reaped.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader in the present Senate opened the attack the other day by inferring that the Republicans were already using obstructive tactics with the evident purpose of forcing an extra session of the new Congress which comes into being with the new administration on March 4. The Senator even went so far as to express fear that President Hoover himself might veto some of the legislation to be passed by the present Congress for

A Bladder Physic

Is a medicine that works on the bladder as castor oil on the bowels. Drives out impurities and excess acids that cause irritation which results in getting up nights, frequent desire, burning, leg pains and backache. Get a 25c test box of BU-KETS, (5 gr. Tablets) the pleasant bladder physic from any druggist. After four days if not relieved go back and get your money. You will feel better after this cleansing and you will get your regular sleep. the purpose of forcing an extra session, and interfering with the Rooseveltian program.

Republican leaders were not long in coming back at the gentleman from Arkansas. Representative Snell, the Republican leader in the House, charged in very unkindly fashion that the Democrats in the present Congress have no program and have never had any except that which was encompassed in the slogan "beer by Christmas." Congressman Treadway of Massachusetts was even more specific when he said:

"The Democratic Party controls the House and with its coalition vote also controls the Senate. In what way, therefore, can it be said that the Republican Party is today defeating legislation? Since the night of November 8 it has been known that the next administration will be Democratic. Has any announcement come either through the President-elect or the Democratic leaders of Congress of any fixed program which that party has in prospect?"

"President Hoover has shown his good offices in endeavoring to cooperate with President-elect Roosevelt in the question of international debts, but his efforts toward cooperation have been declined. The Democratic leaders of the Senate have announced that under no circumstances will any nominations of the present administration be confirmed. This attitude has cost the government the expert services of such a man as Charles R. Crisp of Georgia, on the U. S. Tariff Commission and undoubtedly other non-partisan appointments. This enormous Democratic political appetite for everything possible from elevator boys at the Capitol to international arbiters makes for crippling the efficiency of the government and continued delay."

And so it will continue to go from now on. There will of course be a decided change in strategy when the new administration comes in. The Democrats will then for the first time in twelve years be on the defensive. Their unprecedented victory has given them entire control of the government. The mantle of responsibility has been taken from the shoulders of the Republicans and placed squarely on the shoulders of the Democrats.

During the past twelve years it has been the pleasure, if not the duty, of the Democrats to attack, to plague the Republican majority in every way possible. The Republicans with an administration to defend, and with the responsibility of putting through platform measures, have been under a serious handicap, when it came to the matter of handing out political barbed shafts and keen cutting criticism. A great many Republican partisans have complained that during the past few years the Republican leaders have not been aggressive in attack. But now that the situation has changed completely and the Republicans have little to do except to go out with their freshly sharpened harpoons the situation is going to be reversed, and the Democrats will occupy the uncomfortable seats.

This is the way it always turns out in the arena of American politics. Political students who do not think the Republicans can or will take advantage of the opportunity to be offered them in the coming months have evidently forgotten the closing months of the Wilson administration and the tremendous Republican fight made against the League of Nations, the treaty of Versailles and government control of railroads and other great utilities. The Republicans could do this because they were in the minority. They are again in the minority.

Pathfinder: He—Let me hold your hand for a minute; that isn't asking much.

She—But how are you to know when the minute is up?

He—Oh, I'll have to hold your second hand for that.

Pathfinder: Film magnate, entering studio—Who's that fellow over there?

Director—Why, that's Napoleon.

Magnate—Why did you get such a little man to play such an important part?

"Bingo claims he went all through the World War without a scratch."

"If that is so it must be because cooties don't bother him."—Pathfinder.

First Bootlegger's wife: It's too bad they got your husband last night, and you with the children to look after.

Second bootlegger's wife: It certainly is. I don't see how I can possibly attend to his full route.

Pathfinder: Visitor—Do the federal officers co-operate with the local authorities in this town in enforcing the liquor laws?

Native—Yes; the federal officers arrest the local police and the local police arrest the federal officers.

"My first tour began at Slocum," related the pantomime comedian, "and I remember singing songs of my own composing."

"Was the audience complimentary?" queried his friend.

"I cannot tell you that," was the answer, "but I remember his ticket was."—Michigan Motor News.

Pathfinder: "Old Borley the after dinner speaker seems to have made a tremendous hit. I never heard an audience clap so much. What did he say?"

"He said to them that he would not go on until they quieted down."

LOWER GAS TAXES. Want lower gasoline taxes. With some forty-odd state legislatures looking for additional revenue, the American Automobile Club has inaugurated a campaign against increasing the tax on gasoline which already aggregates more than $40,000,000.
