WOULD-BE ASSASSIN OF PRESIDENT-ELECT SENTENCED TO EIGHTY YEARS

Guiseppe Zangara, who attempted to assassinate President-elect Roosevelt at Miami, Florida, last week, was sentenced last Monday to eighty years in the Florida state penitentiary, when he pleaded guilty to four counts of attempted murder.

"Oh, Judge, don't be stingy. Give me a hundred years," the 33 year old prisoner shouted as he was led from the courtroom. Then, laughing in evident amusement, he fell in step with his guards and was led back to his prison cell. Zangara's sentences of twenty years on each count, running consecutively, constitute life imprisonment at Raiford state prison or hard labor in the Florida road camps.

However, should Mayor Cermak of Chicago or Mrs. Joe H. Gill die of wounds they received from bullets fired by the assassin at the president-elect, the state will seek a first degree murder indictment and the death penalty. Cermak and Mrs. Gill were reported as continuing to show improvement at the hospital at Miami.

Louis Twyman, defense counsel who entered Zangara's guilty pleas, said the Italian had insisted he was guilty. "He says 'No, no, I not crazy' when we asked him if he thinks he is insane," Twyman told the court.

Taking the witness chair, unconcernedly, Zangara gave stomach pains and hatred of capitalists as the reason for his desire to kill Mr. Roosevelt. "I suffer all the time from my stomach," Zangara told Judge Collins. "I no like the way capitalists take all money. When I read in paper the president come here, I decide to kill him. I decide to kill him and make him suffer. I want to make it 50-50. Since my stomach hurt I get even with capitalists by killing the president. My stomach hurt long time."

Zangara told the court he did not care whether he lived or not. "I sick all time," he said. "I just think maybe cops kill me if I kill president. 'Somebody hit my arm when I try it. 'They fools; they should let me kill him.'"

The Zealot turned as he was led from the courtroom, held up eight fingers and asked Judge Collins how many years he had been sentenced to serve. The judge nodded at the up-lifted fingers.

"Four times twenty is eighty," Zangara shouted. "Oh, judge, don't be stingy. Give me a hundred years."

SUBMIT REPEAL OF 18TH AMENDMENT TO STATES

House Approves Blaine Resolution By Comfortable Majority.

Congress Monday proposed to the states that national prohibition, after 13 years of turbulent trial, be done away with by repeal of the Eighteenth amendment.

The House by a vote of 289 to 121, 15 more than necessary, approved the repeal resolution passed last week by the Senate. Under it, for the first time in American history, conventions of the people are to decide whether the states shall ratify or reject a change in the Constitution.

Thirty-six of the 48 states must ratify to carve the Eighteenth amendment out of the national charter and substitute for it a 21st. By its terms, also, the ratifications must occur within seven years from Monday. With repeal, the amendment carries a specific prohibition of importation of intoxicating liquors into any states remaining dry.

Immediately after the House vote, legislative action was started in more than half a dozen states to make ready for the conventions.

Only one federal formality remains before the states have the question fully in their keeping. The secretary of state must certify the Congressional action to the governors. They will inform the legislatures. In many cases the state executives, however, had already taken steps to rush action.

The official copy of the repeal resolution was delivered to the secretary of state Monday and work was begun immediately to mail out copies Tuesday.

The House approval came in dramatic fashion as the dry minority fought with its back to the wall against the flood of anti-prohibition votes.

Confident from the first of victory, Speaker Garner and party leaders forced the vote under suspension of the rules, a drastic debate-curbing procedure. Fifteen members who voted against the speaker's outright repeal proposal on the first day of this session shifted their strength for the Blaine amendment, adopted only last Thursday by the Senate, 63 to 23.

The news was hailed as a great victory by leaders of the anti-prohibition organizations, but the dries, though not disguising a defeat, proclaimed their intention to intensify their fight every step of the way. The wets, too, in every utterance on the question, emphasized that an enormous amount of hard campaigning remains to be done.

The Blaine prohibition repeal resolution, after the preamble reads:

Section 1. The Eighteenth article of amendment to the Constitution of the United States is hereby repealed.

Section 2. The transportation or importation into any state, territory, or possession of the United States for delivery or use therein of intoxicating liquors, in violation of the laws thereof, is hereby prohibited.

Section 3. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by conventions in the several states, as provided in the Constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the states by the Congress.
