

Target for Indian William Tell

Chief Crazy Bull, grandson of Sitting Bull, famed Sioux Indian warrior, tells "Red" Stafford, of New York, that he's a brave scout in Indian sign language. Crazy Bull is teaching the boys to shoot with bow and arrow at the Boys' Club exposition in New York. "Red" acted as a human target for the chief.

Victim of Fiend

Leah L. Johnston, 18-year-old telephone operator, of North Adams, Mass., the finding of whose murdered body in a field outside her home town started a hunt for the fiendish slayer. The girl had been gagged, strangled and stabbed to death. Authorities have been unable to discover any substantial clue to the crime.

Gallantry Rewarded at Last

Thirty-five years after he had sunk the collier Merrimac across the mouth of Santiago Harbor during the Spanish-American War, Richard Pearson Hobson is here shown as he was decorated with the highest award in the gift of the nation for his heroism. President Roosevelt is shown as he presented the gallant officer with the Congressional Medal of Honor. At left is Assistant Secretary of the Navy Henry Roosevelt.

An Old-Timer on Broadway

The cynics tell you that fame is fleeting on Broadway, sometimes called the "Hardened Artery." But Belle Baker (above), famous comedienne, has not found it so. She is shown as she celebrated her 20th anniversary on the famous street, where she first appeared before the footlights at the age of fifteen. Belle is thirty-five now. The cake she's cutting is the gift of admirers.

Keeper of the Door

Daniel W. McCormack, newly-appointed Commissioner General of Immigration, is pictured at his desk in the Labor Department Building at Washington as he took over his duties as guardian of Uncle Sam's gateway. The destinies of thousands of foreign born entering the United States rest largely in his hands.

Collegians in Schnozzola Shuffle

A Durante proboscis would come in mighty handy here! The two boys, giving such a realistic impersonation of a couple of bloodhounds on the scent, are rolling eggs with their noses along one of Boston's busiest streets. They are students at a Hub City college, and this is part of their fraternity initiation.

Garner Talent

Ability seems to run in the family of Vice President John Garner. Here is his charming cousin, Miss Nancy Garner, in her favorite role as "Songbird of the Air," as she is known to radio audiences. Miss Garner was photographed as she broadcast from a station in Albany, N. Y., recently.

Greetings, Greta!

Return to resume her film work in the United States, Greta Garbo, Swedish screen star, is pictured on her arrival at San Diego, Cal. The film queen is changed considerably since she left here for her native Sweden nearly a year ago. She is no longer elusive, but smiled pleasantly, chatted with reporters and posed for photographers.

New Spring Suit

Two tones of richly dull cleanliness chalk crepe are smartly contrasted in this Spring outfit. The coat features unusual sleeves puffed at the elbows. It is three-quarter length with a row of ornamental buttons down the front. Note the unusual arrangement at the collar.

Mary A-wheel Plays Safe

Mary Pickford, who is one of the bicycle advocates of the movie colony in Hollywood, is pictured as she took her morning spin. Having barked her shins a few times on the pedals, Mary adopts the pose shown here whenever possible. She wears trousers on her wheeling expeditions.

Tragedy of Depression

Mrs. Marian Sullivan is shown with her baby in a Philadelphia hospital after she had been found on the sidewalk in a street of the Quaker City where her baby was born. Destitute and homeless the woman had roamed the streets in search of shelter until she gave birth to the tot in the small hours of the morning. Merry-makers coming home from a dance found her and took her to the hospital.

Star a Bride Again

Billie Dove, screen actress, who became a bride for the second time when she married Robert Kenaston, wealthy landowner, of Santa Monica, Cal., at Yuma, Ariz. Miss Dove, once the highest paid movie actress, was formerly the wife of Irvin Willat, film director.
