Party Leaves for Mt. Everest Climbing Attempt

The advance guard of a new expedition (the fifth) to Mount Everest left London recently enroute to Tibet, to prepare for the conquest of the world's tallest mountain. Left to right are: Dr. and Mrs. Noel Humphreys, Hugh Ruttledge, leader of the expedition, and J. M. D. Gavin of the Royal engineers.

The conquest of Mount Everest has long been the ambition of mountain climbers, but thus far has resisted even the most elaborate efforts to scale its dangerous slopes. The intense cold and rarefied atmosphere encountered on the climb make it extremely hazardous, and the rugged contours add to the perils.

It has only been within a few years that the Tibetan monks have permitted anyone to attempt the feat. Fears that the gods would be angered by the intrusion of white men were the reasons given.

DOCTORS KNOW

Mothers read this:

A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

Why do people come home from a hospital with bowels working like a well-regulated watch?

The answer is simple, and it's the answer to all your bowel worries if you will only realize it: many doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives.

If you knew what a doctor knows, you would use only the liquid form. A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the secret of any real relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular liquid laxatives have become. They give the right kind of help, and right amount of help. The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara—both natural laxatives that can form no habit, even in children. So, try Syrup Pepsin. You just take regulated doses till Nature restores regularity.
