

Over the County

SOUTHWEST BREEZES

By Romaine Saunders

Raymond Bly has been employed on road work over in Wyoming precinct.

The Clemens family are enjoying a visit from relatives who are here from Antelope county.

The longer a public official holds office the better for the public and the worse for the official.

Holt county has not been able to pay for the last election and in less than a month we go to the polls again.

L. G. Gillespie was out this way Monday and was an interested spectator at the Sammons sale near Amelia.

The George Washingtons and the Abraham Lincolns were the youthful guiding star in dad's day. Now it is the movie star.

Apparently government has reached a stage in America where hard-boiled business men are needed at the steering wheel.

Mr. and Mrs. Roblyer, accompanied by Mrs. Anderson and daughter, and Mrs. Hitchcock, all of Atkinson, visited friends in this county Saturday.

Sheriff Duffy was out here last Thursday for the second or third time the past two weeks, incidentally seeing what might be left to sell for taxes by delinquent citizens on the move.

The many applications for liquor licenses in Holt county is enough to disturb the sepulchered dust of such militant trys of the long ago as Mrs. Waldo Adams, Mrs. Dustin, G. M. Cleveland, J. H. Riggs and a few others.

T. B. testers have come and gone for the second time since January 1, finding no reactors in the writer's little herd then or now. It is stated on good authority that at least one large herd that passed the 10 per cent test in January has been passed up for the present.

Capitol Hill is still worried over the unemployment situation. The writer of the Breezes professes to be neither statesman or industrial expert, but it can be seen by the duldest of observers that the New Deal has diverted capital from industry into government bonds and the retirement of large bodies of farm lands from production has put farm laborers out of jobs.

Some time ago Ross Welton sent me one of his splendid Hooker County Tribunes in which he made use of something I had written of of the author of "Little Old Sod Shanty on the Claim." I have not heard what the people of Inman think of the suggestion then made, but wish to thank Ross for his interest and am always glad to see a copy of his paper.

The boys are getting a telescope and planning a home devised observatory. The calm summer nights, now not far ahead, are ideal to turn the vision—and the thought—to the starry spender of the heavens. Helpful, but not essential to understand the science of astronomy in order to catch the beauty and inspiration in those shining orbs that spangle the concave of the firmament above; the brilliant crescent of the summer moon gilding the western sky; the stars one after another emerging from the blue ethereal until the canopy of night is dotted with countless spots of light. A telescope will add immensely to the interest of viewing these heavenly bodies. What fath-
