SOUTHWEST BREEZES
By Romaine Saunders

The president and his opponent met with other patriotic Americans in conference to consider a serious national situation. It is left to the small calibre beneficiaries of a federal bounty to smear the mud.

The mail road in the vicinity of Inez has been graded for several miles and a new bridge built near the McCarthy place. It has been rather tough going for the mail carrier during these operations, and the loose earth along the grade now needs a good rain to settle it.

Young America continues the thirst for education, or is dad and mother driving them to it? Bouncing along on saddle horses little shavers out this way head for the distant school house each morning. Some so small they have to get on a wagon wheel to slide into the saddle are going four and five miles to school.

The southwest put on holiday attire and moved in mass formation to the gayeties at Atkinson Thursday last, which in spite of wind, dust and heat drew a lot of people. That magic word free, like music to the savage breast, hath its power to charm and like a magnet to draw. Odd how people will burn a dollar's worth of gas to get a free sandwich.

Mrs. Saunders and sons departed Saturday night for Lincoln where the younger of the two boys enters academic school work. Keeping our lone vigil for a few days has been tempered by neighborly, and business visits, and Cap Addison over here finishing up the tag ends of mowing has got thru the nights undisturbed by nightmare, which encourages us to feel we are not such a bad chef at that.

In Second Chronicles, chapter 7, verses 13 and 14, of the sacred volume, is this word from the God of heaven: "If I shut up heaven that there be no rain, or if I command the locusts to devour the land, or if I send pestilence among My people; if My people which are called by My name shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek My face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and will heal their land." The cynic scorns, the unbeliever scoffs, the hopeful pray for showers, but few will comply with the simple conditions that involve a trip to the mourners' bench.

The season of the fallen leaf is just at hand. Hoar frost has not yet touched with tints of gold the swaying tree tops nor have home fires yet been lighted. The ushering of each changing season has its charm. It is the period of release from the crushing grip of intense temperatures. Spring brings its bloom of freshness and life after the dead season of snow and ice. Autumn invites to rest and enjoyment of earth's fruits, which this year are limited. The southwest may contemplate, as to material things, its hay stack, fat cattle and turkeys. There is, too, that which brings the divine infusion of mind and inspires the soul of poet and artist as he looks out across a far-flung landscape whose distant hills begin to reflect the brown shades of departed summer. Even the poet and artist are at their best when the digestive organs have ample and substantial stuff to work on.

Murphy Family Reunion

Last Sunday, September 20, 1936 a family reunion was held at the home of Dennis Murphy, the occasion being in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy, of Madison, Nebr., a brother of Dennis and only a few years older. Mr. Murphy lives in Madison and is engaged in operating a soft drink parlor and with the assistance of his good wife manages to keep aloft with the times. Mr. Murphy has a genial personality and is full of pep for a man of his age. His heart goes out to the unfortunate victims in the drought section of our country and with crop failures over most of the country it makes it more serious, if this is a permanent climatic change. He was glad to be with us as he felt free to release his pent up energy, especially when they all sat down to a fried chicken dinner in the country together with other delicious dishes on the menu. Ice cream galore and a sumptuous meal to be enjoyed at the reunion of all his relatives, except Helen, who is a trained nurse living in Omaha.

Everything was previously arranged for a day of enjoyment, and it was one that always be remembered by the Murphy family. Those who participated in the feast were, Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy, of Madison; Happy Miles and family, O'Neill; Thomas McDonald and family, Atkinson; Al Fritton and family, O'Neill; Mike Troshynski and family; Jim Murphy and family; W. Murphy and family; John Murphy and family; F. Murphy, of O'Neill Doretha relatives, of Atkinson. There were 40 relatives at the party, including Dennis and Clarence and eighteen grandchildren. The writer of this was just a stray who has a habit of commenting on the little every day affairs and we enjoyed the day very much.

Gerald Miles had a radio installed in his car and without any static in the air he kept grinding out canned music, political speeches and the thrilling comments on the coming World's series between the Giants and the Yanks. That amused the young folks very much and I was wondering where he got his nick name "Happy" but I think I have ferried it out now.

Most of the people around here have been attending the Free Day celebrations in the various towns and they seem anxious to ventilate an opinion, but the monetary system is too technical for an amateur so I will avoid commenting on the Federal reserve. We all extended our best wishes for the hospitality shown by the committee in charge. E. S. E.

Soil Conservation

The board of directors of the soil conservation association met in O'Neill on Friday, to adopt a budget for the completion of the soil conservation year.

Farm reporters have been working for a week now and are finding a few misunderstandings concerning the program. Several have disced down the rye they intended to let stand. This is not according to soil conservation practices so those contemplating this action soon, should not disturb the present stand.

The soil building allowance of $1.00 per acre is allowable for all land in soil conserving crops in 1936 but can only be earned by new seedlings in 1936.

The 1937 program is getting under way and county committees will meet in district conferences in the near future after which community meetings will be held. Ideas for future programs will be gladly received by county or community committees, and if worthy will be passed on to higher officials. Only thru full cooperation of producers and those interested can the program assisting agriculture be made successful.

Trees Should Be Watered Now To Prevent Losses

It's been a hard year on trees planted on Holt county farms and in towns but those surviving still need moisture if they are to live thru the coming winter.

After the first killing frost the leaves fall or turn brown and a thoro soaking of the ground is of vital importance because plants with their roots in dry soil are very susceptible to winter injury. Fall and early winter is an excellent time to replenish the depleted moisture supply and the deep penetration of the moisture now will have a direct bearing in the thriftiness of the tree next summer.

After growth is stopped, the trees need a thoro soaking. If fall rains are abundant, provision should be made for the moisture reaching the soil underneath the trees. In watering a large tree, foresters at the Nebraska college of agriculture ask people not to depend on surface sprinkling. Instead the job can be done thoro and effectively by boring a series of 8 to 12 inch holes 3 or 4 feet into the ground under the outside edge of the crown and watering should be done thru these. Keeping the holes filled for 8 hours twice a month will do more good than daily sprinkling.

School Notes

By C. J. McClurg
Under the provisions set aside by the Nebraska school laws, the state superintendent is charged with the responsibility of laying out a course of study for the public elementary schools. With the changing curriculum or book content it became necessary to change the course of study. The last course of study was published in 1929. Every few years it becomes necessary to revise this course and bring it up to date.

Miss Chole Baldrige, Director of Rural Education, has supervised the preparation of it. One of the new phases of the 1936 course of study is the recognition of the course in safety education based on the accident survey.

The new course of study has undergone some changes yet it did not eliminate any of the virtues of the 1929 course. It speaks eloquently of the educational work that schools are actually doing in the State of Nebraska. It represents the work of the teachers of high professional training and years of successful teaching experience.

It is flexible enough to meet the demands of the profession for years to come. Progress in education has made it necessary to keep it abreast with the field of education.

Will Hold A Poultry Field Day at Lincoln

Nebraska poultry producers are to gather at the college of agriculture in Lincoln, on Thursday, Oct. 1, for their annual field day program, according to word received here by Agricultural Agent Reece.

The 1936 program will concentrate attention on current poultry problems with special attention paid to turkeys. With the marketing season only a short time away, considerable interest in turkey talk is expected. Among those appearing on the program will be J. R. Redditt, J. H. Claybaugh, H. E. Alder and F. E. Mussehl, all of the college of agriculture.

Appearance of H. C. Pierce, chief egg buyer for one of the largest chain stores in the country, on the program, is expected to increase the usual attendance. He will talk about "The consumer bosses the job." N. W. Gaines will speak during the morning hours. F. D. Young of the agricultural engineering department is to exhibit some interesting electrical hired men. The gathering closes in the late afternoon with a tour of the poultry farm.

TIME TO CHOOSE

It is not difficult to see that the course Europe is taking is wrong, full of pitfalls and extremely likely to lead to war; something no one can really welcome.

That we are following Europe's leadership had not occurred to many Americans. But it is not difficult to detect the signs. How has Europe gone? Europe has proceeded thru a period of political turmoil within each nation. There has been a more or less desperate struggle between the left and right forces, the great middle classes being trampled in the fight.

The developments in this country are strikingly similar to those in Europe, when the similarity is pointed out. It may not have occurred to many of us that we are treading the path worn smooth by the nations of Europe. But when someone points to this development at home and reminds us that it took place in each of the leading European powers in the last decade or so, we become conscious of the analogy; we begin to realize that
