Uncle Phil Says:

The Mark Stays

Gossip is like mud thrown against a clean wall; it may not stick but it leaves a mark.

Be natural, borrowed garments seldom fit well.

There are people who think they are observant, who can't tell you offhand what are the pictures on a one-dollar bill or a five-dollar bill. Smile, smile, smile if you like, but don't pound people over the head in your enthusiasm to make them do it.

Ability to Profit There is sometimes much ability in knowing how to profit by good advice.

The life you lead writes its story on your face, but only the clever can read it.

Things that "cannot be done" are done within the following twenty years. A girl's no-hope chest is one that begins to accumulate interest-bearing bonds.

The Wilful Transgressor

It is not the compelled, but the wilful transgression of law which corrupts the character.

There is nothing like the candor of boys toward each other's faults.

Noah never wrote a book on natural history when he had the best of opportunities.

If his wife is the best dressed woman at the party, a man thinks it's worth it.

Destroying Accomplishments

Can't you see a splendid tree without thinking of the thrill of cutting it down? Apparently some can't and the anticipation overcomes them.

Silence is the wisest argument of the ignorant man and the wise man can frequently use it to advantage.

A boy changes his voice at the age of fifteen or sixteen, and he changes all his notions, too.

HIS is the story of a man, a woman and a dog-and I'll A admit right at the start that the dog got the dirty end of the deal.

The woman was Ellen J. Swanson of Springfield, N. J. The dog's name was Bill. The name of the man, I can't give you. I don't know it, and Ellen Swanson doesn't even want to know it. Maybe he wouldn't want us to know it either. There you have the characters in our story. Twenty-four years ago, on a cold, January night, Fate juggled up a meeting between them-and most anything Fate arranges is packed full of drama.

The scene of that meeting was the home of Ellen and her husband on the outskirts of Summit, N. J. It was almost one o'clock in the morning, but Ellen was still up. Her husband was working late that night, and he'd want a hot meal when he came home. It was on the stove cooking now-and Ellen was sitting in the kitchen beside the red-hot stove, reading and fighting off drowsiness.

Enter the Brutal Looking Tramp.

Came a knock at the door. That ought to be her husband. Ellen jumped out of her chair, opened the door, exclaiming, "You poor dear!" But the last word stuck in her throat. Her feet seemed to freeze to the floor. It was not her husband.

It wasn't her husband, but the ugliest, dirtiest, most brutal looking tramp Ellen had ever seen. He had a long hunting knife in his hand, and under his arm was a bloody newspaper from which the head of a dead rabbit protruded. From a piece of clothesline tied around his waist hung a dead chicken.

Ellen stood gazing, speechless, at this strange figure. The tramp was the first one to speak. "I saw your light," he said, "and I ain't got no matches. I want to cook this here chicken." He paused, and Ellen noted to her horror that the tramp had planted his foot inside the door so that she couldn't close it. "But maybe you give me something to eat," he went on. "I been walkin' a long ways."

He Made Himself at Home.

Ellen had to fight to find her voice. "Ye-es." she stammered. "Wait there. I'll bring something out to you." But the tramp pushed his foot farther into the kitchen. "It's too dark out here to see to eat," he stated flatly. And with that he stepped inside, pushed her out of the way, and closed the door behind him.

"I walked over to the table," says Ellen, "but I did not feel the floor under my feet. The tramp pulled out a chair and sat down. Somehow I got a plate and poured him some soup. Crackers and bread were already on the table, and he began to eat.

"In the meantime I was praying to God to save me and my two small children. I was so frightened that my teeth were chattering, and perspiration formed in beads all over my face. I wanted to scream, but I knew it would be useless. The road we lived on didn't have many houses. There was one off to the right of us, but on the other side there was nothing but dense woods.

"Then, like a flash, a thought came to me-and with it came a little courage. I stepped across the room, saying, 'I must get the dog before you go out again. He is a fierce, vicious watch dog, and it's funny that he missed you coming in.""

One Thing Made Bill Angry.

Ellen did have a dog-a big one. But he was no more vicious than Shirley Temple. He was just a big, good-natured hulk of a mutt that made friends with anybody and everybody. But Ellen had a plan. She called, "Bill-here Bill." And Bill came running like a streak. Inside the kitchen he spied the tramp and was all set to wag his tail. But Ellen grabbed his collar, held on to him with all her might, and put her scheme into action.

There was just one thing that ever made Bill get mad. When Ellen's youngest child was a baby, Bill used to like to walk beside her carriage. He walked so close that the wheels would run over his big clumsy feet. On such occasions he would growl and snap, and the hair on his back would bristle up like a porcupine's quills.

That was what Ellen had remembered. Now she thrust out her foot and came down hard on poor Bill's toes.

Bill growled and tried to pull away. Ellen held him faced toward the tramp and tugged backward on his collar. The tramp looked up from his plate of soup, and Ellen stepped on Bill's foot again.

Fierce Enough to Scare Any Tramp.

She stepped a little harder that second time, and Bill almost went crazy with pain. The hair on his back stood up in true porcupine fashion. Bill looked like the toughest, most dangerous dog in the world at that moment.

The tramp jumped out of his chair. Ellen could see that he was beginning to be afraid. Then she put on the finishing touches to her little act. In a breathless voice she said to the tramp: "I think you'd better go now. I can't hold him much longer, and I'm afraid his collar will break."

And with that, Ellen stepped once more on Bill's toes. Bill let out another deep-throated growl-tugged furiously at his collar again. The tramp began gathering up his bundles. He got them together and slunk out of the door-reluctant to leave his half-finished dinner behind him, but not any too anxious to stay in the same room with that snarling, vicious dog.

Jiujitsu means literally the art of making one's opponent use his strength to his own disadvantage. This science is taught to every officer and enlisted man of the Japanese tablished that a senator is never army, navy and police force.

The War department says there is no treaty obligation forbidding such an air base. If there were, what of it? Treaties can be cancelled, and should be when they are foolish or unjust-for further details, ask Hitler.

Mr. Green's American Federation of Labor decides on a "fight to a showdown" with Mr. Lewis' "Committee for Industrial Organization," which wants to unionize all the 30,000,000 workers not yet organized, and seems to include taking over Mr. Green and his federation also.

Next on the program appears to be a big labor fight: Mr. Green is thoughtful, wise; Mr. Lewis is forceful, determined. The outcome cannot be predicted. The outside citizen will pray that there may not be too much interference with returning prosperity.

A greatly increased demand for tools shows that more men are getting jobs, and announcements of new wage increases, big and little, are many. Twenty-three more firms have announced better wages for 28,000 more workers.

An average increase of $130 a year, less than 50 cents a day, might seem unimportant, but it means one hundred and thirty million more dollars that 1,000,000 workers will have to spend, in a year. That is not unimportant.

England intends next time to devote her energy and strength to protecting herself.

Sir Samuel Hoare, first lord of the admiralty, says England has no "commitments" like those of 1914, similar cut-away effects with long that would compel her to send troops to the continent if war should start. The princess influence is as everywhere present in daytime clothes as it is in formal evening clothes. From the formal evening angle the message is of regal black velvet gowns cut exquisitely a la princess, the long unbelted lines of classic simplicity sweeping out into expansive hemlines. The very beautiful moire silks so favored for dinner and dance gowns yield gloriously to princess styling, as do also the fashionable metal cloths and brocades.

CONTRAST OF COLOR CHARACTERIZES HAT

Contrast in color continues to characterize the fall hats. Dashes of bright color on black hats are frequent. Other color contrasts gaining favor in millinery are: Cocoa felt with ivy green faille; dark Araby brown felt with royal blue faille contrast; dark deep green in felt with ribbon in soft rusty wine.

Some of the shades appearing in velvet hats in Paris are plum, purplish blue, empire green, Chinese blue, harvest grape and cocoa.

Tailored Suit With Fur

Is Ideal for Autumn Days If you don't have to worry about a budget and can go ahead and buy an outfit for now and a warmer one for later, a tailored or dressmaker suit with fur is ideal. It may include slim skirt and jacket with fur collar and cuffs or a plain jacket and skirt with fur-trimmed topcoat, swagger or fitted. The most popular version of the formalized variety come in black broadcloth with Persian lamb or silver fox; brown broadcloth with mink or brown Persian. The sports types are finished with wolf, lynx or raccoon collars and are made from the new rough, nubby woolens.

Silver Threads

The current coin of fashion is silver gleaming on crepe or satiny backgrounds. A blouse with the glitter of silver-needn't be expensive at all-will turn your suit into a five o'clock costume.

Skirts and Sleeves

While there are exceptions to this rule, in most cases plain sleeves are used on dresses when the skirt is flaring, and full sleeves on dresses having narrow skirts.

Don't Try to "Save" on Home Remedies-Ask Your Doctor

There is one point, on which practically all doctors agree. That is: Don't give your child unknown remedies without asking your doctor first.

All mothers know this. But sometimes the instinct to save a few pennies by buying "something just as good" overcomes caution.

When it comes to the widely used children's remedy — "milk of mag-nesia" — many doctors for over half a century have said "PHILLIPS." For Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is the standard of the world. Safe for children.
