NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert
Possibilities for changes in the political lineup due to the fight for and against the President's bill to enlarge the Supreme Court continue to be interesting. There seems little doubt, whether the President's compromise wins or not, that the fight on the measure is causing wounds that will be slow to heal and may bring new and different alignments in some of our forty-eight states.

For instance, word comes from New Jersey that Representative Elmer H. Wene will be a candidate for governor of the state, a position which is also coveted by United States Senator Harry A. Moore. Here the political line-up begins to assert itself. Wene is an ardent New Dealer and has, so far as possible, supported all of the president's measures in congress. On the other hand, Senator Moore has from the start been an opponent of the president's so-called court packing bill. Some time ago it was learned that Senator Moore will make the race for governor of New Jersey with the powerful backing of Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, the outstanding democratic leader in the state.

Mr. Wene will be backed by the other United States Senator from New Jersey, William H. Smathers, who is a New Deal leader at Washington. Although Mayor Hague has made no public statement he is supposed to be out of sympathy with at least a part of the New Deal measures. Moreover he is a close personal and political friend of Senator Moore.

The New Dealers are said to be joyous over the announcement of Congressman Wene as a candidate for governor as they would like to punish Senator Moore for failing to line up with the president on the court fight. With Wene and Smathers and the New Deal administration on one side and Senator Moore and Mayor Hague on the other, the primary fight would develop into a beautiful one. Just what the outcome would mean is rather doubtful, especially in view of the fact that New Jersey is normally a republican state.

At the same time it is reported that New Deal democrats in Indiana are preparing to punish Senator Van Nuys for his opposition to the court measure by refusing him a renomination. Senator Wheeler of Montana has told the senate of political pressure brought to bear upon him to line up for the court measure, and political threats made against him by New Deal leaders because of his failure to line up. Other Senators opposing the New Deal court measure have intimated the same thing.

Mayor Hague dismisses the threatened candidacy of Congressman Wene for the governorship of New Jersey as a dream due to hot weather. National Chairman Farley predicts the success of the compromise court bill and denies that it will cause a rift in the democratic party. Perhaps in each case the wish is father to the thought. There is ample indication, however, that all is not peace within the democratic ranks and that many statesmen are now looking forward to control of the organization in 1940. The political situation is rapidly developing interest. It is altogether possible that the first battle will be waged in the democratic primaries next year.

When you think of the power of the press don't forget to consider the number of fellows who behave themselves for fear they might get their names in the newspapers.

The average political federal office holder works so hard to get his job that when he is appointed he is all tired out and unable to do much more.

Utopia is a place where the other fellow has to pay all the taxes, where you can sell your wheat for two dollars a bushel and get a 24-pound bag of flour for a nickel.
