Public Speaking
 What shall I say? Because the answer to this most perplexing question confronting speakers is "Use your past life and experiences," the public speaking class members are delving into the depths of their memories to convince themselves that everyone has something interesting and worth while to say.
 Now we are talking out the window, talking at the floor, talking when we can't think of something to say (and-a), talking, just because we have to give a speech. Now that we realize what we have been doing each member of the class will make an effort to correct his own particular fault and be interested in telling something to the audience.

The American History students are engaged in a study of the International relations of the United States after the Spanish-American war, including the initiation of the Open Door policy, a point of controversy in the Far East today.
 The Library students are beginning their study of the Dewey classification of numbers after the preliminary study of how books are made and how they are mended.
 The Latin students have just finished learning a group of Latin phrases commonly used today. They are also studying the forms of verbs as a basis for English grammar.

The shop classes are studying the best type and kind of tools for using the different kinds of wood. How to sharpen their tools and keep them in first class working order—the types and uses of the different planes, their cutting edges and care of same.
 The Band is giving a Benefit show at the Royal Theater Wednesday, Feb. 16, to obtain money to go to the Music Contest at Wayne on April 1 and 2.
 Miss Duffy, Miss Kvam, L. M. Durham and Jr. Harris drove to Elgin Saturday returning Sunday. Miss Duffy and Miss Kvam were met by Miss Duffy's parents from Petersburg.

The Art class students have started on facial features. They are enlarging copying features of the face, nose, ears, eyes and head forms from the printed page.
 Junior Toy is assembling a feature window display. It is quite a unique project, operated entirely by electricity.
 Bob Cliff is assembling a Chinese feature trick dresser box—very close measurements are required. All shop work will be on display at the close of school and we invite all interested parties to come to the shop display and look the projects over—it promises to be by far the best exhibit so far displayed.
 A very fine walnut table is being turned out by George Hendrix—very fine work from a first year shop student.
 A lot of orders came in last week from different O'Neill citizens to the shop class for different articles to be made—we appreciate your cooperation and ask for more articles to be made and also repair articles. This tends to make the course more practical and interesting.
 Mrs. Rasley had two corner shelves made in the shop identically the same, to be placed in certain corners of her new modern bungalow, unity giving balance.

Alfred Tenneyson's immortal "Idylls of the King" is being studied by the English Literature class. The ideals of knighthood and traits of character, honor, loyalty, trustworthiness, courage and ambition of the knights and King Arthur are of special interest to the class.
 In the Word Test over words in the Readers Digest all classes have found there is need for building of larger vocabularies.
 The Pep Squad has chartered a bus to attend the O'Neill-Valentine basketball game Feb. 11. This is the longest trip the squad has made this year. The game promises to be well worth the time and expense, as the score of the game with Valentine at O'Neill was 13 to 14.
 The Pep Club will present the play, "Where's Grandma" some time in the near future.
 This coming week is the deadline for Seniors to order their announcements. The announcements will be done in the Senior colors, Silver and Royal Blue.
 Typing classes are working on rough draft and tabulation material. The spelling classes are spelling legal terms, technical and furniture, insurance, real estate and medical terms. The word causing the most trouble this week was "propitious." Do you know what it means?

Grade School Notes
 February's two famous birthdays and St. Valentine's day seem to be the center of interest in room decorations as well as correlated work. The first grade pupils are making a special study of Abraham Lincoln and George Washington. They are proudly displaying many interesting pictures of these two great Americans on their bulletin board.
 The story of Abraham Lincoln is the "Book of the Week" in the Third grade. They also have pictures, poems and stories of Lincoln and St. Valentine's day as part of their work.
 George Washington silhouettes make an attractive border in the Fourth grade room.
 The Fifth graders have discovered that dogs, turtles and Betty Boops can be made from hearts and half hearts.
 The color scheme, red, white and blue, has been used by the decoration committee in the Sixth grade room. Stress has been placed on birthdays to be remembered and St. Valentine's day.
 Wallace Shelhammer, Eugene Simpson and John Patros of the first grade have been ill all week.

The boys and girls of the Second grade have had some interesting telephone conversations. They have learned how to call the doctor, the grocery store, their homes, and friends. A long distance call was made to Eskimo land asking for information about the people and customs of this northern country.
 The Third grade students are finding their new readers very enjoyable.
 The study of Holland, the land of windmills, has been started in the Fourth grade. They are especially interested in learning more of the cheese factories and diamond cutting establishments of this country.
 The health contest is progressing nicely. A surprise has been promised to the row having the highest number of points.
 Mrs. Elmer Ernst visited the Fourth grade Monday afternoon.
 Learning to pronounce Spanish words has been the hobby of the Fifth grade while studying Mexico.
 The silent reading class of the Sixth grade is trying to interpret the written directions with as little assistance as possible. This is part of their program for better comprehension of reading material.
 India has been the country for study in the Seventh grade. Many reasons were suggested and discussed as to why India has not become an independent country. The result of this discussion was a greater knowledge of the customs, religious, superstitions, people, resources, and industries of a country which has such a large part of the world's population.
 These items of interest come from the Eighth grade:
 Jerry Toy is the only one in the room to have completed all his book reports for the entire year.
 Keith Vincent and Jerry Toy each received 100 per cent in their civics test.
 George Dexter has been dropped from the roll. He has moved to Creighton.
 Some 35,000 gallons of white paint is to be used during the coming year for painting the center strips on Nebraska highways and 2,400 gallons of other paints for guard rails and other highway equipment. State Purchasing Agent J. R. Farris has recently been asking for bids on these paints, making the stipulation that a representative of the highway department is to see the paint mixed at the factory, checking all ingredients.
 Those Russian reds may not be so good on the initiative and referendum but they are sure strong on the recall.
