

SOUTHEASTERN BREEZES

By Romaine Saunders

Milder days bring a procession onto the sidewalk. A half-hour spent on a not too busy corner is an education in nature as disclosed by passing bipeds. There goes the care-free yither knowing nothing yet of the bitter dregs of life's disappointments; another prematurely aged under the burden of a load laid across his shoulders too early in life; and then the jaunty co-ed from the university campus, who meets the world with a smirk; the well-groomed couple, whose outward trappings of prosperity cannot quite conceal a troubled state of mind; the infirm from age and disease plodding their halting way in the ebb and flow of the human current that has become too swift for them; a purple-faced gent of mature years and ponderous paunch; the spritely dame stepping along on high heels, a tuft of white hair escaped from under the head gear showing that she is no longer young; the irrepressible kid, who dodges in and out of traffic and halts for no red lights. And so day by day, year by year, hurrying feet carry the procession on until life's fitful dream is over.

If you think you have to take something with a "kick," eat an onion.

The story comes out of the classic legislative hall of a member who slips between words when making an address on an important pending measure to draw a few puffs on a cigarette. Throwing up a smoke screen?

An American bank bandit looks like a piker compared with Herr Hitler.

There are a half dozen or more Townsend clubs in Lincoln doing their level best to promote the passage in congress of H.R. 2 to set up a pension plan. Maybe it could be no worse a fizzle than the various New Deal nostrums.

After the expenditure of billions and the application of various regulatory measures to "save the farmer" he finds all he has to depend on at this season is 17c cream and 12c eggs, and feels he hasn't done so bad if the week's accumulation of hail for enough to buy the gas to haul it in and maybe a cake of soap to bring home to do the family wash.

AN EASTER THOUGHT: The crucifixion and resurrection were past. The way was open to the throne of the Infinite for a fallen world. In the early dawn Jesus met a group of the disciples on the shore of Galilee. Addressing Peter as the leader of the group he said, "Feed my sheep." The disciples had spent the night out on the lake fishing. After Pentecost we read no more of fish nets. The imbedded fishermen have become the mighty apostles of the cross. And out of their relation to the instruction embodied in those three words there comes down through the centuries an heritage made available to mankind everywhere of that resurrection to a "life which shall endles be."

BOYSTOWN TO BE ENLARGED

Father Flannigan's Boys Will Get New Dormitories and a New $100,000 Dining Hall.

Plans for a $635,000 building expansion program for Father Flannigan's Boy's Home at Boytown, Neb., were revealed recently by Father Edward J. Flannigan, founder and director of this institution.

The announcement of the building program was announced by Father Flannigan after the Board's home Board of Trustees, headed by Bishop James Hugh Ryan, of Omaha, had approved the expansion program which has been under consideration for the past five months.

Plans for the building program are yet to be raised, Father Flannigan indicated as he announced the proposed building program. Bids will be asked on the huge expansion program shortly, he indicated. Included in the program will be the construction of four new dormitories which will house 125 boys each. The buildings will be fireproof construction of cement faced with brick. The new dormitories will permit increasing enrollment from 200 to 500 boys and will cost at a maximum $350,000. A dining hall will be built at a cost of $100,000. Peace on Earth

The pulpit and press, schoolroom and platform have resounded thru the many years with the words of peace and love. There are instances when the echo has been heard, that the need has been felt, that the words have carried weight, but this was only temporary and the echo died away. The power of the great of the earth is not equal to the call. The heeding of the lowly ones falls too far short to stop the onslaught. What manner of man will we hear when he calls, "Peace?" One man said it, and the light of an Easter morn brings its echo again to us, a world in grave need of its comfort. When a loving voice, many Easter mornings back, spoke the words of wisdom, "Peace be unto you," the sound fell through the ages to be repeated among the peoples of the earth. But to what avail! The love and fellowship of man for man, has not vanished from the world, it is there for us, who are too engrossed to remember that the wisest man has showed us the way.

We arise with the radiance of an Easter morning in our hearts, and the lesson of an Easter teaching in our homes. It is not possible for us to carry this lesson into the rest of the year's calendar? The resurrection and the rebirth, the chance to live again, is given to us all. There is no man in O'Neill who would not improve himself, his morals, his entire existence, when given another chance. Life again, with its foundation based on Peace, is a satisfying picture to a hate-inspired world. It is Easter that reminds us of the need to remake, remodel and remove. We would wash the world clean and purge ourselves of petty hates, unfair practices, smallness in deceit, and intrigue both individual and international. We have wanted many times to remove the unpleasant and undesirable things in our lives and to begin anew with a fairer and wiser hand. Throughout the year we slumber in self-satisfaction and self-pity. We awake on Easter morn to righteousness, of love instead of hate, of a new life in a rebirth. Must we be born again to high aspirations with its keynote of love and peace, to die again until another Easter morning awakens our spirit?

For those who desire and seek the answer of what lies beyond, for those of us who wish the light and the truth, we have it with us though we do not consider it. Spoken by Him, "Peace be unto you."

HOMESTEADER AND PIONEER PASSES

Vincent V. Rosekrans passed away at his home west of Dorsey Wednesday morning, April 5, 1939, after an illness of but a few days of ailments incident to old age, at the age of 83 years, 7 months and one day. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Dorsey church, Rev. L. F. Lewis, of Hastings, officiating and interment in the Dorsey cemetery.

Vincent Vergne Rosekrans was born at Columbus, Wisconsin, September 4, 1855 and lived there for a few years then the family moved to Minnesota where he grew to manhood. When in his teens he went to Chicago where he was employed until he came to this county on June 1, 1881. He took a homestead in the northeastern part of the county on his arrival here and built a little cabin on the homestead. That cabin had been improved and at the time of his passing he had a fine commodious home there, but the part of the house which was his bedroom and in which he passed away was that part of the building he erected on the homestead in 1881.

In the summer of 1883 he went back to his old home in Minnesota and at Little Falls, Minn., he was united in marriage to Miss Minnie Sunderland, returning at once to Holt county. To this union two sons were born, one passing to the great beyond at the age of six years, the other, Harold V. Rosekrans, lives in the Dorsey neighborhood on a farm adjoining that of his father. In addition to his son he leaves four grandchildren and one great grand child to mourn the passing of a kind and affectionate father and grandfather. His wife preceded him in death in 1936.

Mr. Rosekrans was one of the pioneer residents and most beloved of the pioneer settlers of the northeast section of the county. Had he lived until June 1st it would have been 58 years since he came to the county and during all the years of his residence here he had always been active in promoting the better things of life that would be of benefit to his community and the county as a whole. A Presbyterian church was organized at Dorsey in 1882, Mr. Rosekrans being one of the organizers and he was elected one of the elders and that position he held in the church up to the time of his death. He was a splendid citizen and had the respect, love and admiration of every citizen of the county who had the pleasure of his acquaintance. He was made up of that class of citizens who bring success to any new country, love for their fellow man, honest, industrious and frugal and with the love of God in their hearts. His passing will be mourned by a legion of friends all over the county.

The alleged offense was committed last Saturday night and Donohoe was arrested by Calkins shortly after the incident. When the case came before Judge Malone on Tuesday Donohoe pled guilty and was fined $50.00 and costs amounting to $3.10, or a total of $53.10.

O'NEILL GRIDSTER IS MAKING HUSKER HISTORY

O'Neill sport fans have for years been ardent supporters and followers of the Cornhusker football team and at all home games there is always a large delegation of local fans on hand to boost the players and urge them to victory. From present indications there will be a larger attendance of O'Neill people at Husker games during the coming year than ever before. And there is a reason. It looks now as if this city would have a representative on the Husker team for the first time in history. It will be Jack Vincent. During spring practice Jack has been improving with every practice and it looks now as if he would be on the first string when the season opens officially next fall.

Wednesday afternoon the first and second strings engaged in the last game before spring vacation. According to newspaper accounts the teams were pretty evenly matched and it was a good game, with a thrilling finish. With only three minutes to play, Jack Vincent sent a pass to substitute Willard Bunker, which he caught and then Vincent kicked placement for the additional point winning the game with a score of 7 to 0. Shortly before this winning pass Vincent had tossed another 30 yards that was good and placed them in scoring position.

O'NEILL SKYLINE RAPIDLY CHANGING

Brick Buildings Will Soon Replace Wooden Structures that Have Been Old Landmarks

The skyline of O'Neill is continually changing, and if the rate at which old buildings have been demolished during the past two years continues another year or two there will be but few of the old landmarks left by which the old timer, when he returns for a visit, will be able to recognize the "old home town."

The latest building to fall under the wreckers hands is the old Alberts building on Douglas street, occupied for the past few years by Ralph McIlvain as a liquor store. Work of tearing the building down was commenced Tuesday by William McManus and it will be a thing of the past before nightfall.

This building will be replaced by a brick, tile and cement building 22½x72 feet to be erected by Mr. McIlvain to house his business. He just moved to the Brennan building just west of his old establishment, where he will continue in business until the erection of his own buildings. It is estimated that the new building will be completed by July 1st.

The wrecked building was one of the pioneers on Douglas street. In order to ascertain its age and the name of its builder a perusal of the records in the office of the register of deeds was necessary. The records show that the lot on which the building stood was purchased by M. M. Sullivan on February 14, 1883, from M. D. Long, the consideration being $200. The building was probably erected by Mr. Sullivan on the lots that summer. On June 29, 1888, Mr. Sullivan sold the building to Valentine Alberts for $1800.00. The lot just east of the one on which this building stood was purchased by Mr. Sullivan from Patrick Fahy on October 19, 1880, upon which he later erected one of the largest mercantile establishments in the west, which he successfully operated for many years. This building is now owned by Charles Peterson.

Another old time building will be eliminated within the next few weeks. The building on the alley, on Fourth street, between Douglas and Everett streets, now occupied by Roy Osborne's beer parlor, which will be moved back to the end of the lot and a new brick building will be erected thereon. This work is to start before the end of the month.
