Nebraska Accident Survey

The Three E's of Safety — Education, Engineering, Enforcement Accidents reversed their trend as the total for the week ending April 15, 1939. Casualties for the period dropped to one hundred sixty from one hundred eighty-seven. Deaths, however, moved up from twelve to fifteen. The children's situation again turns to the worse with four children reported killed and thirty injured.

Automobile Mishaps Tie Previous Mark

Motor vehicle accidents tied last week's total at ninety-seven although the list of injuries and deaths dropped from seventy-six to sixty-two. A tire blowout caused a crash near Grand Island in which one was killed. A North Loup woman was instantly killed when she lost control of her car near there. A third death occurred near Omaha when a pedestrian was struck down on the highway. A Norfolk woman sustained a disability when her car skidded off the road.

The Nebraska Safety Patrol established a new record for arrests during March when 488 persons were booked on various charges. The patrolmen traveled an aggregate of 157,866 miles, aided 1,225 motorists, issued 325 warning cards and 997 violation cards, removed 793 obstructions from the highway, investigated and reported 47 accidents, and recovered four stolen cars. Of the 488 arrests, 372 were convicted, 75 cases continued, 42 dismissed and 14 suspended.

Out of thirty-three collisions, sixteen were injured while seventeen more were hurt when drivers lost control of their cars. Tire blowouts caused wrecks in which five were injured, and four pedestrians were run down by automobiles and injured. A mechanical defect and skidding each contributed one injury to the list while hitting obstructions, bicycle-car mixups, and falling from moving vehicles each were responsible for two being hurt. Four persons suffered facial injuries in car mishaps, two more had arm and hand injuries, a man broke his leg while attempting to push his car out of the mud and another has his automobile fall on him while he was working underneath it.

Public Accidents Move Down

Other public mishaps also moved down as the figure came to forty-seven as compared to fifty-two. Injuries and deaths dropped to thirty-three from forty-three. A boy was fatally injured when a heavy piece of sports equipment struck him on the head. A second child died as the result of a fall and a third death came when a man succumbed to infection caused by a splinter in his hand. A man lost an eye after it was struck by a shot from an air rifle. A second disability came as the result of a fall.

Ten persons were hurt in play or sports this week. Seven accidents occurred at school. Nine fell, two were cut, and another was hurt when a gun discharged accidentally. Two persons suffered eye injuries and four others sustained respectively an injured foot, back, shoulder, and arm. Ten public fires were reported.

Home Mishaps Remain Same

Home accidents also tied last week's mark at forty-four although the casualty list rose from seventeen to twenty-eight. A child died as the result of a Home fire and two others were fatally burned in Home mishaps. A child died after swallowing medicine intended for adult use, and two persons were accidentally asphyxiated when gas seeped into their home. Nine were injured in falls, eight were burned, and two were cut. Another sustained a hand injury and a child is recovering after falling into a cess pool. Washing machine injuries continue to grow as another to add to the list makes it one hundred seventy in close to a year and nine months. There were nineteen fires.

Have you ever noticed that before we were found out we care a lot what our neighbors think, and when found out we figure it is none of their business?
