

No. 66. It is also stated that the most feasible route will be chosen for a wide, highway between Chicago and Los Angeles.

The location of a training school for aviators in Lincoln has been followed by renewed activity on the part of the Ak-Sar-Ben Public Power and Irrigation District for the construction of a dam across the Platte River at South Bend.

If carried out, the building of this dam would create a lake approximately five miles in length and from one to three miles wide. The hills near the river are adapted to camouflage for the protection of a hydro - plane-aeroplane assembly plant.

The presidential reorganization orders, two in number, are expected to go into effect July 1 or soon thereafter.

Federal employees in all the alphabetical agencies are jittery.

It is expected that the shakeup in the Department of Agriculture will be accompanied with considerable pain and protest. While the department loses the Bureau of Roads and Bridges, it takes over REA and several other activities.

One disturbing report is that all the high-priced executives under the dominion of Secretary Wallace will be returned to the states in which they reside. This will remove a regiment of workers who are credited with drawing princely salaries.

Former Senator Martin Dimery, of Sidney, has presented to the state historical society an oaken insulator bracket which he found on the camp grounds and battlefield near the site of the old telegraph station at Mud Springs, where ceremonies were recently held. He believes that it probably was used on the old telegraph line between Julesburg and Fort Laramie, built in 1861, and abandoned about 1870. Dr. A. E. Sheldon, superintendent of the historical society, now has the relic on display.

Every woman in O'Neill still has a warm spot in her heart for the first fellow who brought her a bag of hard-tack and told her she was pretty.

Interstate Power Safety Director Cautions Summer Vacationers

With the summer comes the school vacations—children playing in the streets, in vacant lots, at the lakes, in the playgrounds, and nearly every place you could mention. Have you done anything toward teaching your children where and how to play safely? If you haven't you are shirking your responsibility! It is only natural for children to play, and if no playground is available, they will play in the streets. When we are driving our cars and approach a group of children, it is well to remember that they are liable to do unexpected things. They do not react the same as a grown person. Remember that, and proceed with caution.

With summer also comes vacations for all of us. There are a lot of hazards connected with vacationing. The most formidable, perhaps, is the highway traffic hazard. However, when city folks take to the woods and lakes, preparations for leaving should be made before for camp home. Hatchets and knives should have sheaths, firearms should be in a locked container, particularly if any children are in the party. Study a good first aid book in advance. Learn to recognize poison plants, such as poison ivy, poison oak and sumac. Also be prepared to treat such poisons in the event a member of the party requires treatment. Spend a little time thinking about what your activities will be, and think about what might happen—then prepare yourself to meet those emergencies; should they occur. Take plenty of warm clothing and a first aid kit.

Get plenty of sleep and rest. Eat simple food. Do not overindulge in physical activities. Remember if you are not used to much exercise, you cannot get used to strenuous exercise in a few days. A good sunburn or strained muscle may spoil the balance of your vacation. Give a little serious thought in planning your vacation and you'll enjoy it much more.—E. R. LEHMAN, Safety Director, Interstate Power Co., Dubuque, Iowa.

BRIEFLY STATED

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Caldwell and daughter, of Huron, S. D., arrived Sunday to attend the annual golf tournament and visit friends. From here they drove to Broken Bow, where they will visit relatives for the next month, before returning to their home in South Dakota.

Rev. Walter Flynn, who has been in O'Neill for the past two years as assistant to Monsignor McNamara, left this morning for Clyde, Nebraska, to which pastorate he has been assigned. Father Parr, of Dodge, Nebr., will come the latter part of the week to be the assistant here.

J. M. Lannigan, president of the Nebraska State Bar Association, and Dr. M. M. Sullivan, of Greeley, came up Monday for a short visit with O'Neill friends and incidentally to take in the festivities connected with the annual golf tournament. They returned home Tuesday evening.

Mrs. M. A. Summers, northeast of this city, is visiting at the home of her brother in Omaha. Mrs. Summers informed us a couple of weeks ago that a first cousin of hers, living in New York City, was the author of a book entitled, "Autumn Gold," which is now on sale. It is the story of a triangle and is said to be well worth reading. The author, Norman McGlashan has the satisfaction of having the first editor who ever read the story to accept it for publication. It is published by the Tome Publishing company, of New York City.

Gordon Leader Named Officer in NCTC Drive

Mrs. I. S. Magowan, of Gordon, has been elected a vice-president of the National Consumers Tax Commission, it was announced at the commission's national headquarters in Chicago today.

The announcement was made by Mrs. Kenneth C. Frazier, of Dallas, Texas, retiring president, who is elevated to the chairmanship of the board. Mrs. Melville Muckelstone, Chicago, succeeds to the presidency as the NCTC enters its second year.

In announcing the election's outcome, Mrs. Frazier said the candidates first received the almost unanimous endorsement of the national committee. Ballots were then sent to the 5,000 chairmen who head local NCTC tax study units throughout the country and an overwhelming proportion of those returned approved the nominees.

Long identified with women's activities, Mrs. Magowan is corresponding secretary of the Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs. She has, for the last year, been national committee member and state director of the NCTC for Nebraska, guiding the organization's crusade in that state against "consumer-penalizing taxes."

"Any nation-wide, non-partisan organization which can succeed in arousing tax consciousness among women and stimulate an interest in getting more for their money—both in government and in their own households—must necessarily be a great force for good," Mrs. Magowan said. "I am sure that under Mrs. Muckelstone's leadership the commission will continue the first year's amazing progress, and that within the year we will have 2,000,000 women studying the problems of taxation."

Other officers elected were: Mrs. William T. Hannah, Waynesville, N. C., Mrs. John S. Harvey, Huntington, W. Va., Miss Marie Ames, St. Louis, Mo., vice-presidents, and Mrs. James C. Carmark, Providence, R. I., sec. Mrs. Lelia B. Norman, Miami, Fla. was re-elected treasurer.

There is always one way to tell if O'Neill wives are good cooks. Look and see how many tin cans are in the rubbish.

Seeing the outfits worn in the many Easter parades, we figure they all looked pretty good on the outside but what about how they felt on the inside?
