EMMET ITEMS

Everyone big enough to carry a gun, if they had a gun or could borrow one, were out bright and early Sunday morning to try and bring in their share of pheasants. Guns were popping all day and everyone we talked to had a successful first day. However Leon Beckwith seems to be the only one that bagged a coyote.

Mrs. Clyde Allen entertained at a bridge club Friday night. Alda Pongratz won high and Mrs. Pat McGinnis was second high. Mrs. George Lewis and Mrs. Frank Foreman were the other prize winners. A delicious luncheon was served at the close of the evening.

The millinery style show sponsored by the Methodist Ladies Aid held last Wednesday at the Claude Bates home was well attended and enjoyed by everyone present. Mrs. John Conard and Mrs. Clyde Allen had charge of the entertainment and the hats which were designed and made by the individual wearing them were very, very amusing. Grandma Cole won first prize which was a small 1939 model. Her hat sat pointedly on one ear and was created from a pot holder with a daring red ribbon bustle bow. Mrs. Claude Bates also favored the bustle style with a black velvet perched at the back of her clever rubber number. Mrs. Ruth Wayman was awarded second prize with her hat made of chimney stop with the wires wrapped in different shades of chenille yarn. A tassell and flowers of chenille were the final touch of chic. Mrs. Henry Patterson modeled a beautiful evening number of lace net and flowers. Mrs. Guy Cole wore a daring one made of a phonograph record bent to shape and adorned with late holly hocks and real Russian thistle. A lace wimple also favored the record style and was the last word. Mrs. Bob Fox also favored the record style and Mrs. Leon Beckwith wore a cunning wimple on her creation. The other models were made from paper plates, saucupans, funnels, overhoops, paper sacks, curtain drapes, dollies, etc. A lunch served by the committee ended the afternoon.
