They're Saying NO!

Beer retailers are frequently asked to violate the law. But they're saying "No" — because they know that a clean, law-abiding establishment is the best "insurance policy" their business can have.

That is why most beer retailers want and cooperate with the Brewing Industry's Self-Regulation program. They want to be among the great reputable majority of retailers who know that good conduct is good business.

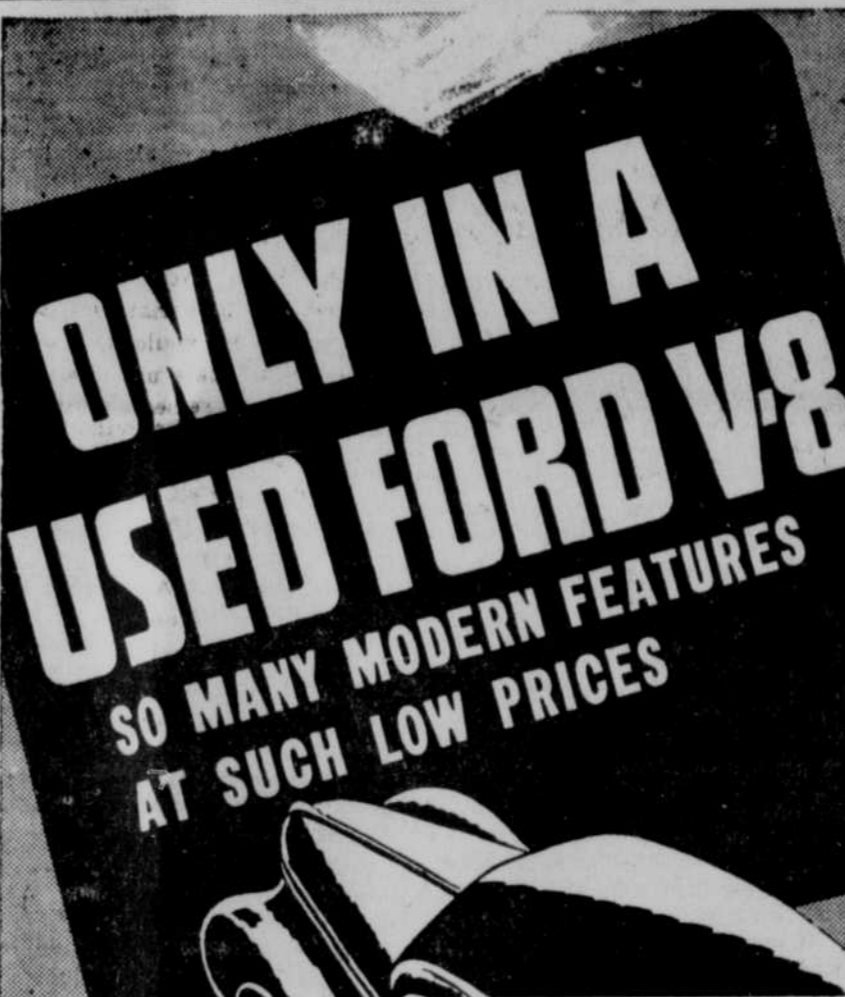

You can help us — by patronizing only the reputable places where beer is sold and by reporting to us any objectionable conditions you may observe.
