B is for "Bonds,"
Which Consumers retire At regular periods, As you would desire.

The bonds used to finance Consumers are revenue bonds and are set up on a regular schedule of retirement . . . that is . . . a certain amount of them are scheduled for retirement at a fixed time each year.

A regular percentage of Consumers gross income each month is set aside in a special fund earmarked FOR ONLY ONE PURPOSE: the retirement of bonds. This fund CANNOT be used for any other purpose. As these bonds are paid off—year by year—Consumers electric customers become larger and larger co-owners of the electric distribution facilities which serve them, until ultimately they will be the COMPLETE owners of these properties.
