O'Neill F.F.A. Boys Aiding The War Effort

The O'Neill rural community has been served by this department for the past four years. During this time new improved practices have been introduced to the farm boy and his father. Vocational Agriculture in this school has proven a very valuable department in this community.

The above picture shows a wagon box, laying hen feeder, alfalfa feeder and concrete hog troughs that were built by the O'Neill F.F.A. boys. These boys are doing their part in the war effort, constructing equipment for the farmer which he is unable to buy, introducing more efficient feeding methods by these two feeders, and replacing steel hog troughs with concrete ones. This is a small part compared to what they have already under construction in the school shop at present. They have three wagon boxes, a number of poultry and hog feeders, and they are repairing farm machinery and making tools such as punches, chisels, etc.
The O'Neill Vocational Agriculture Department was new in the O'Neill community in 1939. This department was started by A. L. Mathis, the present instructor,
