THE DAYS OF LONG AGO

Thirty Years Ago

The Frontier, January 2, 1913. Frank Biglin, who came up from Columbus to spend Christmas at home, returned to Columbus last Sunday morning.

Daniel Burr, manager of the O'Neill Cement Works, died in a hospital in Omaha last Monday of heart disease, after an illness of three months. He was 65 years of age.

The Frontier, January 9, 1913.

In the bitter cold of Sunday night a fire occurred at the home of Dr. Flynn, at the J. A. Golden home in the northeast part of town, which resulted in the loss of two lives, destruction of the furniture and damage to the house.

May Elizabeth Daly was burned to death in the building and Sarah Martha Lamb was so badly burned before removed from the house that she died on Monday. The fire started from an oil heater in an upstairs bedroom. Dr. and Mrs. Flynn were not at home. They with other friends were spending the evening with Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Harrington. Those in the house when it caught fire were the three Flynn children, the two girls who perished and Clyde Davidson. The latter was spending the evening with the girls. When the Daly girl went upstairs to go to bed in a room where an oil stove that they had filled that evening had been left lighted. Fire was blazing from the stove and bedding burning. She called to those downstairs, and Davidson and the Lamb girl ran quickly to the burning bed chamber. Clyde tried to extinguish the flames, but failing in this, picked the stove up to carry it downstairs and outdoors. In doing so the oil tank became unfastened from the upper portion of the stove and blazing oil spread quickly over things. He then kicked the stove downstairs and ran through the flames to the lower floor telling the girls to escape by a window, and awoke the children, whom he got to safety, then ran to the nearest house and called Dr. Flynn by telephone. He then tried to enter the house again to rescue the two girls, but could not do so for the fire. Dr. Flynn and others soon arrived and a ladder was placed to a window of the room where the fire was and the Lamb girl taken out after she was badly burned. In this condition she was removed to the Devlin home, and doctors worked with her until near morning, but no hope was entertained that she would survive. The remains of the Daly girl were taken from the building horribly charred and the flesh burned until she was past recognition. She was 20 years of age. Miss Lamb was a native of this county, having been born in 1895 in Paddock precinct, where her parents still reside.

Stanley A. Soukup and Martha Agnes Murray, both of Page, were married at the Catholic church in this city yesterday morning.

The Frontier, January 16, 1913. Mrs. D. A. McDermott, residing just across the river south of town, died Thursday, January 9, of dropsy.

Otto Hoehne of Atkinson was a Frontier caller Monday, renewing his subscription for another year.

The city has entered into a contract with the McGinnis Creamery Company to pump the water and take entire charge of the water plant until May 1, at an expense of $125 per month.

The Frontier, January 30, 1913. Six deeds have been filed for record at the county clerk's office transferring all of the Elkhorn Irrigation Company's land holdings in the county to F. E. Cowden of Corning, Iowa. There are 10,600 acres of land involved in the transfer.

It is pretty well agreed by most of the old-timers whose memories are particularly clear as to how the weather behaves, that this winter is the finest ever. With no snow on the ground and the temperature around 60 degrees above zero, the weather continues ideal.

George Wrede, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wrede of Agee, and Miss Emma Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Anderson of Dorsey, were married by Rev. M. F. Cassidy at the Catholic church, Wednesday morning.

Ten Years Ago

The Frontier, January 5, 1933. A flash came over the radio this afternoon that ex-President Calvin Coolidge died at his Massachusetts home this afternoon. One report is that he had gone to his office as usual this morning and that Mrs. Coolidge was doing some shopping down town, and when she returned about 2:30 o'clock found Mr. Coolidge lying on the couch dead, having passed away from a heart attack.

John H. McIntosh, one of the old-timers in the eastern part of the county, died at his home at Page last Thursday morning at the age of 62 years, 7 months and 23 days.

The old Nye-Schneider-Fowler elevator, later the Nye-Jenks Co., and for the past few years owned and operated by E. D. Leach, burned to the ground last Saturday morning. The building and contents were destroyed. The building was valued at $3,000 and the contents at $2,500. Mr. Leach carried insurance on the building of $1,400 and $2,000 on the contents.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Gallagher and sons, Gene and John Robert, returned last Saturday from Omaha, where they attended the funeral of Michael J. O'Keefe.

The Frontier, January 12, 1933. William H. Shaughnessy died at his home just east of this city last Monday morning about three

Irene

When Irene got home from the airplane factory she was good and tired. This was the hour, after work and before dinner, that she always looked forward to. Her private name for it was "My sissy hour." Into it, these days, she packed all the lazy, luxurious little things she loved—things that used to take up a lot more than an hour of her peace-time days.

She sat down at the little desk in her room. You could tell quite a lot about Irene from that desk. The water-glass filled with the small bouquet of flowers she sometimes bought on the way home. The paper-weight of pink marble. The thin, crackly blue air-mail stationery. And the big, framed photograph of a young man in a corporal's uniform—as good-looking a man as Irene was pretty. On the blotter pad lay the telegram that had come that morning just as she was leaving for work.

With those long, well-shaped fingers she reached for a sheet of paper. She nibbled the end of her pen for a bit, and then she wrinkled up her nose at the picture of the soldier and began to write, "Dear Mr. Morgenthau," but the corporal's name was Jackson and she called him Pete. Her round handwriting spread across the page. "My boy friend is with the A.E.F. in Ireland. He has called me fifty dollars with which to buy a diamond ring. I've been thinking it over and decided to buy a War Bond to help Uncle Sam instead. This may help to bring my boy friend home sooner, and then he can help me select my ring."

Slowly she began to sign her name, "Irene."

(Letter from an actual communication in the files of the Treasury Department.)

Let's all sacrifice as Irene has done. Bring final victory closer with the money you put into War Bonds. Make certain your family budget tops 10 percent by New Year's.
