Department of Agriculture Forecasts Tightened Civilian Rationing Orders; Losses Alter Nazi Military Strategy; Lend-Lease Reaches 10 Billion Yearly

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.) . Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Weary from siege and bitter fighting and wasted away from starvation, these are some of the Japanese soldiers captured by U. S. army forces when they overcame resistance on Guadalcanal. They have been marched down to the beach and are waiting for a barge which will transport them to a prison camp for the duration.

FOOD OUTLOOK: And Rationing

As the American housewife began o learn the details of the new point rationing system the department of agriculture took a look around at the 1943 food supply and forecast an extension of civilian rationing which might even reduce dinner table loads to depression era levels.

Tip off on the situation came after a house appropriations subcommittee slapped its disapproval on the administration's food production subsidy program by rejecting to approve a request for $100,000,000 for incentive payments to growers of potatoes, beans, sorghum, flax and certain vegetables.

Farm bloc members of congress are against the incentive payments because they have their own plan for raising the farmer's income-by including farm labor costs in the parity formula.

After the subcommittee's action, Secretary Wickard called on farmers to ignore the action and go ahead with their production plans anyway. The department of agriculture pointed out that the most severe pinch on many foods is yet to come but careful rationing and intelligent use of food supplies will help.

FORETASTE:

Of Battle for Africa

The first big armament battle of North Africa gave a foretaste of the severe nature of the fighting which lies ahead of the Allies before the Axis can be cleared out of that front.

Allied communiques told of heavy fighting in which German tanks swept into the Allied forward base at Gafsa, 75 miles west of the Gulf of Gabes, in the southernmost part of the Tunisian line.

American troops, which had been holding the place, were understood to have retired before the German advance and to have withdrawn according to plan. The retirement from Gafsa was not completely unexpected and was expected to strengthen the Allied line in the districts where strength has been too thinly spread for safety.

However, better news came when American tank combat teams smashed back at Marshal Rommel's experienced armored troops and forced the Nazis back six miles in the Faid area of central Tunisia. This was the biggest armament battle of the North African front, and conducted under an umbrella of American fighter planes.

A navy communique announced that 15 Japanese ships, including 12 destroyers, were sunk or damaged, and two American warships were lost in a week of furious fighting in the area-but the fighting was all of air attacks on surface vessels. There were no reported incidents of warship battling against warship. Reports indicated that the Jap fleet preferred not to risk another largescale naval battle.

ALTERATIONS: In Nazi Strategy

There were definite signs in Berlin that German military strategy with respect to the war in Russia was undergoing some rather vital alterations. Some sources indicated that Hitler himself was no longer making the important strategic decisions. Rather, said these reports. the German general staff had taken

If true, there was reason aplenty for the change. For now the Russians have regained virtually all of the territory they lost to the Nazis when the latter began their 1942 spring offensive. Spring, summer and fall last year had seen the Russians fall back from a line running roughly from Leningrad down through Kursk, Kharkov and Rostov to as far eastward as Stalingrad on the banks of the river Volga. And almost to the Caspian sea.

All this was now lost. For the Russians had in turn encircled the Nazi troops before Stalingrad and then retook that city; the siege of Leningrad was lifted; Kursk fell, then Rostov and last to be retaken was the anchor city of the German lines-Kharkov. Most experts predicted that the German generals had convinced the political leaders that a retreat to the Dneiper river was in order. Here, they reasoned, it would be simpler to stop the Russians. Moscow sources could not agree. The Red army fought on.

MEDITERRANEAN: Ship Losses Small

Adm. Andrew B. Cunningham, commander in chief of the Allied Mediterranean naval forces, has announced that American and British shipping losses had been less than 2 per cent in bringing 780 ships totaling 6,500,000 tons to North Africa since November 8. At the same time the admiral reported the Germans and Italians in January lost nearly one-third of their ships in trying to supply their Tunisian

When asked if the Axis could mobilize enough ships to get their forces out of North Africa, Admiral Cunningham said:

"Yes, but I wouldn't like to say what would happen to them."

LEND-LEASE: Still Growing

The United States is spending at the rate of $10,000,000,000 annually to supply its Allies with food, implements of war and necessary industrial products, Edward R. Stettinius Jr., lend-lease administrator, told a senate appropriations sub-

Stettinius' lend-lease table showed that $6,823,000,000 worth of material had been sent to Great Britain and its territories while only $160,000,000 worth was sent to China.

The 1943 requirements of the various lend-lease countries have been submitted, he said. "On the basis of our best present estimate . 1943 requirements for food will approximately double 1942 requirements." (Food requirements up to January 31 totaled $1,115,000,000.) It is expected that lend-lease requirements for other materials will exceed those for 1942.

FINLAND:

Ryti Again

The attention of three strong nations-the United States, Russia and Germany - centered on Finland when that small nation re-elected Risto Ryti president, thus extending his tenure in office to March 1, 1945.

Germany hailed Ryti's re-election as a "plebiscite of the people" approving Finland's foreign policy. from Helsinki said: "This election was a demonstration for Ryti and his foreign policy, and thus against the Anglo-American war of nerves."

America's attention was drawn a short time after the balloting by the college of electors when the dominant Social Democratic party council in a manifesto urged friendlier relations between Finland and the United States. It was hoped in many sources that relations between the two nations, troubled for some time, might be smoothed.

Russia looked with sardonic eye upon the Finnish press which emphasized that Finland was independent of Germany. One newspaper noted that "Finland is fighting a purely defensive war. Our alliance with Germany is purely accidental."

Peace Proposal?

Authoritative reports that the Finnish government has requested Sweden to sound out London and Washington on the prospect of a separate peace between Finland and Russia governments.

Finland's conditions for peace stipulated Finnish independence, a frontier compatible with Finnish honor and interests, and that the United States and Sweden should guarantee that independence and territorial integrity.

Although Britain is at war with Finland, it was natural that the Finns' separation from the Axis would be welcomed. The view prevailed in London that Finland should enter into discussions direct with

The move was thought in Washington quarters to foreshadow more important changes in the WPB structure. With Eberstadt's dismissal came rumors that Nelson's tenure of office was strictly limited. As the rumors spread, Bernard M. Baruch, 72-year-old chief of the War Industries board of World War I, was the most prominently mentioned as Nelson's successor.

John L. Lewis Leading Anti-Wage Ceiling Fight

Transocean News Agency reporting 'Man Who Came Back' Responsible for Battle Against Little Steel Formula Of Increases.

> By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

There is a new candidate in Washington for the title of the "man who came back."

He has come back before so it is probably no great thrill for him but it is a terrific pain in the neck for a number of people who hoped this tall, dark ghost had been laid away for the duration, if not for longer. I am speaking of John Lewis, stripped of his robes as head of the CIO which he hewed out of the rock of AF of L opposition. But if his head is bloody, it is bowed in no humility

Lewis may not be all the way back but it seems very much as if Messrs. Green and Murray are going have been received by the Allied through some preliminary shuffles that may be a dance to Piper Lewis'

> Lewis loudly sounded the keynote for what he hopes to be the death march for the Little Steel formula which held wage raises down to a 15 per cent maximum. When Murray and Green heard of Lewis' press conference, on the day he sounded his threat, they hurried to the White House where the President, who isn't seeing just anybody, permitted the visit and let the CIO and the AF of L talk to reporters on the White House steps-but they had nothing to say which could drown the Lewis roar.

I talked with a man who has fought labor's cause for many a year without affiliation with any group. He said to me:

"There are only two things that will keep from blowing the whole price control system into the high observers immediately forecast a heavens. Either Murray and Green can turn their backs on Lewis, put aside their fears that he will win the plaudits of labor away from them by being the sole champion of wage raises and say boldly to their folupon as the top authoritative liaison and everybody. Inflation will be thrown into the army. Opponents worse in the end than the squeeze say, however, in some cases, this you feel you are getting now. "If they don't, Lewis will have his

> "The alternative," he went on, "is to have the President call in both the farm and the labor leaders and say: 'All right. How much of an increase do you want? Twenty per cent? Thirty? But then prices will go up by just that much. You and everybody else will be that much > worse off." Of course, there is another alternative-a cast-iron ceiling on prices but the metal to withstand the upward pressure has not been found. With this situation before him, almost anyone would rather be right -or left of center-than President.

Different Problem

Recently, to add to the troubles of the labor leaders themselves as well as the government, there was evidence of a different type of problem in scattered hot-spots in the labor world-undisciplined groups which one man described as made up of men "who wouldn't even take orders from Stalin."

Some 300 workers in a zinc smelter in Moundsville, W. Va., gave notice that they weren't going to work Saturday or Sunday without overtime pay. This, in spite of the fact that they worked only 36 hours a week. The orders are clear that double-time is only paid for a seventh day of consecutive work. But these men said "orders or no orders" they weren't going to work Saturdays or Sundays without that overtime. Zinc is one of the bottle necks. The War Production board was frantic.

These are only pin pricks and not typical but they cause a near-crisis every time they occur in industries producing essential materials.

Quick Comeback

There has seldom been a quicker comeback in a Washington bout than lowed Paul McNutt's haymaker delivered at the boys in non-essential industry

The echoes of the "work or fight" ukase of the Manpower commission were still reverberating up and down the corridors of the long list of industries from bootblacking to window-curtain manufacturing when the house military committee arose with its "no, no, a thousand times, no!"

Representative Kilday of Texas obtained a promise from Chairman May of the Military Affairs committee for immediate hearings on his amendment to the Selective Service act and the "block McNutt" move was soon heavily under way. As you know, Representative Kilwhile McNutt's move was to estab- was used. lish participation in the war effort as the principle governing the order of induction.

country and consternation and con- rated. fusion reigned.

Then up spoke Mr. Kilday. The attitude of those favoring the measure to draft the single men first, evand the others with dependents go, is this: They say they do not want the Selective Service act made a weapon to force men into essential Address: jobs. They claim the act was never so intended.

Legislation, they say, must be bassed after careful study which will lay down a manpower program; military service is an honor as well as a duty. It must not be used as a

Kilday's Views

I talked with Representative Kilday before the hearings began. He was optimistic over quick committee acceptance of his bill though he said he didn't want to hurry the DEPARTMENT hearings and he realized all sorts of opposition might develop. He pointed out that his measure would not alter the present deferments, that it doesn't mean, as some seemed to Larson Agency, Central City, Nebraska. think, that single men, now deferred under the present deferment rules, " 'We'll do what is best for you will be yanked out of their jobs and will be the actual effect.

passes, it will sink the present Man- de Stael. power commission program without a trace and with all hands on board.

There is plenty of public appeal in the Kilday measure-the argument that it is more important to keep the family together than to fill quotas for industry or the army and the navy, the argument that there is no authority in the Selective Service act to do what the Manpower commission order is aimed to achieve. namely, to state what job a man is to hold. And that side of the argument has particular appeal in a congress exceedingly jealous of its prerogatives, sworn to prevent usurpation of its powers by the administrative branch. A Prediction

Last week, I reported the predic tion by a keen observer of this whole problem to the effect that one more desperate measure would be attempted by the Manpower commission before it would be forced to step aside for some other agency. McNutt acted, and within 24 hours of that prediction, the military affairs committee announced hearings on the Kilday bill, looks very much like a bird of ill omen echoing the second part of the dire prediction-the end of the Manpower commission as an agency with any power of initiative left. To many high army officials, there is grim satisfaction in what is happening. Long ago, it was intimated that sooner or later the military would have to take over the whip hand and settle the manpower question in its own way. Some military men would be quite happy to have the Kilday measure pass, sweep everyone draftable into the armed forces and then do its own reallocation, screening out the men necessary to industry and agriculture and furlough them back as military needs, first, and the industry's, second, demanded. One can imagine, however, how union labor would like to see khaki and navy blue manning the stamping machines and the lathes beside the workingmen in civvies. Labor's objection to the bill was expected from the first. And so we have a four-way clash: Legislators, Manpower commission,

Military, Labor. Once more, a labor draft "looms"

as the headlines say.
