TO: ALL PERSONS INTERESTED IN SAID ESTATE, BOTH CREDITORS AND HEIRS: You are hereby notified that on the 1st day of May, A. D., 1943, Charles Burke filed his petition in the above matter, setting forth among other things, that Anna Burke, a citizen and inhabitant of Lincoln County, South Dakota, died intestate on the 6th day of May, A. D., 1939, possessed of: The Southwest Quarter (SW 1/4) of Section 31, Township 27, Range 10, West of the Sixth P. M., in Holt County, Nebraska; that she left her surviving as her sole and only heirs at law the following children, to-wit: Finley Burke, Olive Cray, Daniel Burke, Charles Burke and Charles Burke; that Charles Burke, petitioner herein, is a son and heir at law of the deceased, Anna Burke, and derived title to an undivided one-fifth of said real estate, or an interest therein, from said deceased. That the prayer of said petition is that the Court may find and determine the time of the death of Anna Burke, deceased; that she died intestate, a resident and inhabitant of Lincoln County, South Dakota; may find and determine who are her heirs, and fix their degree of kinship; may find and determine the right of descent of the real property belonging to said deceased; that further administration of this estate may be dispensed with; that there are no debts against said estate, and that the claims of all creditors are barred; that there is no inheritance tax, State or Federal, due from this estate, or any of the heirs thereof, and for such other and further relief as may be just and equitable.

DO THEY REALLY?

Thoughts On Thinking

The half back takes the ball for center, his blockers race ahead as interference, howing down the opposing players; there is a muddled pile-up and then he is in the clear—alone—with three big tacklers between him and the goal line. He is on his own.

For a number of years—referred to in a song as "School Days"—thinking was simply a process of following our teachers who ran interference for us and showed us the way. Then one day we got past the line of scrimmage into maturity and discovered that we were on our own. After some experience it became clear to us that this unaccustomed job of thinking for ourselves involved a number of difficulties which might be compared to those tacklers mentioned above.

Truth is the goal of the intellect—but the tacklers must be avoided if we are to reach it. Before we even begin to oppose them, we must remember to hold on to the ball—to master the idea and carry it to its farthest conclusion. Then if we are thrown, we still keep the ball and can put it into play again. We must also avoid discouragement. We don't mind effort and we dislike quitters. "Knowledge maketh a bloody entrance" is true, but a trained mind is worth the price.

Now for those tacklers. The first is sloth. Do we still allow others, e.g., some of those using the printed word in newspapers, periodicals, and books and some of those using the spoken word over the radio to do our thinking for us? There is a certain amount of cowardice in a man too indifferent to use the mind which God has given him. Are we afraid to defeat our own lazy tendencies, or are we afraid to arrive at the truth? Some people fear truth because it places new obligations upon them, obligations which, if fulfilled, may turn away friends and even relatives.

The second tackler is the false philosophy of the day. This is a really dangerous foe, for it is surrounded by an appeal of mistaken originality. Do we accept the statement of a man, made famous by his mechanical exploits, on some question of religion? He probably knows less about it than we do, but sometimes we clothe the men in the headlines with power they do not possess and follow them blindly.

The last tackler is the catch phrase—dressed in the garb of common sense. We hear frequently, for example, the remark, "It's all right in theory, but it won't work in practice," and it has the ring of truth. But the reason that it won't work in practice is that it is not right in theory.

You have to get to that goal—alone. It can be done. Just remember, hold on to the ball, keep pushing ahead and avoid the tacklers.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Looks like a pretty expensive cigar you've got there, Judge." "Yesiree, it's a real good one, Bill. Won it from Chris down at the cigar store yesterday. He got pretty positive in a discussion we had and I had to take him up on it. Bet me three good cigars to my one that the three states that still have prohibition have less crime than the other states. Well, all I had to do was step across the street to my office where I had some recent F. B. I. figures in my desk drawer. Why, on the average, those three states have a worse crime record than the whole rest of the country. And there's a good sound reason for it, Bill. There's no such thing as a dry community. It's only a question of whether liquor is sold legally or illegally. And when it's sold illegally it means bootleggers, gangsters and more crime."
