BANKS AND THE WAR
FOR EFFICIENT FINANCING OF WAR PRODUCTION
AND HERE

Good News From the Home Front

GOVERNMENT, business and the press all unite in approving the job banks are doing in financing war production. Quietly and efficiently, the process of financing goes on every day, in every community. The 15,000 American banks are seeing to it that the billions of dollars needed by business firms and individuals keep flowing smoothly in an endless procession of loans. All who need money are invited to apply for a loan at this bank.

Views of Congress
By Dr. A. L. Miller, M. C.

The House just passed a bill appropriating money for the operation of the Department of Agriculture. Many functions of the Department, some of them necessary, have been stricken out on what is termed "points of order." How does this happen, and why? Well, the House, for many years, has had a rule made for the protection of the taxpayers that prohibits the Committee on Appropriations from writing new legislation into appropriation bills and thus setting up new functions and services of government that have not been considered and provided for by the appropriate legislative committees. According to this rule, before an appropriation can be made a law must be passed providing for the executive service that will receive the appropriation. During this administration some of the Departments have set up many divisions and services to spend money that have never been provided for in legislation by the Congress. Blanket appropriations in the past have provided the funds. Having the money, many executive agencies have far exceeded any authority granted them by Congress. Members of the House who feel that the time has come to curb these agencies are using this rule of a "point of order" to strike out appropriations for them. The members insist that the Departments come before the proper committee and ask legislation setting up the agency before asking for an appropriation. When one realizes how easy it is to set up a new government agency and how hard it is to get rid of one, even after its usefulness has long gone by, he will understand the position of these members.

Many of the agencies to whom funds have been denied on "points of order" are worthy and will in the end be provided for. When the bill reaches the Senate it can be amended and many of the appropriations taken out in the House bill, no doubt, be restored. But this action will be taken only after careful consideration by the Senate, both in Committee and on the floor. Then it will go to a joint committee of both houses, where differences will be ironed out. In this way the country will have plenty of opportunity to make its wishes felt. By having their appropriations cut out by "points of order" executive departments will be warned that they must go about it in the regular way to get authorization from the Congress before they expand their activities.

While we are on the subject of the mechanics of Congress it might be interesting to know that there are about 80 committees in the House, 52 of them regular standing committees and the rest special committees to do some particular job. All legislation must come before one of these committees for consideration before they are considered by the House as a whole. Hearings are held on the proposed bills, testimony taken and a record is published for the benefit of other members of the House or any interested party. The record of the hearings on the Agriculture Appropriation bill mentioned above covered 1,802 printed pages. Everything that was said in the way of testimony and argument is recorded in this report. The hearings on the appropriation bill for the District of Columbia covers 629 pages.

Some interesting things were brought out in the debate in the House on this bill. Washington now has a population of over 850,000 people of which 30% are colored. One can hear every language in the world spoken on its streets, and you can hear the English language spoken in ways you cannot understand. Although real estate taxes are lower than in any other city of its size, rents and other items in the cost of living are about as high as you find them anywhere.

We would remind you again to ask us for the list of Farmer's Bulletins that are available for distribution. Here are some of the titles that might be interesting: No. 1673, Farm Gardens; No. 1044, The City Home Garden; No. 1371, Disease and Insects of Garden Vegetables.

Where Will Money Come From?
People ask: "Where will the money come from?" to reach the thirteen-billion dollar objective of the Second War Loan. The answer is simple. The people HAVE the income. When we produce munitions or peacetime goods, or anything else, we likewise produce income. For every dollar of production, there is a dollar of income.
The problem of war finance boils down to this—if individuals and businesses receive more income after taxes than there are things produced for them to buy, then excess funds arise. The government deficit is matched by the combined surplus of everybody else. This surplus should be put into government securities to wipe out that deficit.

The following Frontier readers have either called or renewed their subscription by mail during the past three weeks. Our readers have been very good about taking care of their subscriptions during the past year, that is many of them, but there are some who are still in arrears and we hope they will drop in and get on the right side of the ledger. Many thanks to those who have extended and also to the new readers who have joined the large Frontier family.

No Need to Spend More For Shoes, Just Because They're Rationed

When a limit is set on what we buy of anything, we decide at once to use our precious ration tickets for the BEST we can buy.

But the best does not mean the most expensive. In shoes, for instance, there's no need to pay more than Penney shoe prices. Penney shoe quality has proved itself, regardless of price, over many, many years, with millions of customers.

Take our men's dress shoes, for instance. The leathers are selected with the painstaking care you would expect in shoes costing much more. We use the same constructions as you find in expensive shoes. And the workmanship, down to the last stitch, is superb!

Is there any reason, then, to pay more for your shoes than you pay at Penney's?

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"You can't imagine, Judge, how much comfort Louise and I got out of reading that recent report made by the government on drinking habits in and around Army camps. If you hadn't loaned us your copy we'd still be worrying about our Jim... all because of those silly rumors goin' around."
"I'm mighty glad to hear that, John. As the report says, no Army in American history has been so orderly, so well-behaved, so well-trained. Why, even on pay-night, there's very little drinking done. I was particularly interested in that part which said the Army, with an eye to its own problem, usually prefers to have its camps in wet communities rather than dry communities because wet communities can be regulated... dry communities with their bootleggers can't. It's just more proof that prohibition does not prohibit."
