What You Buy With WAR BONDS

While we have not heard so much about them, our air-borne command is inferior to none. We have thousands of these especially trained troops and the glider is a necessary factor in their successful operation.

We build gliders in three types and their capacity is a military secret. The type shown here costs about $19,000 each. Buy War Bonds with at least ten percent of your income every payday and help pay for these gliders for our intrepid fighting men. U. S. Treasury Department

Views of Congress

By Dr. A. L. Miller, M. C.

The thunder over OPA food price ceilings still rolls along the Congressional front. It is rolling over the heads of the administration. Part of the thunder lies at the door of nine different agencies dealing with food. They are the Food Administrator, the Department of Agriculture, the Office of Price Administration, Lend Lease Administration, Board of Economic Warfare, Army, Navy, Man Power Commission, and War Production Board. There are many conflicting ideas among these agencies. The result has been confusion and an intoxication from ideas which have created not only chaos but a genuine food shortage in this country.

Many men in Congress and in the administration are urging that all problems relative to food be placed in one one department under one head. The Food Administrator should have complete authority over food production, distribution, price fixing and rationing. We need personnel and top men in the administrator's office who have faith and confidence in private enterprise. We need men who will encourage agriculture and help eliminate confusion and red tape. The Agriculture Department may get the job if it goes to the Agriculture Department, many of the economic theorists who infest the OPA will be left off the government payroll.

It seems possible that those in authority will eventually roll back the price of food products on to the farmer. The payment of subsidies at a time when the worker has more money in his pocket than at any other time creates inflation. The payment of subsidies to the middleman for food really makes the food cost more to the consumer because there is the huge administrative expense which will be necessary to put in effect such a program.

I have often said that the folks living on the farm raising their own foodstuffs are in a much happier position than those living in the city who must buy everything they consume. The raising of a Victory garden and the preserving of the products will be a fine cushion against inflation.

My office has received more than 100 telegrams protesting the subsidy on meat and food prices. Congress has indicated that they are opposed to subsidies, so the thunder rolls on over the heads of those who deal with food production. The test will come next week when the OPA appropriation bill is before the House.

Price ceilings are not being maintained. This means black markets. It is estimated that 25 percent of the meat in the east goes through the black markets. When people have money to spend and there is little to buy, it forces up not only the price of food but the other things in demand by the individual with a pocket bulging with money. Other countries have tried the same method that we are now using to hold down inflation and they have failed.

The administration is demanding new taxes. There may be a forced saving plan put into operation. There is some talk of a general sales tax of 10 percent, with the necessities of life exempt. There may be a higher tax on luxury items. The records of the Treasury Department show that the United States is spending about 200 million dollars a day.

After the war it is expected that the United States will have nearly fifty billion dollars in unused materials. Yesterday I supported the measure which will give a congressional committee some control along with the Budget Bureau in disposing of the surplus war products. The United States has title to more than 375 million acres of land. The records show that the government owns about 52 percent of the state of Wyoming. This accumulation of land for defense areas and activities has thrown a great burden on to county and state officials. It takes property off of the tax rolls.

Seventy-one years ago this week the one-cent post card was inaugurated. Congress this week re-enacted the three-cent postage on letters.

Twenty-six years ago this week General Pershing landed in England. I don't think he said anything at that time about the boys returning in 26 years. Six months after he went to England the war was over. Let us hope it is a good omen.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Harmon of Scottsbluff left Sunday, after spending the week-end here visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Johnson.

PERHAPS you have never had a safe deposit box. Well, don't let that keep you from renting one now. Those War Bonds of yours are important property and should have safe deposit protection. True, they are registered—which means that only the rightful owner can collect on them. BUT, their loss would cause you inconvenience and mental anguish. So rent a box for them, and for your other valuable papers such as insurance policies, mortgages and deeds. The cost is small.

Payroll Savings Buys Comfort For Your Fighting Relatives

Not all of your payroll savings and other War Bond purchases are used for tanks, planes and gunpowder. A part of your investment goes for the comfort of your father, brother, son or friend.

Put your war bond buying through your payroll savings plan on a family basis to do the most effective job in providing for the care and safety of your men in the armed forces. Figure it out for yourself how much beyond 10 per cent of the aggregate income of your family you can put into war bonds, above the cost of the necessities of life.

Remember a single $18.75 war bond will buy for a fighting soldier on the front: Two cotton undershirts at 44 cents; two pairs of cotton shorts at 76 cents; two pairs of cotton socks at 34 cents; one pair of shoes at $4.31; a cotton khaki shirt at $4.64; pair twill trousers at $4.16; one web waist belt at 23 cents; two cotton neckties at 44 cents; 2 khaki caps at $1.26 and one twill jacket at $2.16. Total $18.74.

An $18.75 war bond should make a marine comfortable for the night with a 23-pound mattress at $4.20; two blankets at $13.54; a pillow at 56 cents and two pillow cases at 30 cents. Total $18.60.

Or he could be provided with a rubber poncho at $4.77; a helmet with its lining and other items of its assembly at $5.62; a rifle cartridge belt at $2.15; a marine corps pack consisting of haversack, knapsack and suspenders at $5.10; a canteen and its cover at $1.05. Total $18.69.

Those of you who worry about the comfort of your boy in service can help insure his comfort by buying war bonds. And 10 years from now you'll take back $25 for every $18.75 you put in.
