(First publication August 19, 1943) Julius D. Cronin, Attorney. LEGAL NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of an Order of Sale issued by the District Court of Holt County, Nebraska, in an action pending in said Court wherein Violet Stewart is plaintiff, and Adele Engelhaupt, et. al., are defendants, directing me as Referee to sell the following described real estate, to-wit:

Southeast Quarter of Section 22, Township 27, North, Range 13, West of the 6th P. M., in Holt County, Nebraska, and The South Half of Section 23; the Northeast Quarter of Section 34; the Northeast Quarter of Section 28, all in Township 27, North, Range 13, West of the 6th P. M., Holt County, Nebraska.

I will sell said real estate at public auction to the highest bidder for cash on the 20th day of September, 1943, at ten o'clock A. M., of said day at the front door of the Court House in the city of O'Neill, Holt County, Nebraska. Said real estate will be offered for sale in separate tracts. Tract number one: Southeast Quarter of Section 22, Township 27, North, Range 13, West of the 6th P. M., in Holt County, Nebraska. Tract number two: The South Half of Section 23; the Northeast Quarter of Section 34; the Northeast Quarter of Section 28, all in Township 27, North, Range 13, West of the 6th P. M., Holt County, Nebraska. Terms of said sale: 20% cash on day of sale, balance payable in cash on confirmation of sale.

DO THEY REALLY? Rugged Individualism

They tell us now that the days of the rugged individualist are over; no more shall we see amazing of huge fortunes. Perhaps, but let us look into the matter briefly to see just what the rugged individualist is, or was. About five or six hundred years ago man discovered himself—so the historians tell us. But we say that man then lost himself and has been floundering around ever since trying to find himself.

Previous to the fourteenth century man regarded himself as a unit in the great brotherhood of man living together under the fatherhood of God. That is the reason why there were great Crusades, why men founded hospitals, why there were then free schools. In those days there was poverty, but there was no pauperism as we have today. Man realized then his obligations to his fellow man; the wealthy person knew that he was the custodian of his wealth and must use it to help the poor. But what happened? Students were searching through and studying the old classics of Greece and Rome, and in a day when the practice of religion was lax began to adopt the old pagan ideas about man. They taught that man was meant for nothing but earthly happiness and should make the most of this life. In this period called the Renaissance began that mad rush for wealth and power that has been the mark of every age since.

There people were logical—if a man passed into nothing at death, why not enjoy life to the full? Why have regard for another's rights if they hindered one's own progress? So was born the individualist—a man who put himself before everything and everybody.

They tell us now that the days of the rugged individualist are over; no more shall we see amazing of huge fortunes. Perhaps, but let us look into the matter briefly to see just what the rugged individualist is, or was. About five or six hundred years ago man discovered himself—so the historians tell us. But we say that man then lost himself and has been floundering around ever since trying to find himself.

As the rush of wealth went on, the poor became more oppressed. Whole nations became possessed with this idea, and grew into modern Europe with its grievances and jealousies which flare into war when one nation upsets the balance of power. Great industrial families were developed who spread their power around the earth, but the small man lost more and more of his rights as time went on. But there came a reaction. This reaction exists today where individualism overstepped itself and the poor man rose up. But the result is not something better; it is worse. Now the state possesses all the individualist qualities men once claimed, and the rush for wealth and power goes on unchecked. All religious-minded people agree that the cure for this is a return to religion. We Catholics say this means a return to the Kingdom of God on earth and the restoration of all things in Christ. Those familiar with the formation of our Constitutional government say that this disease that has substituted the state for God can be cured by the application of the religious principle of inalienable natural rights that come from God and are beyond control of the state. This was so plain to the Founding Fathers that in the Declaration of Independence they declared that such truths are "self-evident." The Catholic Information Society, 7800 Kendrick Road, St. Louis Mo., will be glad to answer any question you may care to ask about the Catholic Church or its doctrine.
