The ABC's of Pleasing Party Line Telephone Service

Always share use of the line with others as you would have them share it with you — When each person on a party line is considerate of others in the number of calls made and length of conversations, all persons on the line enjoy better service.

Be sure to hang up promptly if you lift your receiver to make a call and hear folks talking — It is difficult for the persons talking to hear if others on the line have their receivers off.

Carefully replace the receiver after every call — If it is left off, no one can call you, and others on your line cannot make or receive calls.

Party line telephone service is furnished over one line serving from two to ten families in which there may be many users of the telephone. It is a partnership arrangement that requires the cooperation of each user if all users are to have satisfactory service. Courteous, considerate and reasonable usage will do much to give everyone on the line good service.
