

THE FRONTIER

Schedule Of AAA Meets Being Held

Dear Friend: There will be a meeting of farmers, their wives, and others interested in current agricultural problems for each precinct as listed below. The following topics will be discussed:

- 1—Dairy Feed Payments, 2—Special War Assignment to the AAA and Responsibility of Community Commitment, 3—1944 Agricultural Conservation Program.

After the discussion of these topics any person who is interested in participating or co-operating in the Agricultural Conservation Program in 1943 should remain for the election of the community committee for the program year of 1944 and also to elect delegates to the county convention.

The community committee is fundamental in making your farm program effective during this critical period and you need the best your community can offer—men with courage, public spirit, "common sense." This can be accomplished only if each of us attends the election meeting and exercises the privilege of the ballot. Plan to attend.

Referendum To Be Held On Soil Conservation Dist. Saturday, Dec. 18

Farmers in Holt county will vote on December 18 on a proposal to organize a Soil Conservation district. Polling places will be open from 2:00 to 7:00 p. m., at O'Neill, Atkinson, Stuart and Page.

If however, a landowner finds it inconvenient to go to a polling place on that date, he can obtain a ballot and a specially prepared envelope at some place to be designated in every town and at some outside points within the county. To vote, he will mark the ballot, place it in the envelope which he received and sign his name in the designated place. His signature has to be certified.

A referendum was called by the State Soil Conservation Committee at its recent meeting in Lincoln, where it studied the evidence presented at the hearings recently held in O'Neill and Atkinson.

One hundred sixteen landowners had signed the petition for the organization of a district, and a favorable sentiment was voiced by landowners at the hearings. At the hearings it was emphasized that participation in the program of the Soil Conservation District is entirely voluntary and that such districts cannot levy taxes, assessments or issue bonds. The Soil Conservation Service can provide engineers and other trained assistance, through the supervisors. The supervisors are five local farmers who are elected to set up policies and run the district. Some native grass seed, trees and special equipment have also been made available to the supervisors of Nebraska Soil Conservation Districts.

Klingler's Scrap Yards Very Busy Place

One of the real busy places in the city during the past year has been the junk yards of Herman Klingler. During the year Mr. Klingler shipped out eleven cars of graded battery lead and six cars of graded iron and steel scrap. All but two cars have already been shipped and the rest will be shipped within a few days.

For the past couple of years Mr. Klingler has paid more attention to battery scrap than he has to iron and steel. He is on the road most of the time himself and he has another man on the road also and they try to make their territory once every month. In the collection of old batteries he covers a territory of 100 miles from this city, north, east, south and west, and it keeps him and his men on the go all the time.

County Salvage News

Clothes for Allies: Women this is your chance to really do something (important). Clothing of all types, as well as rags, clothing for men, women, boys, girls, and infants—that includes everything that is wearable. Now, we don't want you to send anything that you will have to replace, but anything in the cellar or attic will be used by less fortunate ones than yourself. We hope every club and organization will put forth an effort to get their members to bring clothing for this worthy cause.

You may bring them to the court house annex—south front door—and leave them in the entrance and someone will take care of same.

Your discarded paper is still needed. Please bring it with you. Leave it out at the east side of the Annex. Tin cans are still wanted, but no more paint cans, cream cans or oil drums—those were only useable for shredding, and due to the splendid results of the past drive, they do not need those any more. But, all cans that are good for tinning are still wanted—that includes all cans from No. 10 down.

We had about 300 tons of scrap collected in the last drive. Our grease sales the past month were 630 pounds for the county.

BREEZES FROM THE SOUTHWEST

By Romaine Saunders
Atkinson, Nebr., Star Rt. No. 5

When the nations of the earth attend strictly to their own affairs the people of the earth are happy.

Not all the bombs fall in the war zone. Nebraska's Senator Butler has dropped a heavy one on the home front.

War, weather, winds and official restrictions do not prevent the citizens from going on trips to "visit relatives and friends."

Lend an attentive ear while he talks about his boy in the army and you will give Dad as much pleasure as winning the war.

Bernice M. Jackson, widow of a county superintendent of Holt county during the '90's and later state superintendent, died at her home in Lincoln Friday last, at the age of 78.

The partisan heat enflamed over Teapot Dome some years ago hasn't been forgotten. Now there will be a lot of explaining along the lines of a six billion dollar "good neighbor" handout.

A saddle horse fell with George Withers a day last week, tossed the rider to the ground, broke his glasses and made a few marks incident to a hard fall. Horse and man regained footing and George proceeded on his way feeling more secure walking and leading the horse.

"The dairy industry must set as its goal the complete extermination of oleomargarine." So? The dairy industry will be doing a worthwhile service if instead it sets as its goal more and improved dairy products and refrains from assault on other industries.

Mrs. Coolidge and Mrs. Jack Widman were soliciting funds in this community a day last week for the maintenance of their church in Amelia. The ladies found a ready and liberal response. There is a feeling that in this tragic hour the only sure anchor is found in what the Christian church has to offer and that work must go on.

Breezes bring the report that John Bower, an 83-year-old pioneer rancher of Swan precinct who recently sold out, has bought the ranch occupied by Vic Rockford and will launch again into riding the cattle herds. I have not talked with Mr. Bower to verify details, but he told me a short time ago that he felt that he was not yet through with his life's strenuous activities. A few years ago he sustained an injury that prevents him from raising his head to normal position but neither this nor his 83 years, at which age most men have retired if they live that long, deters Mr. Bower from further usefulness.

Atkinson has a citizen familiarly known as "Spot" Livingston. With avoirdupois weight at 400 or over, he is something more than a spot on the landscape. Holt county has had a number of giants. Mike Carrol, an early-day homesteader, was just under 7 feet. He never slept on a bedstead because none were made long enough. One of average height appeared as a pigmy compared to the late Wallace Johnson, a pioneer of the Eagle Creek country. Walt Townsend was one of the heavyweights as was also "Big Hank" McEvony. Gallantry does not permit listing the ladies in the quarter-ton class.

There is release from the day's tension, rest for the war weary, calm for the agitated mind, soothing balm for unstrung nerves and quickening for dead sensibilities when evening shadows lengthen; when the sunset hour has come with a few lingering clouds bathed in pink and gold and we pause for a few moments after the days occupation, release pent up fury and stand transfixed in the presence of the sublime scene. The prairie land has been touched the past few evenings by nature's master hand. War rages, man struggles with petty affairs, laughs, weeps, a final groan and life's fitful dream is over. Earth, sky, void air, mark off the silent centuries renewing each day a picture of transcending loveliness.

"How striking the course of nature tells. By its light heed of human suffering. That it was fashioned for a happier world!"

Mrs. Helen Sirek and daughter, Yvonne, entertained the employees of the Elite Cafe at a dinner and theatre party Sunday evening. The employees presented Mrs. Sirek and her daughter with a gift.

Miss Anna O'Donnell left today for Omaha to attend a meeting of Federal Land Bank employees. She will return home on Sunday.

Will Pay Points For Kitchen Fats

In order to spur the kitchen fats salvage campaign, the Office of Price Administration today announced that it will authorize retail meat dealers and other fat salvagers to give two points a pound for fats returned by housewives and others.

According to the statement issued today by M. E. Rawlings, district OPA director, the new plan will be put into effect on December 13.

The brown stamps which the retailer collects from War Ration Book 3 will be used for this purpose. Later, when ration tokens are used in making change under rationing, they will be used instead of the paper stamps. The ration tokens will be valued at one point each.

The salvaging now amounts to about 10,000,000 pounds a month. It is hoped, the OPA office said, to double this figure by offering ration points for the fat, which is needed as an essential war material.

Stamps In Use After Dec. 1 To Jan. 20

Green stamps "D," "E" and "F" in War Ration Book 4 will be used by consumers to buy processed foods after December 1 through January 20, 1944, the Office of Price Administration announced today. This is the second set of green stamps in Book 4 to be used.

Green stamps "A," "B" and "C" which became valid on November 1, will be used through December 20.

Missing In Action Constitutes Greatest Casualty Problem

Securing definite and accurate information on which to determine the fate of American soldiers listed by their commanders as missing in action constitutes the greatest casualty problem confronting the army, the War Department announced today.

Modern battle tactics, such as large-scale landings, the mobility and scope of armored warfare, and the far-reaching aerial offensive of global conflict, have greatly increased the percentage of casualties falling into this category as compared with the World War, when ground operations were more or less static and air activity was limited.

The same factors likewise have complicated the final determination of the fate of missing-in-action personnel. Hundreds of them later are reported by enemy governments as prisoners of war, some are located in Allied hospitals, and still others rejoin their ranks from which they have been separated by the ever-changing battle line. Lack of comprehensive reports from the enemy concerning the men, particularly the Philippine Scouts missing in the Philippines, is also a major cause for the large proportion of missing among the total casualties.

The fact remains that in a great many cases it has been impossible to supply the next of kin and the emergency addressee with any supplemental information relative to the circumstances or the nature of the action in which the soldier disappeared. Every effort is being made by the Casualty Branch of the Adjutant General's Office, by the theater and the organization commanders to get this information. While in many cases it has been of no avail, their efforts are continued.

The reason for this difficulty is simple. The soldier has disappeared in or over territory held by the enemy, and there is no way for the unit commander to find out just what happened to him. Consequently, the War Department must rely almost entirely upon information which the enemy government is required to furnish through the International Red Cross under the terms of the Geneva Convention.

This dependence upon governments with which we are at war for information on the American dead, wounded or prisoners falls into their hands obviously results in great variations in the length of time elapsing before the reports are received by the War Department.

As soon as word reaches the War Department that a man is listed as missing in action, the Adjutant General's Office of the Army Service Forces sends a telegram to the next of kin or emergency addressee which the soldier previously has designated. In this telegram the date he was reported missing, as well as the theater of operations in which his unit was engaged when he disappeared, is given.

Shortly afterwards, under present procedure, a letter over the signature of the Adjutant General is dispatched to the next of kin confirming the telegram and explaining the difficulty in securing the information, but giving assurance that when the War Department does receive any information it will be forwarded at once. In addition, the letter points out that "recent legislation makes provision to continue the pay, allowances and allotments of personnel being carried in this status."

Starting this week, the Casualty Branch of the Adjutant General's Office will make a report by letter at three-month intervals to the next of kin and emergency addressee advising them of the status of the individual case until final determination is made. However, should any information be received throwing light on the soldier's fate it will be forwarded immediately without waiting for one of the three-month reports.

Some idea of the size of the casualty problem of the missing in action which the Army is facing may be gathered from the fact that 52 per cent of the casualties announced fall into missing-in-action and prisoner-of-war categories. In other words, together they account for 46,546 of the 89,650 casualties.

However, included in the missing in action, which total 23,954, are 5,316 officers and men of the United States Army and 10,788 Philippine Scouts lost in the Philippine Islands. Some of the officers and men still are being reported from time to time as prisoners of war, but Japan has not furnished this country with lists of Philippine Scouts who are prisoners.

During the World War, a total of 78,000 men had been reported as missing, but by August 1, 1919, this figure had been reduced to 46 men. Of the total, about 1,550 were presumed to be dead after evidence had been secured sufficiently to carry the presumption of death and 4,480 had been taken prisoners. The largest number discovered in hospitals, while some others returned to duty after having been lost from their units.
