

"We Are Buying Extra War Bonds—Are You?"

Sgt. Samuel Jones, Jr., Wilkes-Barre, Pa., has been a doughboy for four years. He was wounded during the North African campaign by enemy machine gun fire. Since his return he has aided greatly in the sale of War Bonds and buys plenty himself.

Sgt. Nicholas Miller, Paterson, N. J., won the Silver Star for rescuing two comrades under fire at El Guita. His knee cap was broken and the cartilage torn out and at present cannot move his knee. Halloran Hospital doctors are trying to correct this. He buys Bonds.

Pvt. Louis Bielmeier, 33, of New York, was wounded by arterial shell during the Sicilian campaign. He has a brother in the Marines. Private Bielmeier and his wife and brother are buying War Bonds regularly. Are you doing the same?

Pvt. Clarence Clark, 21, Swampers, La., has two brothers in the service, one in the Army and the other in the Navy. He was wounded in the right leg and both feet in the North African campaign and is now at Halloran General Hospital. He buys War Bonds.

Pvt. Pasquale Galilea, New York, went through the North African campaign without a scratch but was wounded during the invasion of Sicily and is now in traction at Halloran Hospital. He has a brother in the Navy and has War Bonds and is buying more.

Corporal Lillian Waldhelm of the Women's Army Corps teaches radi code to Aviation Cadets at the Army Air Forces Navigation School, Hondo Texas. She gets a real thrill when "her boys" win their wings.

DO THEY REALLY?

Mary and Martha
At the first sound of the bell in the slender spire of the church a soft rustle of feet and long robes begins, and down the long corridor goes the white-robed procession. Not a word is spoken; instead, after a few moments of intense silence, sixty strong male voices sound like one in praise the glory of God.
Among these strange, silent, kind-looking monks is a great engineer, two former presidents of a well-known university, a once famous district attorney, a former Canadian "mountain", and an aviator whose exploits in the great war made newspaper headlines. And now here they all live, work and pray together! Not long ago their monastery was brought to the attention of a few outsiders by reason of some minor legal business; but the little that was disclosed of the past of these monks so intrigued a popular news magazine that a striking feature article was written of the incident.
Some people—even Catholics!—see in this obscure life devoted to constant prayer and menial work an almost scandalous contrast to "modern" life. Couldn't they do more good by devoting their great talents to practical work in the world, to solve the social problems that afflict us? What a sinful waste of time to pray all the time!

Jesus Christ, who taught us to pray, heard this same criticism from an energetic lady, and answered and silenced her for all time. Martha was the busy housewife in whose house Jesus lived for some time and so concerned was she with housecleaning and dinners that she forgot that her first duty was to make Him feel at home. Picture her rising wrath turned on her sister Mary who sat at our Lord's feet talking to Him or merely saying nothing.
"Lord, hast thou no care that my sister hath left me alone to serve? Speak to her, therefore, that she help me" (Luke X, 40).
"And the Lord answering, said to her: Martha, Martha, thou art careful, and art troubled about many things. But one thing is necessary. Mary hath chosen the better part, which shall not be taken away from her." (Luke X, 41-2).
It is one of the "hard sayings" of Christ. Specially hard for men who believe in the constant—even though aimless—expenditure of energy, and who can judge only by the immediate results. Christ's church does not teach us that men must kneel overlastingly in prayer, any more than she teaches us that celibacy is holier than marriage for all men. But we do know that the praise of God is our best and first "opus Dei" or the "work of God". It even comes before the work of God in doing good (God's will) to our neighbor. Get into low work for once and do better work.

Tractor Riding "Grandma" Praises War Bond League
Mrs. K. C. Henkle of Kenton, Ohio, does more than her share of war work. She and her husband run two farms at maximum production and with almost no outside help. In addition, Mrs. Henkle is chairman in her township for War Bond sales, for the Red Cross and for the combined scrap paper and grease salvage campaign. She is also a writer and has composed poems for War Bond and Red Cross programs over Stations WMRN, Marion, and WLW, Cincinnati.
Mrs. Henkle, who has an Army son, a Navy son, and an Army son-in-law, enthusiastically endorses Mrs. George C. Marshall's appeal to grandmothers to buy Bonds for their grandchildren. She herself takes turns buying Bonds for her five grandchildren ranging in age from 4 months to 11 years. "Those Bonds," she says, "will help educate the children and set them up in businesses and farms ten happy years from now."
The Grandmothers League was founded by General Marshall's wife and has been widely accepted as a worthy and unselfish Bond-buying drive.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"We can't argue with the Judge on that point, can we Mabel? It's not fair to penalize the many for the actions of the few."
"That, folks, is exactly what we would be doing in this country if we ever voted for prohibition again. Authorities who have made a careful study of the problem, report that only about 5% of those who drink abuse the privilege occasionally... 95% drink sensibly. Probably doesn't compare with the number of folks who overeat and do other things to excess. Prohibition certainly isn't the answer. It's not that simple. We had nearly 14 years proof of that, didn't we? "The real answer is education and better control. In fact, the responsible members of the distilling industry are working constantly toward that end. They don't want anybody to abuse the use of their product any more than the three of us do."

"If everybody would take that sensible attitude, Judge, and cooperate as more and more are now doing, we'd be a lot better off a lot quicker."
