

THE FRONTIER

BREEZES FROM THE SOUTHWEST

By Romaine Saunders

The Blue Nile river of Egypt has a drop of six inches in 1,000 miles. The Elkhorn out this way plunges on with a 10-foot drop to he miles.

Back in the 1930 decade Professor McDougall of the Harvard said: "As I watch the American nation speeding gaily, with invincible optimism, down the road to destruction, I seem to be contemplating the greatest tragedy in the history of mankind."

Big wigs of the democrat party setup in Nebraska endeavored to side track their senatorial candidate—nominated at the primary—two years ago but, he stuck. They are trying the same game on the party candidate for governor this year with as little success.

We have a host of family case work consultants, child welfare workers, lady recreation directors and maids showing mothers' clubs the best method to fold the baby's triangler overall. I don't know that these excellent individuals have had anything to do with inciting the tidal wave of juvenile delinquency.

If I understand the permanent peace advocates the four great powers—meaning us and the European and Asiatic allies—are to collaborate each with a colossal military setup, disarm the truculent Axis powers and make the whole world behave by force of arms. With the Big Four thus equipped how long would it be till one or the other turned its engines of war on one of its pals?

Rains are doing more to reduce the use of gasoline than the rationing. Roads are prohibitive of travel in some places and the well appointed highways are washed in spots and under water in others. Ranchers out this way who try to raise a little grain have lots of time now to go fishing, with fish ponds at their back doors. I think we average not less than two inches of rain every four or five days. Grass is unusually good and there appears to be a normal crop of blue grass seed that soon will be in condition to strip. A hindrance to stripping may be water on the meadows. Swan Lake has attained to sufficient depth to have been restocked with fish. Most rain since 1915.

In A. D. 64 St. Paul prescribed a remedy that the elements of industrial unrest of 1944 are invited to consider. "Servants, obey in all things your masters. . . . pleasers, but in the singleness of not with eye service as men heart, fearing God." "Masters, give unto your servants that which is just and equal; knowing that ye also have a Master in heaven." And this sentiment I find on a little desk calendar of the Burlington railroad. "There is nothing quite as satisfying as the pride that comes from the knowledge of a job well done." The author of that finds in his job the opportunity for the full play of the creative instinct—not in terms of "increased living costs." No doubt he gets the meal ticket.

The boxelder tree that shades Dr. O'Connell and Barber Streeter was probably planted by Doc Mathews and furnished an afternoon shade for idlers 50 years ago. Regardless of what the demands were at his watch tinkering bench where now are the barber chairs, Noah Gwinn spent a hot afternoon on a chair in the shade of that tree catching flies that came his way, and taking the consolation afforded by a clay pipe. Cigarettes were a positive disgrace. He jumped one afternoon to a zone of safety when a gray broncho plunged onto the board walk churning its rider fit to kill. It was either a fist fight, horse race, wild riding or still wilder shooting along the unpaved street. On a summer evening an itinerant street preacher on lower Fourth street brought calm to the hectic scene and quiet jeers from a few loafers with his plea, "Ho, everyone that thirsteth, come ye to the waters and drink." Az Perry, Bill Lakey, George Triggs and others sat in front of the old Commercial hotel and listened. O. F. Biglin, mayor, rebuked one rounder in his cups who undertook to molest the speaker, warning him to "let that man alone or we will lock you up." The quiet old town now sleeps on undisturbed by as much as a political argument or religious discussion.

"A sound and workable plan for lasting world peace that will mean freedom and justice for all." This idea, clothed in today's language, has been going the rounds of the human race since the dawn of history. At each fresh outburst of world horror it floats again on dreamland wings. "A sound and workable plan," that is as far as sage or dreamer can go. The period

A Son of Col. Meredith Receives Army Wings

Pecos Army Air Field, Pecos, Texas.—Col. Owen R. Meredith, commanding officer of the Presidio of Monterey, California, pinned the wings of an Army Air Forces pilot on his son, Lt. Robert B. Meredith, as he graduated from the two-engine pilot school at Pecos Army Air Field. Col. Meredith was the principal speaker at the graduation exercises at the invitation of Col. Orin J. Bushey, commanding officer of the Pecos Field. Col. Meredith's sisters, Mrs. C. F. McKenna and Mrs. Ruth McCaffrey, are both living here in the Colonel's hometown.

Hospital Notes

Dallas Hemingway, of Orchard, was admitted Monday. Medical patient. Mrs. Elmer Zuracek, Star, baby girl Tuesday. Mrs. John Pribil dismissed last Friday. Mrs. Walter Pease, of Emmet, dismissed last Thursday. Leona Mullen, tonsils, removed Thursday. Mrs. Clarence Wrede admitted Sunday, dismissed that evening.

is placed right there. What is the "sound and workable plan"? If by it is meant the arming to the teeth of the four allied powers in an amalgamated "workable plan" to preserve world order what will prevent one of the four aspiring to dominate the other three. Alexander the Great was a great empire builder and a great wine bibber. When he passed out of alcoholism at the age of 33 his four leading generals took over the government to guarantee "freedom and justice for all." It wasn't long until one, abler than the others was running the Greeco-Macedonian set up. Freedom, justice the rights of citizens are for national determination, not international. Isolationist! Maybe so. But few wars would have drenched the centuries with blood had men and governments not meddled with the affairs of others. Americans have always been ready to knock the block off of a bully. We are getting so we like to meddle a little, too.

Lee Downey favors me with a friendly letter from Denver and the story from the Denver Post of the Burlington railroad celebrating on May 26th the 10th anniversary of their Zephyr train. When one sees that gleaming string of cars that gleaming Diesel engine streaking across Nebraska or standing in the railroad yards at Lincoln or Omaha he is reminded of the first telegraph message ever sent over the wire, "What hath God wrought!" As a feature of the 10th anniversary a party of railroad and other notables rode a freight train from Chicago to Denver. The Post says "the Burlington has launched the 'latest descendant' of that pioneer Zephyr—a mammoth Diesel-powered freight train of 123 cars, hauling 6,210 tons of freight on a virtually non-stop run from Chicago to Denver. The train pulled into Denver at 9:50 a. m. Thursday—just twenty-one hours after leaving Chicago. It was exactly 6,781 feet long—or 1,501 feet more than a mile. Sandwiched into this huge assemblage of freight cars were two business cars of the Burlington, carrying leading representatives of the railroad world, business and banking circles, and including a former vice president of the United States, Gen. Charles G. Dawes." Lee expresses the hope of making us a personal call the next time he is back this way. His letter is an inspiration, the story of railroad achievement interesting and educational, but we will look forward to the warm hand clasp and personal fellowship.

Charles E. Stout Retires From Drug Store

Another old time O'Neill business man has retired. After 50 years in the drug business C. E. Stout, last Thursday sold his store to Robert Evans of Meadow Grove, Nebr., who took possession the same day, June 1.

Charles E. Stout came to this city in 1895, when he was a young man of 18 and went to work for Dr. P. C. Corrigan. In 1897, after the death of A. U. Morris, who operated the other drug store, it was purchased by J. L. Hershiser and the late Dr. J. P. Gilligan, and Charles went to work there. In the meantime he attended school and graduated as a pharmacist. In 1900 Dr. Gilligan purchased the interest of his partner, J. L. Hershiser, in the store and the store then became Gilligan & Stout's. The firm continued until 1900 when Charley purchased the interest of his partner and since that time he has been the sole owner and operator of the store. For many years the store was in the building now occupied by the Gamble store, but in 1933 Mr. Stout moved to the Golden hotel corner, where he remained until 1940, when he moved to the store in the First National Bank building, where the store is now located. The retirement of Mr. Stout from the drug business removes another of the pioneer business men from the ranks of our business men, and there are mighty few of the old timers left. A young strapping 18 when he came here and O'Neill likewise was young in years but full of activity and business. Its business men were pushers and they made the name of the town known from coast to coast. This was recognized as a good, live town, with a bunch of energetic up-to-the-minute business men, and it is so recognized today. There have been many changes in the drug business, as well as in other lines, since Charley entered the business. Fifty years is a long time to serve the public as a compounder of medicines. The pioneers that were here and in this immediate vicinity when Charley came here have mostly passed on. The second generation is getting along in years, and their descendants are now the men and women of today in this community, as well as in other communities of the state. For time marches on. Charley expects to remain in this city. It is home and always will be. For about ten years he was mayor of the city and made a good record while in that position. He has always taken an active interest in everything that would aid in the further advancement of this city and her people. Mr. Evans, the new owner, is well qualified to take over the business. He is a graduate pharmacist; his father has for years operated a drug store at Meadow Grove and his son practically grew up in the business. He is a nice appearing young man and the Frontier extends him welcome to the ranks of O'Neill business men.

More Information On Contour Farming

"Last year I planted a field of corn on the contour on my own without having a contour guide line surveyed and found out that I had better get some help to lay it out right," said Ray Siders, farmer 3 miles west and three-quarters mile north of Star. "My field slopes to the southeast so I listed crosswise to that slope," he continued. "It did a lot of good and saved a lot of soil and moisture but there were low spots in the rows. The water accumulated in the rows. The water accumulated in these spots and when there was too much it broke through the ridges," he stated. The next time this field is put in row crop he will have a contour guide line staked so as to eliminate the low spots, he pointed out. Mr. Siders said, "This year I am contouring another field using a guide line staked by the Soil Conservation District technician. This field doesn't have much slope but I can hold the moisture on the high spots and keep it from accumulating in the low spots. Next year we are going to work on another field to prevent the water from accumulating in my lots," he continued. Contour farming is only one of the conservation practices that Mr. Siders will be using when he gets his conservation program in operation that he is working out for his farm in cooperation with the Soil Conservation Service technicians assisting the Holt Soil Conservation District. Anyone interested in contouring or any of the other conservation practices should contact the District office in the basement of the Courthouse Annex on Saturdays or Mondays.

Enlistments Increasing In Women's Army Corps

Omaha, Nebr.—(Special)—In spite of an increased quota Women's Army Corps enlistments during May in the Nebraska Recruiting District exceeded by four (4) per cent the quota set by the Seventh Service Command for the district during the month, it was announced today.

It was the third consecutive month that the Nebraska district (comprising the states of Nebraska and South Dakota) has met or surpassed the procurement of new WAC enlistees asked by the service command, said Maj. Frank V. Kent, Omaha, in charge of army recruiting in the two states. The May quota was 13.6 per cent higher than the enlistments asked from his district for the months of March and April, making May enlistments in the Nebraska district 17.6 per cent higher than for those months when the quota was exactly reached. Major Kent added. Of the total WAC enlistments in the district during May, he continued, 29 per cent were by South Dakota recruiting sub-stations; 71 per cent by Nebraska sub-stations. The Omaha recruiting sub-station, Lt. Dorothy Rolofson in charge, again led the district sub-stations in total May production, contributing 44 per cent of the new enlistments, Major Kent said. It was the second largest monthly production by the Omaha sub-station since March, 1943. Enlistments by other district army recruiting sub-stations in May were announced as: Sioux Falls, S. D., had 15 per cent of the total; Rapid City, S. D., 14 per cent; Lincoln, each six (6) per cent; and Scottsbluffs and Cent.

The May enlistments at the Rapid City sub-station, Lt. Lela Hogan in charge, were the largest in any month since the sub-station was opened there a year ago, Major Kent said.

4-H Judging Day Expected To Draw A Large Crowd

Considerable interest is being shown in the 4-H Judging Day scheduled in the O'Neill Public School on Tuesday, June 13. The Judging Day is not a contest but a school of instruction to teach the 4-H boys and girls how to judge in all lines. Judging of home economics projects will be conducted by Miss Allegra Wilkins, from the state 4-H club office, in the O'Neill Public School, and Mr. M. N. Lawritson will have charge of livestock judging on nearby farms. Each member or club attending should make arrangements for their own lunch. Several clubs have indicated that they are planning to attend in a group and the event should bring in two hundred of Holt County's 4-H club members.

Mrs. F. J. Dishner went to Sioux City on business last Friday. She was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Biglin. They returned home the same evening.

'D' Day For War Bonds In Holt County To Be On June 12th

"D" Day has come and gone for the "boys" and our soldiers are now standing on the soil of France with their eyes set on Berlin. We at home are anxiously awaiting every bit of news in anticipation of the Supreme Test which we know lies ahead. Many are the mothers and fathers right here at home whose own sons are in the midst of this terrible struggle and for whom these days will hold nothing but suspense and agony. Now more than ever before, this war is right at our doorsteps and so it will remain during the crucial days ahead. Everything we have fought and worked for and everything we hope for in this war now lies at stake in the coming weeks. June 12, 1944 our Government—which means you and every other citizen—begins its Fifth War Loan Drive. Our county's quota in this sixteen billion dollar drive is $639,800.00. We have faith that we shall meet this request and shall not be surprised if we exceed it. Day by day the war and its costs in "blood and tears" is being brought more vividly home to the people of our country. More and more frequently, now, those fateful messages beginning "The Government regrets—" will be delivered to our homes in this country signifying that some man (who so recently was one of us) has given his full measure of blood, his loss wringing the full measure of tears from the loved ones left behind. There is no sudden way to end the war but there is a way to hasten that end: To keep a ceaseless stream of supplies of every sort flowing to the battlefronts. The men getting those supplies will do the rest. They have never let us down. To fortify those men making the invasion with an equal assurance that we at home are backing them with our utmost, we must meet this sixteen billion dollar war loan. This is our assignment for this invasion period. All of us must buy more war bonds than we have ever bought before. Following is a list of the chairmen of the various precincts and city committees who have volunteered their time and effort in this drive. You can assist these workers by volunteering your purchases.
