Why a Farmer Should Buy and Keep War Bonds

by W. E. Grimes

Head, Dept. of Economics and Sociology Kansas State College, Manhattan, Kansas

AMERICAN farmers, more than any other business group, typify American freedom and American democracy. The farmer of America has the right—and exercises that right—to conduct his business and live his life as he chooses. He must and does accept responsibility for the success or failure of his business and the well-being of his family. The production of his farm, in large measure, is a reflection of his ability and ingenuity and initiative under our system of free enterprise and individual freedom. This is the essence of American democracy.

American democracy did not just happen. It was established by long and constant struggle against the forces that would have prevented it. It is a heritage from our forefathers who fought for it. It can be maintained only by continuing the fight for it. This fight goes on whether we are at war or in peace. It is the constant struggle to make democracy work. To make it work, every citizen must do his part as a member of a freedom loving, freedom acting people. Democracy works if we make it work.

Today there are forces that would destroy the freedom of the American farmer and his family and the freedom of every other person who loves and cherishes our democracy. These forces stem from three sources. First are those outside the borders of this country that are attempting to tear away the very foundations of our democracy and to make farmers and all other businessmen the henchmen of dictatorial powers. Under such a rule the job of the farmer would be to carry out the orders of the dictator. It is to prevent this that the boys from our farms and cities are fighting on farflung battlefronts throughout the world. This answer to this threat is—it shall not come to pass.

Within our country, forces are ever seeking to undermine the democracy which permits freedom loving farmers to conduct their farms in peace and with profit. These are the forces which encourage inflation with its soothing but deadly effects. Price controls, rationing of scarce goods, limitations of credit, repayment of debts, and the purchase of War Bonds are some of the weapons being used against these enemies that strike from within. These are the weapons of the home front.

The third source of forces that tend to destroy American democracy are those which undermine the stability of our farms and other businesses which typify so well the exercise of American democracy. Our democracy can be no stronger than its component parts. If the business stability of American farms is impaired, our democracy totters. Under our system it is the responsibility of the farmer to maintain his own business, and most American farmers do so. They are repaying debts, avoiding new excessive debts, and buying War Bonds from their incomes. The income to American agriculture in 1943 was more than nineteen billion dollars—the highest in all history. Income in 1944 probably will be equally as large. It is to be expected that a sizable proportion of this high income will be invested in War Bonds—invested in the democracy which makes it possible for the typical American family farm to exist.

FIRE AWAY!

BUY EXTRA BONDS

This poster "Fire Away" shows a scene aboard the U. S. Submarine "Dorado." The artist, the celebrated American painter Georges Schreiber, has caught the action during the very tense moment before the passing craft is identified as friend or foe. The painting is authentic in every detail for the artist was actually aboard the Submarine at sea. He ate and slept with the crew. He worked with the men and stood watch with the officers. A short time after leaving the Submarine, it was lost with all hands.
