Agriculture looks forward with confidence to tomorrow because its youth is being trained properly today.

Our United States public school system has taught scientific agriculture to millions of boys and girls in the vocational agriculture courses of nearly 10,000 rural high schools. Here students learn the improvement and proper use of the soil which is our basic wealth; how to produce ton litters of pork in less than six months; the care and repair of farm machinery; and many other vital things.

Such studies create an interest in research and this is important-for scientific research is vital in agriculture and other industries. Science has been back of the development of modern farm machinery; of cows that produce

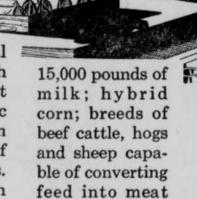

MEAT BUYING CUSTOMS

Bostonians like beef from heavy steers, St. Louisans prefer beef from light ones. It is of interest to livestock producers and meat packers that taste, money-to-spend, seasons, beliefs and habits all affect meat buying customs in different parts of the United States. Our new 16 mm. moving picture sound film, animated and in color, "MEAT BUYING CUSTOMS," explains these dif-ferences. Interesting for lodge, grange, school or church shows, and farm and livestock meetings. You pay only transportation one way. A RECORD TO BEAT

Who will be America's Star Farmer of 1946? He'll have to be good to beat the record of Gordon Eichhorn of Marion County, Ohio, who won this top award of the Future Farmers of America at their 1945 National Convention last fall. A high school freshman in 1939 with one sow, two steers and 26 sheep, Gordon now has 60 hogs, 90 sheep, 1,500 chickens, land and equipment for a total net worth of more than $8,300. He farms his own land, is partner with his dad on 186 acres, and rents from his neighbors 96 acres more on which he raises corn, alfalfa, small grains and clover.

and fiber economically and speedily. Research in the science of agriculture is a major national resource which has contributed largely to the high standard of American living.

THE EDITOR'S COLUMN

Several times in this space, I have invited producers of agricultural products to come and see us. As a result of this, we have had quite a number of visitors. Conversations with these visitors have been very interesting and helpful to me and have brought out many of the ideas which producers have regarding the livestock and meat industry. Some recent conversations indicated that quite a number of producers think that there are less than a hundred meat packers in the United States, in fact some thought there were as few as ten. This idea seems to come from the fact that many of them ship their livestock to only one market and are familiar only with the number of meat packing plants at that market. I am sure that it will interest all of you to know that there are more than 3,500 meat packers in the United States. In addition, there are upwards of 22,500 other commercial slaughterers.

The only way those 26,000 companies and people can make money in their business is to sell meat. And to sell meat they must buy livestock. So all over the country-from Portland, Oregon, to Portland, Maine, from the Rio Grande to the Canadian border-these competing livestock buyers are bidding against each other for the essential material of their businesses—the cattle, calves, hogs, and sheep produced by American farmers and ranchers. The buyers who get that livestock are the ones who r.M. Simpson. bid the highest prices in

PROVIDE PLENTY OF WATER FOR DAIRY COWS

By D. R. THEOPHILUS Head, Department of Dairy Husband University of Idaho, College of Agricult

Water is practically always inexpensive and abundant, as compared to feed and labor, but nevertheless it is absolutely essential for profitable dairying.

The amount of water that a dairy cow will drink depends largely upon the size of the cow, the amount of milk produced, the type of feed consumed, and the atmospheric temperature. Milking cows need 4.0 to 5.5 pounds of water for each pound of milk produced.

Whether dairy cows are on pasture or in the barn, or are dry or milking, free access to clean water at all times produces the best results. Free access to water, in general, increases milk production over that secured when cows are watered either twice or once daily.

During the winter, or severe weather, milking cows should be watered indoors or under shelter where there is a comfortable atmosphere. If it is necessary for cows to drink from an outdoor tank, it is advisable to warm the water during very cold weather so that they will drink sufficient for their needs.

To develop good milk-producing ewes, and therefore good early lambs, winter feeding is important. Feed them plenty of top-quality legume hay and just enough grain to keep them in good condition, gaining a little weight. And don't forget exercise. It makes lambing easier and helps save a higher percentage of lambs.
