FUNERAL TODAY

ATKINSON-Bernard H. Dollarhide, 30, a native Holt countyan, and a twice-wounded World War II veteran, perished in the Canfield hotel fire at Dubuque Sunday in which 16 others lost their lives.

Dollarhide, a Greyhound bus driver, happened to be in the 200room Canfield hotel because the relief driver, who normally makes the Saturday night Chicago-Dubuque run, was ill.

The body was not burned, and death was caused by suffocation. The body was brought to Atkinson where funeral services were conducted today (Thurs-day) from the Atkinson Methodist church. Burial was at At-kinson with Rev. W. C. Birmingham, the Methodist pastor, officiating.

Dollarhide was born at Stuart, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Dollarhide, who now reside in Gordon. Prior to the war he worked for an Omaha trucking company, moving from there to Chicago.

Survivors include his wife, Helen, of Chicago; his parents; a because the hapless Stuart aggresister, Mrs. Harley Everett, of At-kinson; four brothers, Rex, of O'Neill collected 15 h Scottsbluff, Warren, of Minden, Meredith, of Murdo, S. D., and Haven, of Edgemont, S. D.

Dollarhide, a veteran of sever-al campaigns in North Africa and Europe, returned to Holt county for a visit in October, 1945, after his return from overseas. He was married on June 8, 1940.

Holt Creek Returns Are "Missing"

Balloting Is Light

Holt county election returns have been complete, except for on precinct. Reason: Holt Creek election officials sealed the unofficial tally sheet with the ballots. Consequently, the outcome will not be known until the official canvas of the cunty ballots takes place here Monday. Probably not more than 15 ballots were cast in that precinct, and, it appears that none of the contests hinge on the canvas.

NUMBER 5.

1.682 G O P BALLOTS

Tuesday's primary election in Holt county was a quiet affair, and balloting was light.

The Republicans were not sufficiently aroused over the personality conflict between Sen. Hugh Butler and Gov. Dwight Griswold, candidates for the nomination for U. S. senator, or over the free-for-all bid for the governor nomination, or over more than a dozen other contests, to turn out in greater than average numbers. The total GOP vote in the county: 1,682.

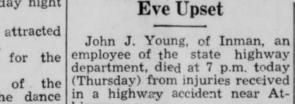

The Democrats were less-interested in what was probably a less-interesting ballot. The total
