Beer Retailing Attains Higher Standards

When the Soil Conservation specialist goes to a farm he goes as a friend, and often makes helpful suggestions.

Nebraska beer retailers also have a "helpful advisor"—the Nebraska Committee of the U. S. Brewers Foundation. This agency works constantly to help retailers avoid law violations and bad practices which are against the public interest.

When conditions in a tavern are found to be unsatisfactory a Nebraska Committee caution usually brings a quick correction. If some persist in bad practices the Committee submits the facts to legal authorities for action.

Self-regulation thus keeps Nebraska taverns operating in the public interest.

PRAIRIELAND ... TALK

By ROMAINE SAUNDERS ATKINSON Route 5

LINCOLN—Is the state pardon board a body designed to operate at cross-purposes with the courts? Whether or not that be the purpose it seems to work that way.

The instances are very few under Nebraska judicial procedure where sentence for crime is either excessive or misplaced. When a jury convicts and the presiding judge pronounces sentence circumstances must be extenuating indeed that will warrant an official body interfering with the one convicted paying the full penalty imposed. A convict, with something of an air of arrogance, recently walked out of the penitentiary a free man when by full authority of law and judicial findings that person should have gone to the electric chair.

If the lady member of the ex-board of control (who is said to have hooked a few trees) got the trees to grow many will feel she has done a distinct favor, and if she picked up an egg or fat hen that would be little enough compensation.

There are 20 million soldiers, sailors, office holders and mere citizens on Uncle Sam's payroll making it necessary to dip into the Federal treasury for 20 billion six hundred million dollars annually. States, counties and cities also have sizeable payrolls. A few patriots have to stay on the job of production.

From what the governor has run into, maybe Mr. Peterson would prefer to be back among the neighbors in Elgin.

Until further developments, from the straightforward statement in which the three retiring members of the board of control concur, Nebraskans may conclude that the dark cloud which began to loom as a sinister scandal has faded into a bit of statehouse gossip.

Mr. Peterson's initial punches are reassuring. He intends to be governor.

Over 32 million laws intended to regulate human conduct, and law-making bodies are again in action the world over.

The bus was moderately crowded. Two matrons stepped aboard and reached for the high rail. There were no vacant seats, but there were two young Negroes sitting together who had the instinct of the gentleman. In a fine spirit of chivalry they arose and generously saw that the ladies were seated.

Standing, in the full dignity of colored manhood, there was reflected from these young men perhaps the ideals of the institution where they are students and a silent rebuke for the indifference so characteristic of busriders to a lady or an aged person trying to hang from the ceiling. I learned these two colored boys are students in Union college.

Another bus scene: A young mother with two little boys, the smallest just out of babyhood. To the several matrons in the immediate vicinity of the little fellow the mother instinct was reflected in smiling attention and all felt for the moment lifted out of life's rough-and-tumble in the present of a sweet child.

Teachers, like poets, are born, not made. The ready-made teachers are expensive at any price. Those with the fine rare talent to supervise and instruct in our schools may be inadequately rewarded by the size of their paychecks, but to the teacher, craftsman, or man with the hoe there come rewards which transcend financial considerations.

Much is said respecting the financial needs of our schools, little or nothing concerning the fundamental need, teaching talent, of the kind represented by the ready-made type. When a young child, I had one of the former, Miss South, who measured by present scholastic standards, could about make the eighth grade. But she had a way with children and could teach. In the same ward school was a gent holding the job of principal, Prof. Donelson. One Spring day at recess a group of boys out on the playground, were badgering, annoying and causing suffering for a small boy of a poor family. The principal sat in an open window of an upper story in educated elegance looking down on the scene. But like Gallo of old Corinth, who looked on as the Greeks beat Sosthenes, he "cared for none of those things."

Three Holsteins owned by Nebraskans, one at North Platte and two at Gering, are said to have made records of more than 100,000 pounds of milk in a year, equal to some 50,000 quarts.

At present retail city prices the product of one aristocratic bovine turned into $8,500. Just how much butterfat from other sources had to be added to make real milk of this blue ocean is not given out.

Scientists claim to have the means of blasting everything man touches to smithereens, including himself. The Master Scientist wrote across the rainbow four thousand years ago these words: "While the Earth remaineth, seed time and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter and day and night shall not cease."
