LINCOLN—Lloyd Hammond, sentenced in 1932 at O'Neill to serve 25 years imprisonment upon conviction of being implicated in the holdup and death of Fred J. Sexsmith, was before the pardon board again last week.

Some new things in prison policy were disclosed when he told the board that he had at one time been assigned to serve as "houseboy" in the Lincoln homes of the board of control and as such "ironed and cleaned up around the house." This went on for "eight or nine months" until he was suspected of being involved in liquor deals.

It is said that petitions protesting Hammond's release carry 398 signatures, of which 152 are O'Neill citizens.

Looking in upon the Unicameral in session you may be reminded of the high school debating society and feel that a distinct service would be rendered the state if appropriations were made and adjournment sine die.

Cast adrift in an unfriendly world the children of Father Abraham are humanity's sorriest and at once its hardest group. In the face of a hostile people of Earth, the Jew has acquired more wealth than all others and made some of the greatest contributions to science, culture and literature.

The accident of race and color—how men hug their petty prejudices. Unhappy Palestine, the ancestral home of the Hebrew, given to them by the Creator of all lands more than 3,500 years back in the misty past.

When mocking priest and frenzied rabble stood before Pilate and cried out, "His blood be upon us and upon our children!" the shadow was cast across the centuries for the Jew, while his blood-brother from the Arabian desert has fed on goats and grown great.

Human emotions are universal, fundamental, and out of the harshness of the ages there focuses on the Jew his hardest hour and yet within him throbs the universal heartbeat. Perhaps Shylock, in Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice," has best set forth the emotions of us all:

"I am a Jew. Hath not a Jew eyes? Hath not a Jew hands, organs, dimensions, senses, affections, passions—fed with the same food, hurt with the same weapons, subject to the same diseases, healed by the same means, warmed and cooled by the same winter and summer as a Christian is? If you prick us do we not bleed? If you tickle us do we not laugh? If you poison us do we not die? And if you wrong us shall we not revenge?"

The OPA may be gasping its last but is not overlooking anything. On January 7 Gov. Peterson took over the state executive mansion on the corner of Fifteenth and H as the governor's official residence. A day last week Mr. Peterson received this from the OPA:

We have information that on January 22 you moved to 1445 H street, Lincoln, Neb. Are you paying rent for this unit? If so, did you read your landlord's copy of the official OPA re-registration? Did you sign a change of tenancy form? What is your landlord's name and address?

The governor's reply has not been made public.

James M. Jones has arrived from Pennsylvania to take over the management of the penitentiary, with plans which seem to indicate a coddling center for the lawless in place of an institution where criminals face the inexorable penalty for a life of crime.

When John Hopkins, of Eagle Creek, went to Lancaster as warden and took two-fisted gents like Tom Coyne along to help him do the job desparados had a wholesome fear of the Nebraska penitentiary.

You get through the third door and you are in the presence of his excellency the governor, if the smiling lady at the desk doesn't graciously dismiss you with a sweet, "Sorry, the governor is busy. Can you call at 4 o'clock." At which hour you are riding the trail for home.

The American Medical association admits the numerous remedies for a cold are "ineffective." Laymen long ago discovered that.

LOOK OUT FOR SCARLET FEVER

Scarlet fever, a contagious disease, is most common among children less than 10-years-old. But older children and adults may also "catch it." No one should be needlessly exposed to this disease which may have very serious and dangerous complications. These hints were passed on this week by Dr. W. S. Petty, recently reappointed director of the Nebraska department of health.

Scarlet fever is caused by germs belonging to the streptococcus family. These germs which cause scarlet fever are of several different types. The type we see most often is the one which produces a bright red rash. But people do have scarlet fever without having the rash. This is because they happen to be immune to the toxin which produces the rash. However, scarlet fever without the rash is just as contagious as the other form. It can even be more easily spread because it is not recognized.

"If someone in your family has a sore throat or an acute cold following exposure to scarlet fever, call your doctor. It may be scarlet fever even though the ordinary signs do not appear," Dr. Petty says.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Weier drove to Sioux City Sunday to visit friends.
