When You and I Were Young -Thadeus A. Hicks Loses

The accidental shooting of Thadeus A. Hicks, which occured last week, is one of the most deplorable accidents that most deplorable accidents that has happened in Holt county for many years. The sad affair happened after this wise:

On Wednesday afternoon, young Hicks and his brother-in-law, Henry Deyarman, were hauling hay on the ranch of John B. Drake, about 20 miles southwest of O'Neill. After they had unloaded about ter they had unloaded about two-thirds of a load, Henry jumped from the stack to the wagon and Thad from the wagon to the ground to get his coat and gun, and as the wagon was moving off, climbed on and was standing erect on the back end of the rack when the report of the dis-charge was heard by Mr. De-yarman. This occured just as the wagon stopped at the cor-

It is thought that he was holding the gun in front of him, rather steadying himself, and that the jar of the wagon someway made it slip through the rack thereby discharging it.

It was not as cold on Sunday morning with the thermom-eter ranging from 25- to 30below zero as it would be through many of the Eastern states, at 15- to 20-below. That is a fact that only needs practical experience to demonstrate to the satisfaction of the most fastidious. The community was shocked last Friday when it became known that Mrs. Dietrich Huebert, living about nine miles northwest of O'Neill, had been run over and trampled to death by their large farm team which had run away.

As the team was nearing home Mrs. Huebert endeavorhome Mrs. Huebert endeavored to open the wire gate to let them through. The gate was fastened with a stake. She had just released the stake from the ring when the team hit the gate, the stake was violently thrown around the post and struck her upon her chin and she fell in front of the heavy team and was of the heavy team and was trampled to death. Her youngest son, John, was on a horse riding alongside of the team trying to stop them when the fatal accident occured.
