LINCOLN — And now the 329 traffic deaths in Nebraska in 1947 is tabulated as "economic loss."

There is that in the mangled remains of a highway iradgedy that transcends mere material things. Desolated homes, a surviving wife or mother grief-overwhelmed, little children left to look out upon an unfriendly world alone, a father and mother bowed under a burden of sorrow, conscious that the cherished hopes and plans must lie forever buried with their son who met the grim reaper along the road.

Economic loss indeed! What are the millions in money beside the heartaches and tear-dimmed eyes, the crushing load of grief caused by a highway crash.

The little old man wears a white cap and an apron. Stiff of joints and an evident limp he gets around with dishes and the hardware of a 10th street cafe where he icitates as dishwasher. He might go and sit in the uncertain warmth of a cheerless room of a gloomy building facing a gloomy street and draw whatever stipend the assistance office is handing out. I go to the cafe on occasion for two reasons — one is to see this oldtimer who pefers making his way even at the job of dish washing rather than to accept an assistance check. And then five a day and meals is not to be ignored.

In a prison cell in Walla Walla, Wash., sits a man of 45 awaiting the hangman's noose to swing him to his doom January 15. This man coolly told of murders committed in other states, some of his victims citizens of Omaha. In one instance an innocent person has served a number of years of a life sentence in Iowa for a murder this self-confessed monster committed. The innocent one goes free, but the state owes him something more than freedom of fresh air in the open. Another state will take its toll of blood for crimes within its borders. Admittedly the hands of the villain were stained with the lifeblood of a dozen victims. He has but one life to give to atone for his trail of killings.

I have just read eight beautiful rules laid down as guides to raising children. And now reflecting on the beautiful home life and highly successful careers of seven sons and daughters of my own I sense the failure of the parental home — according to the Ph. D. who has contrived this set of rules.

Arizona authorities have in custody a 23-year-old gent who admits having been married eight times, mostly illegally. He should be qualified for captain of the heart-breakers.

A smart, able man like the president of the Standard Oil of Ohio advocates a united world government or humanity is sunk. His is one more voice amid the confusion of tongues. The one world idea is American, not in the sense that it is born of American ideals and traditions. By one world they mean the embracing of the notions of certain Americans. There are something like 1,000 languages to deal with, about as many religions, and countless systems of tribal and national governments. Turks and Arabs, Kurds and Moors, Persians and Indians, Mongolians and Malays, Egyptian and Ethiopian, conglomerate mass throughout Europe, the unyielding Muscovite, restless Latins occupying half of the Americas, island dwellers of the seven seas and the great continent of Australia. I am still an isolationist.

February 12 has been marked on the calendar in the capitol city for a new thing in memory of Abe Lincoln's birthday, when generous, warm-hearted citizens will attempt to get a mile long train load of food stuff going toward the Atlantic seaboard for shipment to Europe. Our recent "friendship" consignment seems to have proved a thorn in the flesh of red leaders but a few hundred folks got a good feed out of it and will be glad to learn another supply from Nebraska's store is on the way.

Dust bowl conditions will return if "cheap republican philosophy" prevails; "the father of inflation" is ascribed to spectacular Sen. Wherry; Gov. Peterson has broken the backs of taxpayers; republicans are out to "wreck farmers"; Wall street, that old standby, coupled with "big business," is the republican guiding star. But don't take it all to heart. These are merely the cry of despair of office-anxious democrats of the state who have adopted the Molotov style for their opening blast of 1948.

Congress graced Capitol Hill not long ago to sit in extraordinary session and devise means to deflate the Shylocks of the land. Nothing noticeable has come over the price situation during the intervening space between the special and regular now in solemn session at the nation's capital, I don't know much about such things, but find many times I am doing better in pocket and person on a 20-cent sandwich than had I got a dollar meal.

A hungry gent snatched the purse of a woman to reap a reward of $34.50 and a three-year stretch behind gray walls just outside of Lincoln. The Pendergast crowd of Missouri and the Huey Long political ring of a Gulf state plundered to the tune of millions. One got a 45 slug thrown into him, others a year or two in custody of a warden and a few elected to office.

Baseball, football, basketball, and now the snowballs are to dodge.

Sixty-two of the 93 counties have 4-H club girls and boys who are receiving awards in the shape of medals, having been accounted champions in their respective counties in their annual club work. The award in Holt county goes to Fred Mitchell and in Boyd to James Sire. Joan Shaw wins in Rock county and Delores Henn in Antelope.

Nebraska democrats have made up the slate for the ballot to elect delegates to the national convention. Former democrat stronghold of north Nebraska like Holt county is not allotted a candidate for the honor. Mr. Ritchie's attention is called to a fatal omission in overlooking a stalwart at O'Neill like Billy Biglin.

Not prepared for war, maybe not. We were a long way from being prepared six years ago, but "we met the enemy and they are ours."

You may read just about everything available on the magazine stands without running across an idea.

Town property owners spent their money for concrete sidewalks to be buried under slush and mud and ice.
