LINCOLN—A steady stream of men and women along the streets—youth, maturity, age, the well-groomed and the indifferently clad, bald heads shining like polished boulders in the sunlight, gray hair and lovely tresses fluttering in the wind—all hastening on with anxious faces reflecting an inward urge, brows knit with untraveled care.

What weighs heavy on human hearts and minds? A present dread or forebodings for the future?

Moving on with hurrying feet each "bearing his burden of sorrow" or imaginary worries reflected on troubled faces.

And here comes a gent sauntering leisurely across the intersection with the green light in his favor, hands thrust into pockets of worn work pants, unshaven face registering contentment. And as he stopped to spit and shift the chew of tobacco to the other cheek it registered utter indifference to the maelstrom of high tension humanity rushing by him.

One of the most popular spots in Lincoln is the State Historical society museum in the capitol. It would be interesting to know what brings many from far away states here to look us over and leave their name and address on the society's register. A notable feature of the exhibits that have come down from other generations is the sizable collection of war clubs ranging from arrows and bullets. Scrapping has been the occupation and delight and often the necessity of all generations. The gatherings of instruments of warfare at the society's exhibit is about equal to that employed in the pursuits of peace.

According to good word from official Washington sources, there is now under construction in Nebraska more than 9 million dollars federal road work, with something like 6 million dollars included in a further developing highway program.

The highways of Nebraska have not alone fallen into neglect. Highways of every state are in similar condition. With more and more heavy traffic, busses, great trucks loaded with many tons, a 24-hour stream of speeding vehicles, highways have become a national problem. Yankees have been in the habit of solving problems, but don't be impatient.

A police woman was called into a neighborhood to investigate the complaint of one householder against another. The one lodging the complaint raises a fuss with another neighbor over 2 pennies. Who should the police woman take to jail?

PREPAREDNESS, BACK YARD STYLE . . .
Clarence Booth, 54-year-old inventor of Lakewood, N. J., is a man who has confidence in the future as long as he can remain within jumping distance of the atomic bomb shelter he is building. Here he is shown using the tunnel exit of his shelter, partially completed walls of which appear in the background.

He says his snug retreat will be finished by summer and virtually "atom bomb proof." Booth is unworried about his own safety, once the shelter is completed, is concerned about his neighbors' welfare now. "I would sure hate to be the only living human in New Jersey," he says.

company of notables who came to town to put on their show and carry away a fortune. After paying the toll at the door, the ladies were seated where they could neither see nor hear and came away with the determination never again to be caught by an outfit that is publicized as artists a little above mortals. Someone has interpreted U. S. to mean us saps. And how Yankees do succumb to the many allurements!

During the past 88 years of national life the Democrats have had the thrill of electing 3 of their number president. They may never again have a like thrill.

If you wish to appear cultured you will manifest rapture over the high class musical program, though the whole thing has been a bore. But maybe you are one of those who get enjoyment and no make-believe when a group of Negroes sing the plantation songs and beat the banjo.
